Indians Ask Settlement for Lost Land

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Early in the 1800s, before the white man moved westward through the Plans, Osage Indians farmed and hunted over a four- state area including parts of present-day Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri and Arkansas.

The Osages, who then numbered between 4,000 and 11,000, were no match for the approaching pioneers tho took their land. Now the Osages are in court seeking what they say is a fair settlement for their homeland.

An evaluation hearing opens Jan. 20 before the Indian Claims Commission in Washington. Unofficially, it is estimated the land may bring the tribe $1 million to $15 million, based on other settlements in recent years. There are about 5,000 members of the tribe today.

Involved is 15.3 million acres extending from east of Fort Smith, Ark., up the Arkansas River through the city of Tulsa to Arkansas City, Kan., North and east in Kansas to Emporia, then east to the Ozark Mountain area southeast of Kansas City, adn back south through Missouri and Arkansas to near Fort Smith.

Beside the cities and farmland, the area today includes lead, zinc and coal mining areas of the four states and oil and gas land in Oklahoma and Kansas.

A claim by the Osages that the land actually belonged to them has been established in past years. The January hearing – second involving the tribe-- is to set compensation for the Osages for their home and hunting grounds.

In an earlier suit that lasted 18 years, the Osages received $6.9 million for another 12 million acres in southern Missouri and northern Arkansas. The land, taken in another treaty, borders the present disputed land on the east.

Beofre 1825, the Osages were a small band of Indians who made their livelihood from hunting and farming. For about seven months of the year they hunted bufffalo and two months were spent hunting deer, bear and other small game. The remaining three months were spent at their villages where they raised vegetables and fruits.

Hunting campus and garden plots along the Arkansas River from a northern point near present Hutchinson, Kan., to the mouth of the Canadian River establish indications of Osage control of the Arkansas River in the area. They actually hunted as far west as the Oklahoma Panhandle but didn't live there sufficiently long to establish claim.

In a treaty of 1808, the government took the 12 million acres in Missouri and Arkansas, shoving the tribe westward. For the land, the Osages received $6.9 million after a suit that lasted 18 years.

That land extends from a line between Kansas City and Fort Smith eastward in the two states as far as Jefferson City, Mo.

In later treaties of 1818 and 1825, the government took the 15.3 million acres now in court. At that time they pushed the Osages into an area 50-by-30 miles in size in southeastern Kansas that eventually was sold for $1.25 an acre.

If and when a judgment is awarded, the congress of the tribe will decide how it is to be spent. It could go in a per capita settlement but there is support for using it in a tribal fund for long- range benefits.

Three Die In Traffic Accidents

A 14-year-old youth of Poplar Bluff was killed Wednesday while walking across highway 67 near the Poplar Bluff city limits, and two rural Kennett residents were killed today at 8 a.m. on a rural road near Kennett.

Donald Pruitt, 14 - year - old Poplar Bluff youth, was killed Wednesday at 5 p.m. on highway 67, 200 yards south of the Poplar Bluff city limits, as he crossed from the west to the east side of the highway.

He was struck by a 1965 Oldsmobile, driven by Theodore James Murphy, 24, Poplar Bluff, while driving north. The youth ran in front of the passing vehicle, the state patrol reported.

The body of the youth was taken to the Frank Cotrell Funeral Home in Poplar Bluff.

Donald Ray Firguson, 36, route two, Kennett, driver of a 1965 Pontiac and a passenger in the car, Iva Treat, 48, route two, Kennett, were killed on route EE in the Friendship community, near Kennett.

The bodies were taken to McDaniel Funeral Home in Kennett.

Injured in the accident was Omer Lemonds, 31, route two, who was treated at Dunklin County Memorial hospital in Kennett, for fractured ribs, and cuts on his face and head.

The patrol said the car was traveling north at high speed when the driver lose control, went off the road and struck a tree.

Nixon Offers Consumer Bill of Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon proposed today reorganization of the Federal Trade Commission and expansion of its powers as part of a program to benefit consumers.

Another proposal would establish a division of consumer protection in the Justice Department to support consumer interests in court and before government agencies.

In a special message to Congress, the President spelled out a "Buyer's Bill of Rights" which he said "will help provide greater personal freedom for individuals as well as better business for everyone engaged in trade."

The President's recommendations included revitalizing and expanding the Office of Consumer Affairs headed by Virginia Knauer, his special assistant in that field.

Other suggestions included:

—A law that would permit private citizens to seek combined damage suits against firms convicted of violating federal law concerning fraudulent and deceptive practices.

—Government review of product testing and release of the results of government studies of consumer products.

Hanoi Rejects U.S. Private Talk Appeal

PARIS (AP)-The United States called today for a restricted session of the Parris peace talks for next week "to break out of this sterile situation and promote serious negotiations." But the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong deldgations immediately turned it down.

Hanoi's ambassador called the proposal a "maneuver aimed at camouflaging the truth, to deceive public opinion on the United States refusal to and the war of aggression and withdraw all its troops from South Vietnam."

Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, in a brief statement to the 40th session of the peace conference, proposed that the principal spolesman of each delegation, accompanied by no more than three advisers, meet next Tuesday in a "new approach" to the deadlocked talks.

He suggested that there would be "no public record of what is said" at such restricted sessions "but we could agree on exactly what would be said to the press after each session."

However, the North Vietnamese source reported the Viet Cong's provisional revolutionary government of South Vietnam immediately turned down the proposal.

Mrs. Mguyen Thi Binh, the Viet Cong's foreign minister, said the Lodge move was aimed at "legalizing" the Saigon regime, avoiding a reply to Viet Cong demands for an end "to the U. S. aggression," and to "cover crimes committed by Americans" in South Vietnam.

She called for the United States to have private talks with the Viet Cong to settle the Vietnam war, a proposal previously rejected by the United States.

Lodge told the meeting: "We need a new approach to break out of this sterile situation and promote serious negotiations."

North Vietnamese Ambassador Xuan Thuy said that "in order to go straight to practical works" he was asking Lodge to answer two questions:

-When does the United States intend to completely withdraw its troops?

-When will the U. S. delegate start direct talks with the Viet Cong?

The United States has already rejected the North Vietnamese proposal to cut out the Saigon government from private talks, and has insisted upon a mutual withdrawal of all non-South Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam.

Lebanese Airport Raided Despite Peace Hope Rise

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arab guerrillas attacked Lebanon's new military airport at Klayat early today, supported by rockets, mortars and artillery fire from nearby Syria, the Lebanese government anounced.

Fighting also raged around the mountain town of Rashaya, where government forces were said to have beaten back another guerrilla attack on their outer defenses.

A connunique said a strong guerrilla force tried to occupy the village of Aiha, two miles from Rashaya, and the surrounding hills. Newsmen on the scene have reported the guerrillas already occupy Aiha, but the Lebanese army has not admitted this.

The new fighting came amid indications from Cairo that prospects for a peace agreement were improving. An Egyptian spokesman said Egypt had approved Lebanon's proposals for peace with the guerrillas, had agreed to mediate, and had invited guerrilla chief Yassir Arafat to Cairo for peace talks.

At Klayat, in north Lebanon about three miles from the Syrian border, the guerrillas were driven off after a 30-minute gun fight and suffered heavy losses, the Lebanese connumique said. It reported one building hit by a rocket, the runway slightly damaged and one soldier wounded.

Klayat was used by Lebanon's new Mirage jet fighters until they were moved to a less vulnerable base after the conflict with the guerrillas developed. The road to has been cut by Arabs in a refugee camp north of Tripoli, and the army has made no attempt to reopen it.

In the southern port of Sidon, another guerrilla force attacked an army checkpoint with grenades and machine guns and wounded one soldier, the communique said.

Beirut was quiet following another night of terrorist dynanite blasts.

Hassan Sabry el Kholy, a special representative of President Gamal Abdel Nasser, said the Lebanese government had agreed in principle to give Palestinian guerrillas "freedom of action within the country provided this does not contradict with Lebanon's security and sovereignty." The statement was distributed Wednesday night by Egypt's official Middle East News Agency.

El Kholy's statement said Egyptian representatives reached agreement with a Lebanese delegation headed by Army Chief of Staff Emile Bustany on the basis of proposals submitted by Gen. Bustany.

The Egyptian statement gave no indication of what these proposals were. But there has been speculation the Beirut government would agree to let the guerrillas alone if they confined themselves to the arid, sparsely populated area in southeast Lebanon which they have been using as a base for raids on Israel.

The Lebanese hope that with such an arrangement, Israeli retaliatory air and artillery attacks would be confined to this guerrilla area and that the rest of the country could go about business as usual.

It was not known whether Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization, had agreed to join the talks. Arafat was in Damascus.

There was no official comment from the Lebanese on the Egyptian announcement, but Ambassador Halim Abou Ezzidin said the talks Wednesday "achieved great progress and were conducted in a friendly, understanding and brotherly atmosphere."

Al Fatah, the main guerrilla group in the PLO, announced in Amman that it had accepted a Lebanese proposal for a 24-hour halt in hostilities in Lebanon, but Beirut Radio denied Wednesday night that the government had made such a proposal.

The government indicated, however, that it considered a cease - fire in effect, saying: "We have stated repeatedly that we only fire in self-defense and when they fire against us."

Mexicans Enter U.S. Illegally

Two Mexican wetbacks were apprehended yesterday by police at 3:30 p.m. in connection with an illegal entry into the United States. They are being held for immigration authorities.

Jesus Zamora, 19, and Jaime Hernandez Mendez, 32, told police through a Spanish teacher interpreter that they entered the United States about six days ago by swimming the Rio Grande river near Laredo Tex., Mexican man promised to take them to Chicago and get them a job.

They renched the Sikeston area Monday where their car, a 1963 Ford station wagon, caught fire east of the Holiday Inn on highway 60. The driver ran off and left them.

They told Police Chief Arthur Bruce that "we came to U. S. to get rich. More money in this country."

It is believed by police that there were four other wetbacks with the two who caught a bus to Chicago. The unidentified Mexican driver is believed to have caught a ride to Cairo.

American Nobel Victor For Physics

STOCKHOLM (AP) - The 1969 Nobel Prize in physics was awarded today to an American, while the chemistry prize went jointly to a Briton and a Norwegian.

The Royal Swedish Academy of Science announced the physics prize goes to Prof. Murray Gell-Mann, 40, of the California Institute of Technology for his "contributions and discoveries concerning the classification of elementary particles and their interactions."

The chemistry prize was awarded to Prof. Derk H. R. Barton, 51, of the Imperial College of Science and Technology in London and Prof. Odd Hassel, 72, of the University of Oslo "for their work to develop and apply the concept of confirmation in chemistry."

The prizes this year carry a record cash award of $72,800.

The awards today give the United States two of the three Nobel prizes for science. The prize in medicine was awarded earlier this month to three Americans for basic virus research. Last year the United States made a clean sweep of the three scientific prizes.

Gell - Mann, born in New York in 1929, has been the leading theorist in elementary particle research for the last 15 years, the Royal Swedish Academy of Science said.

The 1968 physics award also went to an American - Prof. Luis Alvarez - for elementary particle research.

Barton and Hassel will share equally the $72,800 in prize money.

Hassel has conducted fundamental studies of a hydrocarbon called cyclohexane and related compounds.

Barton has been a visiting professor at Harvard University and at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Tax Exemption Hike Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee rejected today by a tie 8-8 vote a proposal to increase the personal income tax exemption, Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., reported.

It then turned to consideration of other forms of relief for individual income taxpayers.

Gore told reporters that the key vote came on his proposal to raise the personal exemption from the present $600 to $900.

This was a compromise from his original suggestion, which was for a boost to $1,000.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., the committee chairman, has predicted his panel will vote over-all individual income tax relief approximating the total of $9.2 billion in the House version of the tax legislation.

Hickel Presses For Stepped-up Pollution Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel said Wednesday he is pressing Kansas, Missouri and Illinois to step up efforts to control water pollution.

Hickel made the statement in announcing an order to the state of Iowa to provide secondary treatment of sewage entering the Mississippi and Missouri rivers. He set Dec. 31, 1973 as the deadline for Iowa's compliance.

It is the first time the Interior Department has moved to take the question out of state hands and set federal standards.

Carl L. Klein, assistant secretary for water quality, said, "Before taking the step of publishing standards for Iowa, we exhausted all our other remedies under the law."

Hickel said setting standards for Iowa was part of a plant to clean up the Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio rivers.

"We are moving across the Mississippi," Hickel said, "to ask Illinois to update its secondary treatment target date for Rock Island, Moline, and East Moline, East St. Louis and Chester.

Court Outlaws Clause Enabling Schools to Delay Desegregation

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court has stripped southern school officials of their favorite legal crutch and ordered an end to delay in the desegregation of public schools.

The unanimous decision, given Wednesday night in a Mississippi case, said the "all deliberate speed" doctrine no longer may serve as a cover for the continued operation of segregated schools.

"The obligation of every school district is to terminate dual school systems at once and to operate now and hereafter only unitary schools," declared the decision, first under chief Justice Warren E. Burger.

The ruling was a stunning setback to the Nixon administration, which had maintained education officials needed more time to "validate" desegragation plans for schools in Mississippi.

Its import extends far beyond the state, reaching wherever racially separate schools remain as a vestige of segregation laws the court began declaring unconstitutional in 1954.

Beyond that, the decision could save as a platform for legal attacks in the North. Though most northern school segragation is a result of neighborhood housing patters. The ruling's effect in these situations was not immediately clear.

The court acted with urgent dispatch. It had conducted its hearing only last Thursday and issued its ruling during a recess, the first such move in nearly five years.

The opinion was unsigned, though some of the phrases bore the unmistakeable imprint of Justice Hugo L. Black, who in an interim ruling last month recommended a final uprooting of the "all deliberate speed" doctrine.

The decision requires the U. S. Court of Appeals in New Orleans to order Mississippi school districts to "begin immediately to operate as unitary school systems within which no person is to be effectively excluded from any school because of race or color."

The appeals court is to use as a vehicle desegregation plans that would have taken effect Sept. 1 had not the administration counseled delay until Dec. 1.

"Modifications" may be made, the Supreme Court said, so long as they "insure a totally unitary school system for all eligible pupils without regard to race or color."

The school officials are free to lodge whatever objections they may have, the high court said, but these are to be considered by federal judges in Mississippi after - and not before - the plans are put into effect.

The decision contained a stinging rebuke to the court in New Orleans for accepting the administration's advice last August and postponing further desegregation.

"The court of appeals," the high court said, "should have denied all motions for additional time because continued operation of segregated schools under a standard of allowing 'all deliberate speed' for desegregation is no longer constitutionally permissible."

The decision cited 1964 and 1968 rulings that called for immediate desegregation of Virginia schools.

The concept of "all deliberate speed" was set forth by the Supreme Court in 1955. Recognizing that school officials faced massive administrative difficulties in abandoning racially separate schools, the court said they should act, nonetheless, with "all deliberate speed."

Following the ruling, the Justice Department maintained a cautious stance, saying the government's future course depended on what the New Orleans appeals court did to implement the ruling.

Sen. James O, Eastland, D-Miss., said "the decision spells disaster for public education in Mississippi and many parts of the South."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said the court "has allowed ideological passion to overcome reason in this tragic ruling."

John C. Satterfield of Yazoo City, the former American Bar Association president who argued the case of Mississippi, said if Health, Education and Welfare plans, as submitted, are put into effect immediately that could destroy many of the school systems.

Lower Vote Age Drive Underway

James Green has been appointed 10th congressional district chairman for a drive to lower the voting age from 21 to 18. Ralph Pfremmer, Columbia president of the Missouri Young Democrats, Inc., announced the appointment Wednesday.

The statewide effort was launched in an attempt to the place the lower voting age proposal on the ballot in November of 1970.

Pfremmer said 5,000 petitions have been printed and distributed to points in the state where Young Democrats will seek signatures to force a statewide election.

Members of the Sikeston Community Teachers Association refused Wednesday to endorse a motion approving the lower voting age. About 75 per cent of those present voted against the measure.

In a telephone survey made this morning 20 persons living in Sikeston, 12 endorsed lowering the age.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
A CRIME SURCHARGE

A restaurant chain in Washington, D. C. is charging customers a five - cents - per - check surcharge in an effort to "try to get back our losses and to try to impress on the neighborhood that something should be done to stop robberies." The policy is in effect in only one of the chain's eight D. C. area locations. This one cafe was hit by armed bandits twice in just one month.

The move by the chain is just one of many instances in which businesses are being forced by criminals to take measures to protect themselves and their employees from the rash of holdups in many parts of Washington. A chain of dairy stores has become a favorite target for stickups; it has closed at least two stores because of robberies. One of its outlets was held up twelve times and another four times.

The local anti-poverty agency is protesting and picketing the restaurant, and the City Council is trying to come up with an alternative for the dairy chain that would permit the stores to reopen. We wonder if they will eventually conceive means of supplying protection to the stores. It doesn't appear to have occurred to the Council that the best way to stop the closing of stores is to provide adequate police protection.

Perhaps the Council will figure that if they add a surcharge of five - cents - per - check to all restaurant bills they could use the proceeds to hire guards for the restaurants. Of course this could not be done without congressional approval. Therefore there would have to be debate on the problem on Capitol Hill. This, judging by the rate of speed at which some of the pending anti-crime legislation is being shuffled around in various committees, should be accomplished by the year 2000. Perhaps the criminals would agree to a moratorium while the bill is pending. They could be placed on the relief rolls while they wait.

Then the stores could reopen with a temporary emergency tax that would be maintained for several decades until a new generation of holdup artists begin the cycle once more. Eventually, of course, someone may even come up with a unique idea - like tough law enforcement and strict mandatory penalties for use of a deadly weapon in committing a crime. But we won't hold our breath.

LAYING IT ON THE LINE FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS

Man bit dog the other day. Or more accurately, a teacher lectured students on how they should conduct themselves academically -- which is something of a switch.

"The task of students is to learn and to be instructed, not to decide what courses will be taught and who will teach them, and not to invest the university's money," says philosopher Ernest van den Hag of New York University, addressing a freshman convocation at DePauw University in Indiana.

Other blunt advice offered by van den Haag:

"Students are not in a position to know what they should be taught; if they do know what they should be taught, then they have what they came for and they should leave the university."

"The proper task of a university is teaching you to reflect, to analyze and see what actions and alternatives are available and should be taken. The place is not committed to action, but to prepare you to make future commitments."

"The way to learn about poverty is not to be indignant but to study economics. If you are interested in preventing war, it doesn't mean a thing to 'make love, nor war,' but it does mean something to learn how to prevent war by studying in political science and history."

Perhaps the bluntest statement of all is van den Haag's contention that the reason higher education is irrelevant to so many college students today is because "so many students themselves are irrelevant to college."

Americans are in the midst of an "educational escalation," he says. They erroneously believe that you can do anything better if you have more and more academic preparation. Hence the new waves of college students, half of whom shouldn't be in college.

Van den Haag says he favors a law that not only outlaws discrimination on the basis of sex, race and religion, but also on the amount of one's education.

"Discrimination on the basis of educational degree should be prohibited unless it can be shown it is relevant to the work required to be done."

Interestingly enough, the professor was not jeered but was, in fact, enthusiastically applauded by his student listeners.

THE SWEET SCENT OF $$$

In the days before the telephone rang off the tradition of letter-writing, a prudent young lady kept her stationery well-sacheted to perpetuate the romantic intent of her correspondent. A young man finding a dainty envelope in the day's mail would hole it to his nostrils and breathe the familiar attar designed to conjure up his lovely's feminity. There may be a few sweet young things who continue to use that ploy. But the National Geographic Society reports that the magic spell of perfume now is being enlisted by big business to prompt dollar signs in the till instead of sweet nothings in the heart.

Aromatic advertisements on impregnated paper plug a product. Fragrances are instilled in floor waxes, fabrics and lighter fluids to make the consumer happier while using them. And once a customer is sold on his purchase, the seller may soften the billing blow by sending statements out in scented envelopes.

One odor may be used to mask another less pleasant. Fertilizers, for instance, can be rendered completely odorless. But for the sake of farmers conditioned by tradition, scientists add a whiff of "barnyard" to make them feel more at home with the chemical. There is a spray which gives a new, expensive bouquet to used cars and a perfume to make Rover's aroma less dog-like.

As a result of the growing demand for industrial perfume, modern alchemy must produce synthetics to replace the geniune, but costly real thing. Thus, these days, one can't trust his sense of smell to tell him the truth any more. That blue envelope reeking of violet may turn out to be a summons instead of a billet doux. It's getting so we even question that old proboscis expert,. Jimmy Durante, who has asserted for years, "The nose knows."

ELECTIONS BACKED BALAGUER

In municipal elections held throughout the Dominican Republic, in May, the Dominican people demonstrated their confidence in the party of President Joaquin Balaguer, underscoring the wisdom of United States policy in that country.

When the United States helped the Dominican people overthrow the leftist regime of Juan Bosch in 1965, the Communists accused us of "imperialism," of thwarting the will of the people. Yet it is now obvious that Balaguer, who came into power at that time, has the full support of his countrymen.

During the municipal elections, Balaguer was careful to make no campaign speeches or endorsements, not wanting to subject the people to pressure of any kind from the national government. No government in the hands of Communists or Socialists would have followed a similar policy.

The elections themselves were remarkable for their honesty and the absence of any widespread violence. Over one million voters, a very heavy turnout, cast their ballots. They did this in spite of appeals of Bosch and other leftists that the people boycott the election.

Through the democratic progress, the Dominican people gave President Balaguer and his Reformista Party an overwhelming vote of confidence. The Reformistas and pro-Balaguer independents won an estimated 90 percent of the mayoralties and city council seats involved in the election. It is clear that Bosch's influence is extremely weak.

The recent election shows that the Dominicans approve the results of U. S. action in their country. Despite the propaganda cries of the Communists, our policy in the Dominican Republic directly benefitted the people.

NEW YORK (AP) — One of life's little ordeals today is trying to act like a perfect gentleman.

Gallantry was a great thing when knighthood was in flower, but it is more of a strain than most male flesh can bear in these seedy times.

The decay of male courtesy is caused by two factors: (1) There isn't room or time for old-fashioned courtesy in a crowded civilization, and (2) the changing nature of the chief object of gallantry—woman herself.

Suppose, for example, he decides to take off his hat and make a sweeping bow as a lady enters a packed office elevator. All he manages to do is to scatter dandruff over 12 people and win glares of hatred from every other man in the elevator. The lady, if she notices him at all, thinks of him as some kind of a nut.

Suppose, remembering his daily good deed as a Boy Scout, he makes it a policy to help across the street every little old lady he meets.

If a guy touches the arm of a little old lady with the intention of assisting her through the traffic, she is likely to belt him in the face with a 30-pound handbag and yell:

"Help! Police! I'm being mugged!"

That points up the second problem of male gallantry—the changing attitude toward it by women.

Women theoretically still like for men to be chivalrous and knightly. But when a man does treat her with a flourish of good manners, she either is made uneasy or misunderstands his motives.

Suppose a husband decides he will quit acting like a bum toward his wife and from now on he'll get up to his feet every time she enters or leaves the living room.

What happens? Well, of course for the first few days he has her completely mystified. She wonders what he is up to. Finally, a gleam of comprehension enters her eyes.

"You sure had me puzzled, Buster," she says. "But I finally figured it out—you're taking some new kind of yoga exercise. Shall we do it together? I need to lose some weight, too."

It never even occurs to her that the poor dolt she married is only trying to be a gentleman.

If a guy helps a lady struggle into a heavy coat, she is sure he must be some kind of a sex maniac with a feish for fabrics.

So what profiteth it a man to be a perfect gentleman anymore, since he so seldom meets a perfect lady to be a perfect gentleman to? If he doesn't get the credit, why take the trouble?

It's far easier for a man to forget the antique graces of yesterday and to treat women as if they were men which, according to some statistics, 66 per cent of them secretly would rather be anyway.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--Life magazine has accused Speacker John McCormack, third in line of succession and second in power to the President, of conscious participation in the political fixes that were arranged by his suspended aide, Martin Sweig, for five percenter Nathan Voloshen.

My own investigation has confirmed that the craggy, congenial McCormack, a product of South Boston's "Last Hurrah" politics, would cheerfully fix anything from a traffic ticket to a government contract for a friend or constituent. That's how the game is played in the scrubby precincts that have kept McCormack in Congress for 41 years.

But I am convinced that the old man has never taken a penny for his political favors. He is an old-fashioned patriot and puritan, whose conduct has been governed by a strong Catholic conscience. Indeed, he has been overheard in the Speaker's chair mumbling prayers to the Virgin Mary.

Life's crack investigative team was alerted to the Sweig-Voloshen operations by a former Time-Life employee who became associated with Voloshen. While the Life sleuths carefully checked out the specific fixes reported by their informant, I sent legman David Detweiler into McCormack's office last August with specific instructions to watch Sweig.

INSIDE SWEIG'S OFFICE

Posing as a student, Detweiler became a fixture in the office and, over the weeks, obtained an insight into its operations. Sweig took calls from all over the country, handling each one with a confidential, almost furtive air. During a typical 30-minute period, he talked to a young reservist who wanted a transfer, a corporation president seeking inside information about his company's case before a federal agency, a top Democrat checking up on an attorney supposedly close to the Speaker.

Not only Sweig but the Speaker himself always gave top priority to helping the people who called or wrote for favors. Once McCormack chewed out a new assistant who had turned down a request to fix a traffic ticket. The new man drafted a letter explaining why it is immoral to fix traffic tickets and signed the Speaker's name to it. When McCormack learned about the letter he blew his stack.

For several weeks, however, I tried to find someone who had paid off the Speaker for a favor. I sought out non-Boston businessmen, in particular,who had received help from McCormack. Invariably, they had offered him the customary campaign contribution. But he had turned them all down, explaining he had no opposition and, therefore, no campaign expenses.

MCCORMACK AND TRUJILLO

One Washington, D. C., businessman told me he had pressed McCormack to take the money and distribute it to other deserving Democrats. Two weeks later the businessman got half of his money back and a letter listing how the other half had been distributed. Every Democrat on the list also wrote the businessman, thanking him for the donation.

The most serious charge against the Speaker was raised by Gen. Arturo Espaillat, a former crony of the late Dominican Dictator Rafael Trujillo. In his book, "The Last Caesar," Espaillat wrote that "a very prominent U. S. Congressman" had written to Trujillo on plain white paper from Boston and had collected ''birdseed'' (Espaillat's euphemism for money) from the dictator. The golden "birdseed" allegedly was delivered to McCormack "through his Washington administrative assistant."

I was unable to reach Espaillat, who is in hiding from his political foes. But sources close to him identified the prominent Congressman as McCormack. I made a thorough check in Washington, Boston and the Dominican Republic. I could find absolutely no evidence that the Speaker ever received money from Trujillo. I am convinced that, if any "birdseed" was sprinkled around McCormack's office, the old man never knew about it.

AGNEW ECHOES NIXON

Vice President Spiro Agnew, whose attacks upon the doves have drawn a withering return fire, simply has repeated in public what he has heard his boss say in private. For in the backrooms of the White House, President Nixon has been talking like a hawk.

He has made caustic cracks abyut what he calls "the cut-and-run" boys. He has also reiterated privately his public statement ahat he isn't going to let the anti-war clamor influence his decisions on Vietnam.

"What counts is not the weight of the mail," he has told his advisers, "but the weight of the evidence."

In these strategy sessions he has accused the sponsors of the pull-out resolutions not only of undercutting the Paris negotiations but of prolonging the war.

"The sponsors of these resolutions," he has grumped, "should also tell our negotiators in Paris to come home. Any chance for negotiations is destroyed if the enemy believes the pull-out resolutions."

Secretary of State Bill Rogers has suggested a showdown on the proposal of setting an arbitrary date for a final American withdrawal from Vietnam. He wanted to know whether the votes could be mustered to defeat a pull-out resolution.

The President felt the resolution could be easily defeated in the House but might run into trouble in the Senate. He toyed with the idea of circulating a "United Front Letter" in Congress. He thought as many as 300 signatures could be obtained to a letter endorsing his handling of the Vietnam negotiations.

He wished the American people would understand, he told his advisors, that "we have only one President--only one negotiator--at a time."

H.L. Hunt Says

REFORM, NOT DESTRUCTION

The proposed constitutional amendment to allow for direct election of the President, recently approved by the House of Representatives, would destroy the electoral college system, not reform it in a constructive way. Adoption of this amendment would move Republic USA a long way from a union of states. It would mean abandoning the federal structure in one of its most important manifestations, the election of a President.

A final decision is yet to be made and may not come for many months, perhaps even several years. First, the Senate will have to take up the proposed amendment. If the Senate acts there is every likelihood that a conference committee of the two houses of Congress will be necessary. Some features of the House version probably will never be accepted by the Senate.

Even after final action by Congress, the amendment would have to be submitted to the 50 state legislatures and three-fourths of them ratify the amendment accepting a loss of Presidential voting power, or we would have only the present electoral system.

So there is still time to reform, not destroy, the electoral college. The best way to do this is offered by the district plan. A presidential candidate would win one electoral vote for each congressional district he carried, plus two votes for each state he carried. This plan would apply to the presidency the same basic plan used to elect members of Congress. The federal system established by the Founders of Freedom would be preserved. Bloc voting and big city machines would become of less importance in the election of a President. The advantages of the district plan deserve careful consideration by the Senate. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

LABOR WARS AGAIN:

GE Walkout Is First Post (Vietnam) - War Strike

New York: -- This walkout at General Electric -- makers of almost everything from lamps to moon landings -- is the first postwar strike. Meaning, of course, the Vietnam war.

There is no doubt that the economic scientists (and one must assume they do exist) in the executive suites of labor, management and government, believe it's all over -- but the shooting and shouting -- and that this nation is heading into a recession.

Labor's analysts say so in all their round table skull sessions. Business leaders grimly watch the development of price resistance. And President Nixon's closest advisers, in cofidential conversations, say that the "inflation psychology" has been pricked.

So labor has woven a powerful Coordinated Bargaining Committee -- which exists in some 70 other industries -- for a phalanx attack on the corporation it has painted as a fire-breathing dragon, GE.

Marching with this labor legion along with the 20 - year - old International Union of Electrical Workers (IUE) is the Alliance For Labor Action -- namely the United Auto Workers and the Teamsters. Also the United Electrical Workers still led by the left-wingers who were ousted from the old CIO on evidence submitted by a labor lawyer (circa 1949), Arthur J. Goldberg.

The issues, therefore, are simple. The stakes are enormous.

The coalition of 13 national unions wants to lock its 147,000 GE employes into a 30-month contract which, depending on the computer you use, can cost half a billion dollars in the final year. Right now the legion demands (over the length of the contract) 90 cents an hour across the board, 50 cents for skilled workers, some 30 per cent of the force at GE installations in 133 cities, a cost - of - living clause which appears to include a retroactive 12½ per cent, and special shifts in a myriad of benefits and adjustments.

The company has countered with a basic $8-a-week offer across the board plus ad additionaly pay increase up to 45 cents and upwardly revised benefits -- for the first year.

Then, says GE to the labor coalition, if you don't like our next offer you can strike at the end of the first year. And if you don't like our offer the following year, strike again. But why now? Why lock us in, says the company in effect. Who knows what will happen? Keep your people working at what is the best offer we have ever made -- and which is competitive with other wages and industrial contracts.

To strike now, says GE, "is the wrong strike at the wrong time for the wrong reason."

Today it's all very peaceful -- and not like the days of former IUE President James Carey who told the company's chief negotiator, Philip Moore, now a vice president, that he (Carey) would pull Moore's arm out of its shoulder socket and then start stripping off his fingers from the nails up if GE didn't yield. The new union president, 51-year-old Paul J. Jennings, a militant and a member of the Lindsay Liberal Party, speaks more siftly -- except when he and his legal counsel talk about President Nixon and Labor Secretary Shultz.

Reason is that the labor coalition is aware that Messrs. Nixon and Shultz are not alarmed by this national stoppage in the electrical supply industry.

Secretary Shultz's attitude today can be wrapped up as follows:

As the Late labor historian and economist Sumner Slitchter said, the trouble with the American economy at times is that there are not enough strikes. Strikes are one of the ways that the economy readjusts and rearranges itself. Prof. Shultz appears to think so -- also that such stoppages put backbone into industry especially when the moment has come when its back is up against the price wall and consumer resistance is felt. Thus industry simply can't be forced into giving labor, in any field, whatever it demands whenever contracts expire. The public is resisting now. Therefore this puts pressure oprices. Thus you have tension between labor's demands and resistance of the consumer. The tension hits the bargaining table. When this tension gets taught enough there is a stand off, a deadlock, a strike, and finally the accommodation between the price of labor and the prices to the public.

Secretary Shultz, like all of us, knew the GE strike was coming and that it will probably last a long time. But he has no plans to do anything but keep himself and President Nixon informed.

This has angered the coalition's chiefs. And one of the two men who make its policy said on the first day of the strike: "Who does Shultz think he is? He's supposed to be Secretary of Labor. His charter says he's supposed to be assisting the working man. From what I hear, he should be Secretary of Commerce."

So the basic issue is who gets what and what happens to prices and demands when thy shooting ends and we go back to what once was called normalcy.

Furthermore, all the powerful unions are waiting in the wings. They know that they once had to try to smash U. S. Steel to get at the rest of industry. Then came General Motors' turn (as it will again in '70). And now the General Electric Co. is out front taking the assault because it is taking President Nixon's word that he's going to crack inflation, and taking Prof. Shultz's word, that the government will stay neutral while economics adjusts itself, and taking everybody's word that there will be a recession.

The war over there appears to be over. The labor - management wars have begun. It's 1946 all over again.

But this time, Harry Truman, John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson are not part of the Joint Chiefs of Labor's staff.

These Problems With Mothers-in-law...

Dear Ann Landers: Anyone who reads your column could guess you have a daughter and not a son. And it's too bad. If you had a son who was married to a selfish, spoiled girl -- then maybe you could give your readers some decent advice.

I'm sick and tired of letters in your column that makes the mother-in-law look like some kind of a terrible monster. Whenever you print a letter knocking a mother-in-law, I receive two copies in the mail the very next day. One I'm sure is from my daughter-in-law and the other one has got to be from her miserable mother.

I can't tell you how much it hurts a mother's heart to raise a boy and then hand him over to a lazy, good-for-nothing who uses plastic tablecloths and buys ready made potato salad. You should live to be a hundred, Ann Landers, and never know from these things. --- Miami

Dear Miami: Thanks for your letter. I hope you enjoy the next one.

Dear Ann landers: I hope MY mother-in-law doesn't think I wrote that terrible letter from the pregnant gal who wants to take care of her own baby when she comes home from the hospital.

When my first two babies were born, my mother-in-law was like an angel from heaven. Thanks to her I got two glorious weeks of rest. It was pure joy. My husband had wonderful meals, my older kids were bathed, fed and even entertained by grandma. I couldn't have had a better vacation on the French Riviera. When she left I cried.

It burns me up when I read those mean anti-mother-in-law letters in your column. And do you notice it is always the boy's mother who gets put down? I wish you'd print my letter, Ann. There are some pretty wonderful mothers-in-law around. Mine lives in El Paso. -- Sign Me Blessed.

Dear Blessed: I've got one too. Mine lives in Detroit. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: It would seem to me that the absence of ash trays in a home would indicate that the hostess would prefer that her guests not smoke. What should she do when they don't take the hint?

(1) Refuse to get jar lids when guests request ash trays after having been told you do not own any?

(2) Post up "No Smoking" signs in the living room?

(3) When inviting guests tell them in advance that if they can't live without a cigarette for a few hours to stay home?

(4) Simply give up the idea of entertaining large numbers of friends? Please answer in paper. I'm sure I'm not the only one with the problem. --- Ruth B. A.

Dear Ruth: People who have good taste do not ask for jar lids when they see no ash trays. They assume that the hostess does not want her guests to smoke and they abstain.

A hostess who posts No Smoking signs in her living room and tells people to stay home if they can't live without a cigarette, will not be bothered with "large numbers of guests." She will have OTHER problems.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send for her booklet "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

But school officials said they would meet with Temple and his wife before taking any action.

Big Red Begins Home Stand Sunday

CAPE GIRARDEAU - One would expect Southeast Missouri State College head coach Tom Thrower to be prouder than a brand new father of his team's 32-24 come - from - behind victory Saturday over previously - unbeaten University of Missouri - Rolla.

Thrower, to be sure, was quite happy about the outcome of the football game, but he appeared Monday to be more concerned about the overall health of the Indians.

"What we really need is an open date," he said, explaining that several members of the squad got banged up pretty well by the rugged Miner defense.

In fact, one player, Tim Luckett of Bruceville, Ind., a defensive mainstay, sustained a knee injury and may be lost for the season. Thrower said the big 250-pound junior tackle had not seen a doctor yet, but commented, "We feel almost certain that he's out for the year."

Defensive line coach Jim Lohr added with a sigh, "I sure hate to lose Luckett."

Another player injured in Saturday's game was sophomore Bill Brown, a 190-pound defensive end. Thrower said it is quite possible that Brown will not be healed in time to play Saturday against Southwest Missouri State College of Springfield.

The Indians tangle with the hapless Bears in Springfield at 1:30 p.m. Southwest Missouri State. under new head coach Don "Red" Cross, is winless in six outings.

Against Rolla, the Indians found themselves trailing 17-0 midway through the second period. About that time, however, Thrower's charges got off a sustained scoring drive which made the score 17-7 at halftime.

Then, on the first series of downs after the second half kickoff, the Miners fumbled on their own 25 and Southeast Missouri State recovered, taking the ball in for a score several plays later.

Thrower indicated the fumble recovery was a key play in the victory. "After we scored, we were only three points down," he said. "This enabled us to keep the momentum we had gained about the middle of the second quarter and go on to win the game."

The offensive backfield star of the contest was senior halfback Bruce Hoffman of Park Forest, Ill. "Hoffman had the best game of his life," praised Thrower. "He did all right running (23 carries for 94 yards and two touchdowns) and his blocking was something else. He as really laying those ends out."

Other Indians to draw the praise of the coaching staff were junior Ron Helms of St. Louis, senior Steve Johnson of Granite City, Ill., senior Ken Joggerst of Ste. Genevieve, and sophomore Gene Figge of Ste. Genevieve.

Southeast Missouri State is now tied for the MIAA lead with Northeast Missouri State College of Kirksville, which knocked off Central Missouri State College of Warrensburg last Saturday. Both teams have 2-0 conference marks. Southeast Missouri State's overall slate is 5-1.

Seaver Top N.L. Hurler

NEW YORK (AP) - Pitching for the New York Mets has always been an experience, but never much of an honor until Tom Seaver came along.

Two years ago, Seaver won himself Rookie of the Year honors in the National League and now he has been selected the winner of the Cy Young Award as the league's best pitcher in 1969.

But Seaver represents more than just an honor or an award for the Mets; he represents the miraculous reversal for he was born out of a Mets' past that includes such master losers as Roger Craig, Craig Anderson, Jack Fisher, Jay Hook, Al Jackson, Galen Cisco and Tracy Stallard.

Only eight seasons ago when the Mets were created they lost a record 120 games and missed by a hair of becoming the first team with three 20-game losers.

The first year, pitching for baseball's worst team ever, Craig lost 24 games, Jackson 20 and Hook 19. Anderson, who didn't pitch much during the final month, took 17 defeats.

Craig went on to lose 22 and next year, 18 of them in a row, and Stallard lost 20 and Cisco 19 in 1964.

Fisher was big loser the next three years with 24, 14 and 18.

And the hitting and fielding were just as bad, making it easy for a pitcher to lose 20.

Indians Chiefs Check Injuries; Look Ahead

ST. LOUIS -- The "month of Sundays" has arrived.

There are five of 'em during November, and the Cardinals are home for four -- dividing visits by New Orleans, New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh with a trip to Detroit.

New Orleans opens the month this week at Busch Memorial Satdium in a 1:05 p.m. (CST) game.

The Big Red rebounded with a last - minute drive to gain a 21-21 tie at Cleveland last week as Charley Johnson threw for 306 yards and John Gilliam gained 192 yards on only four receptions, three for touchdowns.

Gilliam, who scored on plays of 84, 75 and 15 yards, now has had two super - yardage games this season. The fleet wide receiver from South Carolina State rolled up 197 yards on 10 catches against Pittsburgh earlier in the season.

The tie left the Cardinals with a 2-3-1 record, still two games behind the Browns, who now are 4-1-1. It also continued the Cardinal dominance over Blanton Collier and the Browns at Cleveland. Since Collier became head coach of the Browns in 1963, the Cardinals show a 4-1-2 slate, easily the best record of any regular visitor to Municipal Stadium.

New Orleans, which battled Philadelphia before bowing, 13-10, last week, is winless in six starts this season, and has an 0-3 career record against the Cardinals. The Big Red won here, 31-20 in 1967 and 31-17 last year, and squeezed out a 21-20 triumph in New Orleans last season.

Jamie Rivers was a hero in both wins over the Saints last year. He blocked a field goal attempt on the final play of the first game to save the victory, then smelled out a fake field goal and dumped Dave Whitsell for a loss in the second game, keeping momentum on the side of the Big Red. The other hero in the first game was Chuck Latourette, who returned a punt for the first score and set an NFL record for punt returns.

The Southern Illinois University Maching Salukis will provide halftime entertainment against New Orleans, and the Golden Eagles of Southeast Missouri State will perform against New York on November 9, a game which starts at 3:05 p.m.

BIG RED NOTES: Charley Johnson's next touchdown pass will be the 100th of his professional career ... His first one was against Washington on October 14, 1962 ... Johnson's 306 yards and the Cardinals' total of 445 was the biggest since Johnson threw for 310 and the Big Red rolled up 489 in a 49-13 rout of the Browns ... John Roland's 56-yard day gives him 2213 for his career, sixth among all Cardinal running backs ... Gilliam's 192 yards is the first - best one - game performance, and his earlier day of 197 is fourth ... Sonny Randle's 256 against New York in 1962 leads the team ... Linebacker Dave Meggyesy and place kicker Jim Bakken will celebrate birthdays over the weekend, with Meggyesy reaching 28 on Saturday and Bakken becoming 20 on Sunday ...

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

This year school nurses have conducted a teamwork project in vision and hearing testing of all elementary youngsters. This screening process includes: tests to identify children with visual difficulties and/or hearing losses. When defects are discovered,the parents are notified in order that they may refer the child to their doctor for the necessary treatment. It is hoped that this will be done and that the defect can be corrected before they interfere with the child's progress in school. Mrs. Rachelle Jacob, Supervisor of the school nurses, has informed us that many mothers have assisted the nurses in the various schools and have been of invaluable help in accomplishing the screening.

It is our desire, as well as that of Mrs. Jacob and all the school nurses, to express our thanks to all of these volunteers. Their willingness to assist is most appreciated.

School will be dismissed one hour early next Wednesday, November 5, in order that teachers may leave for St. Louis to attend the state teachers meeting on Thursday and Friday. Normal dismissal time would result in most of them getting into St. Louis rather late, hence the early dismissal. Parents are advised to make whatever arrangements that are necessary because of the change in dismissal time.

Our Board of Education maintains one of the broadest Manpower Development Training Act programs in the State of Missouri. Programs recently funded for the fiscal year 1970, in Multi- Occupation includes: basic education; automotive services; agri-business; food services, heating and refrigeration; machine operator; health services; welding; clerk general office and building trades and maintenance.

This program provides job training for previously unemployed or underemployed individuals with insufficient skills to get and hold a job. A very large majority of those who have previously completed the various training programs have found jobs and are now employed. In fact, 86% of past graduates are job holders. Thus people who were on some sort of support program or dole, usually supported by the taxpayer, are now themselves taxpayers and, more importantly, are making their own way and supporting their families.

Bill Sikes is in charge of the Manpower Program here.

Due to the heavy emphasis on science and technology during the current decade it has been difficult to keep the total educational program in proper balance. By that we mean the national interest in and the popularity of scientific and technical areas have caused Congress and state legislatures to be more concerned with scientific and technical education than perhaps they are in other areas. Consequently, there must be a studied effort on the part of boards of education, administration and faculty to keep all subject matter areas in reasonable balance.

While it is important that students learn about science and technology, as certainly they will live in a scientific and technically oriented world, it is very necessary that they know how to communicate. They should read widely, be able to deal effectively with numbers and know something about the history of mankind and how man relates to his total environment. They need to know how to make a living but at the same time it is equally important that they recognize their responsibilities to their fellow man and to the society in which they exist; to appreciate all mankind and their environment, by living full and satisfying lives through knowing about and participating in the cultural activities such as music, the various other fine arts, in fact a wide variety of leisure time activities, that can make life more worthwhile.

Consequently, our Board of Education thinks it is important, to maintain the current balance of courses and activities that will give every youngster the opportunity for a full and well-rounded education. We certainly concur.

POLLY'S POINTERS

One Does, One Doesn't Iron Nylon Curtains

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Frieda can get the wrinkles out of her nylon curtains or garments by spraying lightly with spray starch and then pressing with a warm iron.—MRS. M. L.

DEAR GIRLS—Surely Frieda has not had as much trouble getting the wrinkles out of her nylon curtains as I had getting some in a nylon panel so I could test this starch treatment. By tying it in knots, washing and leaving it to dry so-tied, I finally acquired some and the cure was great. —POLLY

DEAR POLLY and Frieda—I never have to use an iron on my nylon curtains and I never have any wrinkles by washing them as follows: I fold two panels together and keep folding them until they will fit in the sink or tub. Straighten out any folds or wrinkles as you fold. I then soak them in a mild, warm detergent for 10 minutes and use my flat hand as a plunger to push them up and down. If necessary, the soapy washing can be repeated. When the dirt is all out, they are laid, still folded on the drain. The curtains are rinsed in clear water, still folded. Do not wring out but lay on the drain board and then carry to the line. unfold and throw two panels over the line together and let them drip dry. This works great for me and people think I have new curtains.—JENNIE

DEAR GIRLS—When curtains are too long to hang with clothespins fastened to the top hem and they must be thrown over the line, I find it better to put a cardboard roll, like those from a dry cleaner's coat hanger, under the panel so there is no danger of a line or stain through the middle.—POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I have tried to make those note cards that use bathroom tissues and waxed paper and are sealed together by ironing but have not had success. I hope someone can help me by sending the instructions.—JANET

Big Red Begins Home Stand Sunday

CAPE GIRARDEAU - One would expect Southeast Missouri State College head coach Tom Thrower to be prouder than a brand new father of his team's 32-24 come - from - behind victory Saturday over previously - unbeaten University of Missouri - Rolla.

Thrower, to be sure, was quite happy about the outcome of the football game, but he appeared Monday to be more concerned about the overall health of the Indians.

"What we really need is an open date," he said, explaining that several members of the squad got banged up pretty well by the rugged Miner defense.

In fact, one player, Tim Luckett of Bruceville, Ind., a defensive mainstay, sustained a knee injury and may be lost for the season. Thrower said the big 250-pound junior tackle had not seen a doctor yet, but commented, "We feel almost certain that he's out for the year."

Defensive line coach Jim Lohr added with a sigh, "I sure hate to lose Luckett."

Another player injured in Saturday's game was sophomore Bill Brown, a 190-pound defensive end. Thrower said it is quite possible that Brown will not be healed in time to play Saturday against Southwest Missouri State College of Springfield.

The Indians tangle with the hapless Bears in Springfield at 1:30 p.m. Southwest Missouri State. under new head coach Don "Red" Cross, is winless in six outings.

Against Rolla, the Indians found themselves trailing 17-0 midway through the second period. About that time, however, Thrower's charges got off a sustained scoring drive which made the score 17-7 at halftime.

Then, on the first series of downs after the second half kickoff, the Miners fumbled on their own 25 and Southeast Missouri State recovered, taking the ball in for a score several plays later.

Thrower indicated the fumble recovery was a key play in the victory. "After we scored, we were only three points down," he said. "This enabled us to keep the momentum we had gained about the middle of the second quarter and go on to win the game."

The offensive backfield star of the contest was senior halfback Bruce Hoffman of Park Forest, Ill. "Hoffman had the best game of his life," praised Thrower. "He did all right running (23 carries for 94 yards and two touchdowns) and his blocking was something else. He as really laying those ends out."

Other Indians to draw the praise of the coaching staff were junior Ron Helms of St. Louis, senior Steve Johnson of Granite City, Ill., senior Ken Joggerst of Ste. Genevieve, and sophomore Gene Figge of Ste. Genevieve.

Southeast Missouri State is now tied for the MIAA lead with Northeast Missouri State College of Kirksville, which knocked off Central Missouri State College of Warrensburg last Saturday. Both teams have 2-0 conference marks. Southeast Missouri State's overall slate is 5-1.

Indians Chiefs Check Injuries; Look Ahead

ST. LOUIS -- The "month of Sundays" has arrived.

There are five of 'em during November, and the Cardinals are home for four -- dividing visits by New Orleans, New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh with a trip to Detroit.

New Orleans opens the month this week at Busch Memorial Satdium in a 1:05 p.m. (CST) game.

The Big Red rebounded with a last - minute drive to gain a 21-21 tie at Cleveland last week as Charley Johnson threw for 306 yards and John Gilliam gained 192 yards on only four receptions, three for touchdowns.

Gilliam, who scored on plays of 84, 75 and 15 yards, now has had two super - yardage games this season. The fleet wide receiver from South Carolina State rolled up 197 yards on 10 catches against Pittsburgh earlier in the season.

The tie left the Cardinals with a 2-3-1 record, still two games behind the Browns, who now are 4-1-1. It also continued the Cardinal dominance over Blanton Collier and the Browns at Cleveland. Since Collier became head coach of the Browns in 1963, the Cardinals show a 4-1-2 slate, easily the best record of any regular visitor to Municipal Stadium.

New Orleans, which battled Philadelphia before bowing, 13-10, last week, is winless in six starts this season, and has an 0-3 career record against the Cardinals. The Big Red won here, 31-20 in 1967 and 31-17 last year, and squeezed out a 21-20 triumph in New Orleans last season.

Jamie Rivers was a hero in both wins over the Saints last year. He blocked a field goal attempt on the final play of the first game to save the victory, then smelled out a fake field goal and dumped Dave Whitsell for a loss in the second game, keeping momentum on the side of the Big Red. The other hero in the first game was Chuck Latourette, who returned a punt for the first score and set an NFL record for punt returns.

The Southern Illinois University Maching Salukis will provide halftime entertainment against New Orleans, and the Golden Eagles of Southeast Missouri State will perform against New York on November 9, a game which starts at 3:05 p.m.

BIG RED NOTES: Charley Johnson's next touchdown pass will be the 100th of his professional career ... His first one was against Washington on October 14, 1962 ... Johnson's 306 yards and the Cardinals' total of 445 was the biggest since Johnson threw for 310 and the Big Red rolled up 489 in a 49-13 rout of the Browns ... John Roland's 56-yard day gives him 2213 for his career, sixth among all Cardinal running backs ... Gilliam's 192 yards is the first - best one - game performance, and his earlier day of 197 is fourth ... Sonny Randle's 256 against New York in 1962 leads the team ... Linebacker Dave Meggyesy and place kicker Jim Bakken will celebrate birthdays over the weekend, with Meggyesy reaching 28 on Saturday and Bakken becoming 20 on Sunday ...

Seaver Top N.L. Hurler

NEW YORK (AP) - Pitching for the New York Mets has always been an experience, but never much of an honor until Tom Seaver came along.

Two years ago, Seaver won himself Rookie of the Year honors in the National League and now he has been selected the winner of the Cy Young Award as the league's best pitcher in 1969.

But Seaver represents more than just an honor or an award for the Mets; he represents the miraculous reversal for he was born out of a Mets' past that includes such master losers as Roger Craig, Craig Anderson, Jack Fisher, Jay Hook, Al Jackson, Galen Cisco and Tracy Stallard.

Only eight seasons ago when the Mets were created they lost a record 120 games and missed by a hair of becoming the first team with three 20-game losers.

The first year, pitching for baseball's worst team ever, Craig lost 24 games, Jackson 20 and Hook 19. Anderson, who didn't pitch much during the final month, took 17 defeats.

Craig went on to lose 22 and next year, 18 of them in a row, and Stallard lost 20 and Cisco 19 in 1964.

Fisher was big loser the next three years with 24, 14 and 18. And the hitting and fielding were just as bad, making it easy for a pitcher to lose 20.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

This year school nurses have conducted a teamwork project in vision and hearing testing of all elementary youngsters. This screening process includes: tests to identify children with visual difficulties and/or hearing losses. When defects are discovered,the parents are notified in order that they may refer the child to their doctor for the necessary treatment. It is hoped that this will be done and that the defect can be corrected before they interfere with the child's progress in school. Mrs. Rachelle Jacob, Supervisor of the school nurses, has informed us that many mothers have assisted the nurses in the various schools and have been of invaluable help in accomplishing the screening.

It is our desire, as well as that of Mrs. Jacob and all the school nurses, to express our thanks to all of these volunteers. Their willingness to assist is most appreciated.

School will be dismissed one hour early next Wednesday, November 5, in order that teachers may leave for St. Louis to attend the state teachers meeting on Thursday and Friday. Normal dismissal time would result in most of them getting into St. Louis rather late, hence the early dismissal. Parents are advised to make whatever arrangements that are necessary because of the change in dismissal time.

Our Board of Education maintains one of the broadest Manpower Development Training Act programs in the State of Missouri. Programs recently funded for the fiscal year 1970, in Multi- Occupation includes: basic education; automotive services; agri-business; food services, heating and refrigeration; machine operator; health services; welding; clerk general office and building trades and maintenance.

This program provides job training for previously unemployed or underemployed individuals with insufficient skills to get and hold a job. A very large majority of those who have previously completed the various training programs have found jobs and are now employed. In fact, 86% of past graduates are job holders. Thus people who were on some sort of support program or dole, usually supported by the taxpayer, are now themselves taxpayers and, more importantly, are making their own way and supporting their families.

Bill Sikes is in charge of the Manpower Program here.

Due to the heavy emphasis on science and technology during the current decade it has been difficult to keep the total educational program in proper balance. By that we mean the national interest in and the popularity of scientific and technical areas have caused Congress and state legislatures to be more concerned with scientific and technical education than perhaps they are in other areas. Consequently, there must be a studied effort on the part of boards of education, administration and faculty to keep all subject matter areas in reasonable balance.

While it is important that students learn about science and technology, as certainly they will live in a scientific and technically oriented world, it is very necessary that they know how to communicate. They should read widely, be able to deal effectively with numbers and know something about the history of mankind and how man relates to his total environment. They need to know how to make a living but at the same time it is equally important that they recognize their responsibilities to their fellow man and to the society in which they exist; to appreciate all mankind and their environment, by living full and satisfying lives through knowing about and participating in the cultural activities such as music, the various other fine arts, in fact a wide variety of leisure time activities, that can make life more worthwhile.

Consequently, our Board of Education thinks it is important, to maintain the current balance of courses and activities that will give every youngster the opportunity for a full and well-rounded education. We certainly concur.

POLLY'S POINTERS

One Does, One Doesn't Iron Nylon Curtains

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Frieda can get the wrinkles out of her nylon curtains or garments by spraying lightly with spray starch and then pressing with a warm iron.—MRS. M. L.

DEAR GIRLS—Surely Frieda has not had as much trouble getting the wrinkles out of her nylon curtains as I had getting some in a nylon panel so I could test this starch treatment. By tying it in knots, washing and leaving it to dry so-tied, I finally acquired some and the cure was great. —POLLY

DEAR POLLY and Frieda—I never have to use an iron on my nylon curtains and I never have any wrinkles by washing them as follows: I fold two panels together and keep folding them until they will fit in the sink or tub. Straighten out any folds or wrinkles as you fold. I then soak them in a mild, warm detergent for 10 minutes and use my flat hand as a plunger to push them up and down. If necessary, the soapy washing can be repeated. When the dirt is all out, they are laid, still folded on the drain. The curtains are rinsed in clear water, still folded. Do not wring out but lay on the drain board and then carry to the line. unfold and throw two panels over the line together and let them drip dry. This works great for me and people think I have new curtains.—JENNIE

DEAR GIRLS—When curtains are too long to hang with clothespins fastened to the top hem and they must be thrown over the line, I find it better to put a cardboard roll, like those from a dry cleaner's coat hanger, under the panel so there is no danger of a line or stain through the middle.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I have tried to make those note cards that use bathroom tissues and waxed paper and are sealed together by ironing but have not had success. I hope someone can help me by sending the instructions.—JANET

Presidents on Viet Nam

President Richard M. Nixon on Monday Nov. 3 addresses the nation in a radio and television broadcast on "the entire situation in Viet Nam."

To forecast what President Nixon will say next Monday would be futile and unrewarding. One might assume that further troop withdrawals from Viet Nam will be announced. From there on it's guesswork, except for the consideration that a pragmatic politician like the President is not going to bid for national attention without having something new to offer.

The record of presidential reports to the nation on Viet Nam is pretty interesting. The war there was on such a low scale and the role of U.S. advisers so small that Dwight D. Eisenhower made no mention of Viet Nam in his final State of the Union Message of Jan. 12, 1961.

All John F. Kennedy said on Jan. 30, 1961, in his own State of the Union address was: "In Asia, the relentless pressures of the Chinese Communists menace the security of the entire area--from the borders of India and South Viet Nam to the jungles of Laos."

President Kennedy in his State of the Union Message of 1962 said: "A satisfactory settlement in Laos would also help to achieve and safeguard the peace in Viet Nam - where the foe is increasing his tactics of terror-- where our own efforts have been stepped up-- and where the local government has initiated new programs and reforms to broaden the base of resistance."

The following year, Kennedy stated.. "We have maintained the frontiers of freedom from Viet Nam to West Berlin." Later that year, after the assassination of President Kennedy, President Johnson told Congress on Nov. 27, 1963: "This nation will keep its commitments from South Viet Nam to West Berlin."

President Johnson was equally general in his State of the Union Message of Jan. 8, 1964, declaring: "Today Americans of all races stand side by side in Berlin and in Viet Nam. They died side by side in Korea." Later on it got rough. In a TV message of Aug. 4, 1964, President Johnson asserted that "repeated acts of violence against the armed forces of the United States must be met not only with alert defense but with positive reply." This was the basis for the significant Tonkin Bay resolution of Congress.

In his State of the Union Message of Jan. 4, 1965, Johnson said: "We are there, first, because a friendly nation has asked us for help against the Communist aggression... Three Presidents have supported that pledge." In his 1966 State of the Union Message, Johnson declared: "Thy enemy is no longer close to victory. Time is no longer on his side. There is no cause to doubt the American commitment." The State of the Union Message in 1967 was more of the same.

Johnson in his State of the Union Message of Jan. 17, 1968, was still optimistic. He spoke of hopes of a "complete cessation of hostilities, a really true cease-fire." But little more than two months later-- March 31, 1968-- he stunned the nation with his nationally televised announcement that he would not seek reelection and that he was ordering a partial halt to the bombing in North Viet Nam.

President Nixon has reported to the nation three times previously on television. The most memorable occasion was last May 14, when he laid out an eight- point program for peace. He said then that for the United States to abandon South Viet Nam "would risk a massacre that would shock and dismay everyone who values human life" and "would threaten our long- term hopes for peace."

Q—What event is referred to as the World Series of professional football?

A—The Super Bowl. To date three games have been played—1967, 1968 and 1969.

All Campus Revue Will Open Thursday

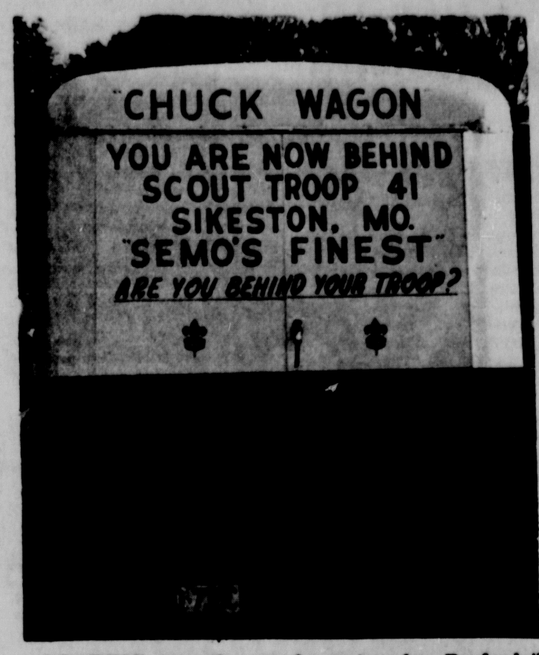

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The annual All- Campus Revue, staged by the Southeast Missouri State College chapter of Phi Mu Alpha, will be held on the campus Thursday through Saturday nights.

Phi Mu Alpha is a national professional music fraternity. Membership is open only to male music majors or men with an unusual degree of interest in music.

The student- produced show will feature 14 acts, plus music by the Phi Mu Alpha fraternity as "college amateurs with professional style."

The talent show which is not a talent show, because the acts are not competitively judged will begin at 8 p.m. each night in the auditorium of Academic Hall.

In recent years, the world has become somewhat easier for the sizable minority of left-handed people. Manufacturers now turn out left-handed golf clubs, egg beaters, fishing reels, desks, and other articles. Some banks furnish left-handed checkbooks, the stubs to the right of the checks.

LOADING is underway for a two-day Burfordville encampment Saturday in a truck furnished by Dick McDougal, committeeman for troop 41. The vehicle will be used for future outings by the troop, and carries a sign on the back of the truck, "You are now behind Scout Troop 41, Sikeston, Semo's finest."

Baptists to Buy Missouri Hotel

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - The Missouri Baptist Convention has agreed to buy the Missouri Hotel, scene of many a political caucus, for its new state headquarters.

Ted Stewart, owner of the hotel, was present when the arrangement was made in Cape Girardeau Tuesday. The price was not announced.

Upper floors of the hotel will be used for offices and the Missouri Baptist Press but the dining room and other businesses on the first floor and mezzanine will continue to be leased.

New Survivors' Benefit Bill Signed

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon signed Wednesday a bill to bring survivors' benefits for the widows of lower grade servicemen more in line with the rise in the cost of living.

The bill revises the present formula under which the payments are boosted according to increases in military pay scales. A widow gets $120 plus 12 per cent of the monthly base pay of the rank held by her husband but no less than $133 a month.

Nixon Invites Viet Policy Suggestions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has encouraged key administration officials, and experts to send him suggestions about his state of the Vietnam war policy speech.

Sources say the result has been literally dozens of memos outlying recommendations and proposals for the Nov. 3 TV-radio appearance. The memos range from peace-making to war-making to truce-making to the shape of the post-Vietnam world in Southeast Asia.

But officials warn against expectations of any world shaking pronouncements.

While saying it is possible some of the ideas may be included in the address, officials are worried the public may be expecting too much from the well-advertised speech.

Speculation on what the President may or may not do, according to the official sources, has exceeded by far Nixon's latitude for action.

For example, it is highly unlikely Nixon would dump his support for the Saigon government as some antiwar elements have suggested or that he will declare a unilateral cease-fire as others have called for.

Nixon is expected to continue his support of the present Saigon regime and resist efforts for any coalition peace government such as the Viet Cong and North Vietnam have demanded. But the President could suggest a broadened base for the present government.

The idea of a unilateral cease-fire has been frowned upon by Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird. And when Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott called for a cease-fire last week, the Pennsylvania senator received a call from the White House suggesting he clarify his stand to specify that the halt in fighting must have mutual agreement.

Scott also was persuaded to re-emphasize that the call for a cease-fire was his own idea and not something he was advancing for the administration.

The area where Nixon has maximum flexibility is in the withdrawal of U.S. forces from Vietnam. It has been widely speculated he will announce his schedule that could result in the withdrawal of up to 300,000 men by the end of 1970.

But this in turn depends upon a continued lull on the battlefield, the speed with which South Vietnam's troops can take over the combat responsibility and progress in the Paris peace talks.

Earth Crack Tips House Toward Sea

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP) — A huge crack in the earth at a clifftop residential viewsite opened wider Wednesday, tumbling an expensive home toward the Pacific Ocean.

"The house is 30 feet down the cliff and still visibly moving," said a police officer. "It went that far in just 15 minutes."

The fissure's new expansion ripped out a water main at the edge of the block-long crack, two to three feet wide in places. Utility workers shut off water and electricity.

Residents had been evacuated and officers kept spectators behind safety lines. The fissure runs along scenic Paseo del Mar Drive at the top of a 200-foot cliff in this Los Angeles suburb.

City authorities estimate six other oceanfront lots and homes were slipping toward the sea at an undetermined rate. Officials placed the seaward slippage at three-sixteenths of an inch per hour on Tuesday, but thought it had speeded up today.

Another home of the seaward side of the opening was rated in precarious position. Three guest homes at other residential sites were given up for lost.

Just a hairline crack at first, it caused little concern until it opened into a gaping 300-footlong fissure at dusk Sunday.

The area has a history of land slippage. Pacific waves eat at the base of the cliff and heavy winter rains have loosened blocks of earth along the top of the cliff in the past.

George Smith, whose home developed a huge hole in a wall when earth gave way under the foundation, says waves have eroded the cliff in the 16 years he has lived there and "neither the city nor the county could see any reason for building a retaining wall to stop the wearing." The Smith home was valued at $60,000 before the land opened up.

Speedup Sought To Stop Spread Of Hog Cholera

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department advisory group has asked the government to step up action to stop the spread of hog cholera through marketing channels.

The National Hog Cholera Eradication Advisory Committee asked that the Agricultural Research Service work with the states to tighten requirements for sanitary conditions in markets and increase control over shipments to stamp out the disease in trade channels.

Among the proposals were uniform requirements for hog holding pens which could be cleaned and disinfected effectively, adequate facilities for handling and inspecting pigs at all markets, and adoption of state and federal regulations requiring identification of all feeder pigs as to their farm of origin.

More than half of the 1,021 confirmed outbreaks of hog cholera reported during the first eight months of 1969 involved shipments of pigs in market channels, the committee said.

No one knows how long the El Molo have lived near Lake Rudolf in Kenya. European explorers discovered the tiny settlement only 80 years ago, when Count Samuel Telecki and Ludwig von Hohnel first sighted the lake.

U.S. Dissent Nudges Thieu To Speed Up Viet Reforms

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Strangely enough, the nationwide demonstrations that marked the Oct. 15 war Moratorium effort may prove, in the long run, to be very helpful to President Nixon's aims in Vietnam.

For Nixon's strategy in winning this war (or in preventing a Communist take-over by force) rests precariously on his ability to convince the South Vietnamese they haven't got much time, that they must act rapidly in land reform, in eliminating petty party rivalries, in crushing corruption, in broadening the government and in reforming the army. Otherwise the country will not have the strength to survive as the United States withdraws its combat troops.

It is urgent that the officer corps no longer be largely limited to men of the favored families and favored classes if the army, navy and air force are going to have the leadership required to hold off the trained and disciplined North Vietnamese attacks and co-ordinated guerrilla forays. Inefficient, bumbling officers will have to be sacked in numbers—now.

Economic and political doors must be opened to the sons and daughters of poor farmers. More governing and financial power must be turned over—and quickly—to local villages which for centuries were self-governing until the days of the French. This must be done if the country is to have the political and economic leadership—and the local loyalty—needed for survival under the difficult conditions ahead.

The police nationwide must be upgraded, paid the wages they need to live without graft. Corruption must be weeded out ruthlessly among the police, the politicians and some military officers with warlord mentalities.

Petty personal squabbling among political, military, religious and merchant leaders must give way to co-operation for the good of the country.

These problems are no secret. The Thieu government knows the importance of these steps as well as does Nixon. The Thieu administration, in fact, is known to be working on each of these essential steps. But movement is painfully slow and sometimes four steps forward are followed by sliding three paces backward. Too many South Vietnamese have been thinking the hard decisions can be postponed until "tomorrow." The clout to push things through is missing.

But the Thieu government and, even more importantly, wide numbers of Vietnamese political, military and religious leaders have been closely, and somewhat nervously, watching the signs of growing discontent in the United States.

For weeks they have buttonholed Americans (any they could find) to ask just how powerful this opposition is and its probable effect on the President. They get reports from college campuses. They clip newspaper accounts of petitions signed by college presidents and professors. They study congressional debates.

The question now is: Will the Oct. 15 Moratorium and what follows spur the speed-up of the reforms outlined above rapidly enough to meet Nixon's pullout schedule?

Anemia Declines in Head Start Program

PORTAGEVILLE — The Head Start program in the six-county Delta area has lowered anemia among 668 children enrolled last year.

This accomplishment is described in publication released this week by the Delta Head Start office in cooperatiowith the University of Missouri in Columbia.

Called A Step Ahead with the Head Start Nutritional-Medical- Dental Programs, the 24- page brochure describes each of the facets of the program, tells about the people behind the program, and what it has done for children of the Delta area

M. Mike Cooper of Hayti is director of Delta Head Start. Mrs. Dorothy Wagner is dietician- nutritional director; Mrs. Jeanne Littell, nurse coordinator; Dr. Alan S. Gubin of Caruthersville, medical director; Dr. William Dillon of Sikeston, dental director. B. W. Harrison, director of the University of Missouri's Delta Center at Portageville, is coordinator of the program for UMC.

Of the children enrolled in head Start in 1967-68, 72 per cent were found to be anemic, the brochure reports. A year late, those available from the original group were retested and an improvement of 29 per cent was recorded.

In 1968-69 only 17 per cent of the 668 children enrolled in the fall were found to be anemic. According to Dr. Gubin, many of the children enrolled the second year were brothers or sisters of the first group.

Dr. Gubin believes that the influence of nutrition education and training on the parents of the first group of children and on the familys' diets is a major factor in the reduction of anemia in the second group.

Use of Commercial Fertilizer Takes Dip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Use of commercial fertilizer dropped slightly during the year ended last June 30 after rising four and seven per cent during the two previous years, says the Agriculture Department.

Total use in the United States and Puerto Rico was 38.7 million tons, the Crop Reporting Board said Tuesday. Applications were less last year in all regions except the south-central and Rocky Mountain areas.

Illinois led in fertilizer use with 3.2 million tons, followed by California, the previous year's top user, the board said.

46,442 Enrolled in Missouri University

COLUMBIA — Enrollment at the four- campus University of Missouri reached a record 46,442 students at the end of the first four weeks of classes, the University announced today. This is an increase of 3,308 students from a year ago.

Enrollments by campus are: Columbia campus: 21,082, an increase of 969 from a year ago, Kansas City campus: 9,674, an increase of 671 from a year ago, Rolla campus, 6,088; a gain of 310 from a year ago, St. Louis campus: 9,598, an increase of 1,358 from a year ago.

University President John C. Weaver reported that it was necessary to shut off enrollment at the St. Louis campus, where the largest increase occurred, because of a lack of sufficient facilities to care for more students. He said several hundred persons who wanted to register at the St. Louis Campus were unable to do so.

A breakdown by classes of the 46,442 students enrolled at the Umiversity this fall shows the following: freshman, 11,190; sophomore, 7,027; junior, 5,899; senior, 4,262; primary professional, 6,512; advanced professional, 1,106; graduate, 8,868; and unclassified, 1,578.

President Weaver said the number of graduate students enrolled this fall is up 675 from a year ago.

The enrollment figures show a ratio of almost two male students to every female at the University. The number of males enrolled is 29,909 and the female enrollment is 16,533.

First time college students total 8,053 at the University, according to the enrollment data.

Students enrolled in some categories of extension division credit courses are not included in the enrollment figures.

ELMONT, N.Y. (AP) — A 5-year-old stallion named Eneas II turned his head sideways in the stretch, bared his teeth and tried to bite Cue Card, the winner, in a race at Belmont Park.

Had Eneas II nipped Cue Card then finished ahead of him the stewards undoubtedly would have changed the result.

ARMED FORCES

WITH U.S. COMBAT AIR FORCES, Vietnam — Transferring an abandoned building from Phan Rang AB, Vietnam. to the Ngoc Ninh Orphanage in Phan Rang City proved to be a rewarding experience for Air Force Sgt. Jackie L. Cooper, formerly of Bernie, Mo.

Sergeant Cooper and 15 other volunteers from the 315th special operations wing at Phan Rang reassmebled the building at the orphanage where it now houses 40 formerly homeless Vietnamese children.

The concensus among the air force volunteers is that participating in this effort benefitting the homeless children was a gratifying experience, so much so that they again volunteered and now are busy in off- duty hours helping to build a school in another Vietnamese village.

Sergeant Cooper, whose wife, JoAnn, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Moore of Bloomfield, Mo., is an administrative specialist. He previously served at Offutt AFB, Neb.

The sergeant, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Cooper, is a 1962 graduate of Bernie high school and studied at Arkansas State College.

Cotton Harvest Well Ahead of Year Ago Pace

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Wet fields continue to hamper harvesting of Missouri's corn and soybean crops, while the cotton harvest is running well ahead of a year ago.

The Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Monday moderate to heavy rain last week, mostly in the central and western portions of the state, left soil moisture at a surplus in many areas.

Harvest of the corn crop is 39 per cent completed statewide, ranging from 90 per cent complete in the bootheel region to only 25 per cent in the northern third of the state.

Soybean harvest has been delayed the most, and is only 54 per cent completed, compared with 69 per cent at this time a year ago.

The cotton harvest is 71 per cent finished, which is one week ahead of last year when only 58 per cent had been harvested at this time. Half of the grain sorghum is harvested and 75 per cent of the fall grain is seeded.

No British monarch has used the power of veto since 1707.

Welborn Presides Over Parley

BLOOMFIELD — More than 1,500 Missourians, attended the 69th annual conference of the Missouri Association Social Welfare in Kansas City this week.

Joe Welborn, Bloomfield retiring president, presided during the business sessions, and was presented a plaque by Mayor Ilus Davis declaring the week as Social Welfare Week in Kansas City.

Welborn pointed out in his opening remarks that the association could not point to towering edifices as an indication of their efforts, but the room filled institutes, the long hours devoted to studies, the deep concern coupled with the determination on the part of so many to alleviate the socio-economic ills facing the state, can best be described in the words of the theme of the conference, "People in Action."

U.S. Aloofness in Caribbean Hard to Comprehend

By Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON— In his scheduled address to the Inter-American Press Association, President Nixon will make what the White House calls a "major new pronouncement on Latin American policy." The President's statement is expected to set in motion a series of changes in U.S. relations with Mexico, Central and South America. But there is little prospect of a similar policy overhaul in the troubled islands of the Caribbean.

For three- quarters of a century, "the Caribbean" has meant to Washington policymakers mainly the Latin island- states of the Greater Antilles: Cuba, Haiti and the Dominican Republic on the island of Hispaniola, and Puerto Rico. This country has largely ignored the hundreds of other smaller islands stretching in 2,500- mile arc from Florida to South America. There is little evidence to suggest that President Nixon will depart from the custom.

Governor Nelson Rockefeller, on the last of his four fact- finding trips to Latin America, made brief stops in five Caribbean countries-- Barbados, Guyana, Jamaica (all former British colonies), Haiti and the Dominican Republic. A month earlier, he had stopped at Trinidad and Tobago, another one- time British colony.

Absent from the itinerary was Cuba, with which the United States has no diplomatic relations, but which hangs like a sword of Damocles over the entire Caribbean region. Missing, too, were the numerous British, French and Dutch islands which are beginning to emerge from centuries of stultifying European colonialism to seek an identity of their own and a place in the Caribbean sun.

The Caribbean is a volatile region, in some ways more akin to Africa with its politics of disintegration, than to the American mainland. The colonial overlords are everywhere on the retreat; the islands are no longer of Europe and not yet of the Western Hemisphere. As the colonial power wanes, a power vacuum grows and the area is beset by forces seemingly beyond its control: virulent nationalism, black power, the maifa, mob violence.

The bewildering patchwork of islands is fragmented into miniscule political units by insularism, nationalism and the habits of four centuries of colonial exploitation. The status of each island ranges from outright independence to outright colony, with a stunning array of intermediate arrangements. All attempts to create a coherent whole from the jumbled pieces have failed. The last such venture, the British West Indies Federation, crumbled into pieces in 1962 after four brief, rocky years.

Against this background of division and weakness, the United States has kept a "hands-off" attitude toward the West Indies, an attitude nurtured by decades of U.S. - Anglo cooperation. A major study undertaken last year by the State Department to overhaul U.S. policy in the area has been locked up in a classified file.

American aloofness is hard to understand, especially in view of the stake in U.S. business in the region. Huge U.S. firms dominated the mining of bauxite in Jamaica and Guyana, the production of petroleum in Trinidad, and the development of tourism everywhere. In terms of private investment, Canadians run a distant second to Americans. But Canada's development assistance to the area is far above that of the United States.

The domination of Caribbean economies by outside interests has spurred the rise of a new spirit of nationalism, akin to nationalist movements throughout the developing world. The aim is control of foreign enterprise, but in the Caribbean, the movement is linked to still another vital force: black power. It is a Caribbean truism that "the blacks control the government and the whites the wealth." Black nationalism thus constitutes a potential threat not only to U.S. businesses, but to the small white creole class as well.

Most Caribbean leaders believe that regional cooperation is the only solution in the long run, and they are trying-- once again-- to achieve it. Some eighteen months ago, the former and present British colonies of the Eastern Caribbean, together with Jamaica and Guyana, formed the Caribbean Free Trade Association, a first step toward the achievement of a Caribbean Common Market.

The early record of CARIFTA, as it is called, is impressive. Trade among the islands is up substantially, and a variety of new products is flowing in inter- island commerce. In December, a Caribbean Development Bank is scheduled to open, with $30 million in local capital, and $10 million each from Great Britain and Canada.

The Caribbean islands thus have taken the bit in their own mouths. They are actively seeking new hemispheric alliances and are promoting the concept of the Caribbean as an integral part of the New World partnership. The region's leaders now believe that the future of the islands lies in association — among themselves, and with their neighbors in the Western Hemisphere. The choice is clearly one between cooperation and disaster.

Mingo Tour Route Open

PUXICO— Jack Toll, manager of Mingo National Wildlife Refuge, announced the opening of a 25- mile tour route every Sunday afternoon during October and November. Individuals may start the tour between noon and 4 P.M. but must be off the refuge by dark.

The self- guided tour route begins at refuge headquarters one and one -half miles northeast of Puxico. It takes about two hours to drive the route.

This year's route is different from last so people will be able to see a new part of the refuge.

Toll suggests that people bring binoculars and a camera and that more wildlife will probably be seen by driving the tour in late afternoon.

Sociologist Proposes Giving Youths Right To Earn Adult Status

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — A sociologist has proposed that a young person should have the right to earn adult status as early as age 18, by donating 1,200 hours of public service.

Prof. Dale Hardman said the public service could range "from public landscaping to playing checkers with institutionalized persons to spraying mosquitoes to serving in the military to creating public art."

NEWSPAPERS

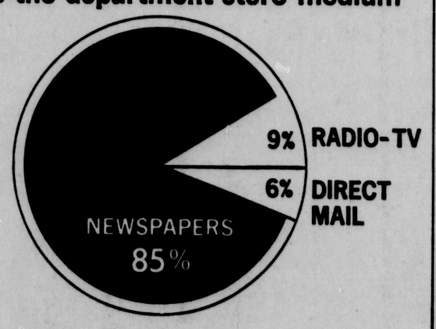

THE NO. 1 RETAIL ADVERTISING MEDIUM

As shown on First Chart, department stores throughout the country invest 85% of their ad dollars in newspapers, 6% in direct mail and only 9% in all broadcast media combined. (NRMA does not break down the 9% into individual figures for radio and TV.)

On Second Chart shows the figures for grocery stores. Newspapers get over two thirds of the ad investments from chains and independents. 20% goes into direct mail. The broadcast media get only 12% of all grocery store ad dollars.

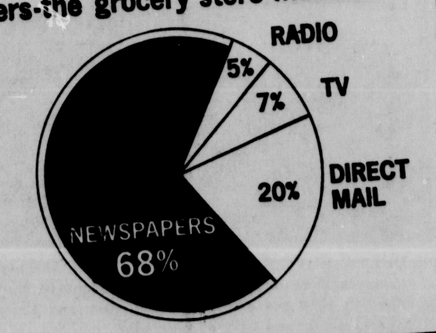

RETAILERS, WHO ARE CLOSE TO THE CASH REGISTER AND THEREFORE IN A POSITION TO KNOW WHAT ADVERTISING SELLS CONSISTENTLY INVEST MORE OF THEIR ADVERTISING MONEY IN NEWSPAPER SPACE THAN IN ALL OTHER MEDIA COMBINED.

Inactivation of the 9th Infantry Division

"You Have Done What You Were Asked To Do"

General W. C. Westmoreland

PASSING THROUGH, June 1967—Maj. Gen. George G. O'Connor, right, the new commanding general of the 9th Infantry Division, conducts former division commander, Maj. Gen. Eckhardt through a line of dipped guidons representing 9th Division units. Behind them is Sgt. Maj. Thomas M. McKinley, then the division's senior noncom. After General Eckhardt led his division to Vietnam in December 1966, the 9th became the first U.S. infantry division to challenge the enemy in the Mekong Delta.

PONDERING A POINT — Maj. Gen. (now Lt. Gen.) Julian J. Ewell pauses during a June 1968 inspection tour of a captured enemy supply point north of Tan An, Republic of Vietnam. At right is Col. Henry E. Emerson, 1st Brigade commander. General Ewell commanded the 9th from February 1968 to April 1969. Following the fierce 1968 Tet offensive, the 9th Infantry Division received the Vietnamese Valor Award, Army Level.

"WE WILL TRY HARDER"—Maj. Gen. Harris W. Hollis, 9th Infantry Division commander, renders a salute during ceremonies for presentation of the Vietnamese Gallantry Cross with Palm to the 9th Division. In his farewell speech before the first redeployment, General Hollis cited the division for "completing another epic achievement in behalf of our country and for free men everywhere . . ."

Another Chapter Ends . . .

Steeped in tradition dating back long before their actions at Remagen Bridge during World War II, the 9th Infantry Division, known as the "Old Reliables," is coming home from the Republic of Vietnam.

Acting Secretary of the Army Thaddeus R. Beal announced on August 8 that elements of the 9th Infantry Division, to include the division's headquarters and its 1st Brigade, scheduled for deployment from the Republic of Vietnam to Hawaii, will be inactivated immediately. The division's 3d Brigade is to be redesignated a separate brigade in Vietnam. Elements of the 9th Infantry Division base and the 1st Brigade of the division comprise about 6,000 personnel.

On July 7, 1969, elements of the division's 2d Brigade departed Vietnam as the first part of President Richard Nixon's Vietnamization program. The 2d Brigade, comprising about 3,500 personnel, has returned to the continental United States (CONUS) for previously announced inactivation.

Vietnam Service

The 9th Infantry Division was reactivated on Feb. 1, 1966 at Fort Riley, Kan., for intensive training in preparation for service in Vietnam. Maj. Gen. George S. Eckhardt was named commander of the reactivated division.

On Dec. 19, 1966, General Eckhardt led the division ashore at Vung Tau. One month later, the 3d Brigade of the 9th became the first American infantry unit to establish a permanent base in the Mekong Delta at Dong Tam.

During the division's first year in Vietnam, it established itself as a tough fighting force in actions at Bau Bang, Rach Kien and Ap Bac. By mid-1967, the Mobile Riverine Force had been established to transport infantrymen more easily throughout the river-laced Delta.

Major Unit Awards

When the enemy launched his 1968 Tet attacks, the "Old Reliables" reacted with swift precision to gain decisive victories. In July 1968, the 9th Infantry Division received the Vietnamese Valor Award, Army Level.

Two Presidential Unit Citations also have been awarded to elements of the 9th for action in Vietnam. President Lyndon B. Johnson awarded the citation to the Medical Platoon, Headquarters Troop, 3d Squadron, 5th Cavalry of the 9th Infantry Division on Dec. 3, 1968 for extraordinary heroism at Ap Bau Bang, Republic of Vietnam on the night of March 19-20, 1967.

President Richard Nixon awarded the citation to the 2d Brigade of the 9th Infantry Division on June 12, 1969 for displaying extraordinary heroism in action against an armed hostile force during and immediately after the 1968 Tet offensive.

General officers who commanded the 9th Infantry Division in Vietnam in addition to General Eckhardt, were Maj. Gen. George G. O'Connor from June 1, 1967 to Feb. 24, 1968; Maj. Gen. (now Lt. Gen.) Julian J. Ewell, Feb. 25, 1968 to April 1, 1969; and its present commanding general, Maj. Gen. Harris W. Hollis, who assumed command on April 2, 1969. (ANF)

PARADE—Boy Scouts of the Republic of Vietnam march in a parade honoring soldiers of the 9th Infantry Division.

FREQUENT VISITOR — General W. C. Westmoreland, in 1967, tours the Mekong Delta base camp of the 9th Infantry Division near Long Thanh. At left is Col. James W. Phillips, then commander of the 9th Infantry Division Artillery. Upon the return of elements of the division from the Republic of Vietnam, General Westmoreland praised the soldiers of the 9th—his old outfit — by saying, ". . . you men can stand tall, and be proud; you can look any man in the eye knowing that you served your country when you were called . . ."

TREATING THE PEOPLE — A 9th Infantry Division medic, Sp4 Mark Ellerbee, applies a soothing ointment to a woman's hand at Rach Kien, Republic of Vietnam. Other Vietnamese women with children wait in line for medical attention. Medical personnel of the 9th treated local civilians as a part of their normal duties.

"Above and Beyond the Call"

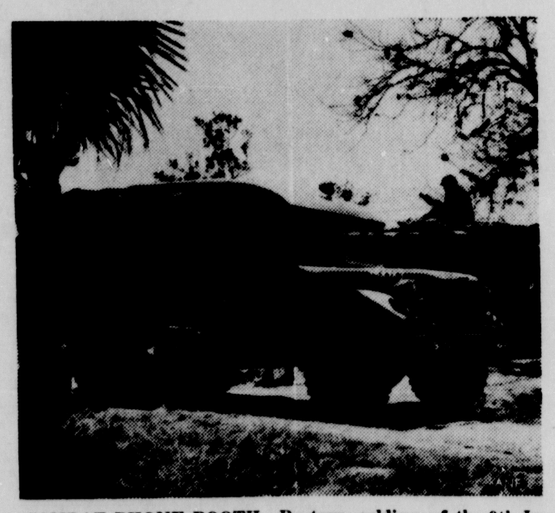

FIVE SERVICEMEN from the 9th Infantry Division received the Medal of Honor for gallantry and intrepidity in combat while serving in the Republic of Vietnam.
All ranks cited are those which were in effect at the time the award was presented.

Sgt. Sammy Lee Davis	Martinsville, Ind.	Battery C, 2d Battalion, 4th Artillery
Sgt. Leonard Bert Keller	Rockford, Ill.	Company A, 3d Battalion, 60th Infantry
Sp4 Thomas J. Kinsman	Onalaska, Wash.	Company B, 3d Battalion, 60th Infantry
Sp5 Clarence E. Sasser	Rosharon, Tex.	Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 3d Battalion, 60th Infantry
Sp4 Raymond R. Wright	Mineville, N.Y.	Company A, 3d Battalion, 60th Infantry

— Good Luck and Godspeed —

CHOPPER SPRINT — Troops of the 9th Infantry Division scramble toward waiting helicopters for swift air movement to another area of operation. While in the Republic of Vietnam, the 9th was awarded the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry in addition to many other citations. Five soldiers of the 9th received the Medal of Honor.

COMBAT PHONE BOOTH—By turn, soldiers of the 9th Infantry Division take a quick "time out" from perimeter guard duty to call home from their fire support base deep in the Mekong Delta. The 3/4-ton vehicle is the Military Radio Affiliate System (MARS), Mobile Rig One. It cruised the division's area of operation giving men at isolated camps the opportunity to talk to friends and relatives in the U.S.

DELTA DEVILS — Soldiers of the 9th Infantry Division move out toward armored troop carriers during riverine operations in the Mekong Delta, Republic of Vietnam. The 9th used boats to move their men and firepower into areas isolated by a web of rivers, canals and tangled marshes.

One thing about a used VW.

It looks as homely as a new one.

So when you get last year's model it's almost like getting this year's.

Especially since these cars have passed the VW 16-point safety and performance test. And have our 100% guarantee that we'll repair or replace all major mechanical parts* for 30 days or 1000 miles, whichever comes first.

What you're getting is a car that not only looks almost new. It runs that way, too.

A BUSY SEASON

DENVER (AP) — Harley Key, sports writer for The Rocky Mountain News, has good reason to remember the spring and summer of 1969. In the space of four days he attended graduation ceremonies for two daughters and a son. A week later one of the daughters was married. And two months earlier another daughter presented Key with his first grandchild.

If You Were the Judge

Rash No Excuse For Jail Release

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Horace ran afoul of the law and was sentenced to a jail term of not less than six months and not more than five years. While he found the sentence a bit disconcerting, the real rub came when he developed a very uncomfortable rash.

Examining his cell, Horace concluded that his itch was due to his niche; that the rash was caused by a psychological aversion to his being in jail. And, to support this conclusion, Horace pointed to the fact that prison doctors had been unable to cure his ailment for a continuous period of 16 months. Consequently, he filed an application for his immediate parole.

"In view of the fact that the doctors haven't been able to relieve my skin condition,' he argued, "and since I've already served my minimum sentence, I should be released before I tickle to death."

"Sorry," was the answer, "but parole is based upon a prisoner's conduct and not his physical condition. Because you may itch, that's no reason to let you start from scratch."

Determined to obtain his release, Horace took the matter to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order the release of the itchy jailbird?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! He held that a prisoner is not entitled to be paroled just because he has served his minimum sentence; nor is he entitled to be released because of a physical ailment for which he is receiving treatment.

"If sickness of a prisoner could compel his discharge," noted the judge, "which it does not, we could anticipate a veritable rash of petitions."

Alumni to Return at Cape State

CAPE GIRARDEAU— A bushel basket full of activities awaits Southeast Missouri State College alumni who return to the campus for the college's traditional Homecoming Nov. 8.

Highlights of the day will include a parade in the morning, a luncheon, a football game in the afternoon, and an open house following the game.

The college's five social sororities and six social fraternities have scheduled separate teas, coffees, receptions, and open houses for their alumni. Other student groups on the campus are also planning special programs. Some of these will take place during morning hours, while others are scheduled for after the football game.

The homecoming observance will get under way on Nov. 6 and continue on Nov. 7, but most of the activities on these dates are designed for students.

However, members of the college's Alumni Council will convene for a dinner and business meeting at 6 p.m. Nov. 7 at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Mark F. Scully. Dr. Scully is president of the college.

Other activities scheduled for Nov. 7 include the coronation of the Homecoming queen and a concert by a pop group known as "Little Anthony and the Imperials." The concert and coronation will get under way at 8 p.m. in Houck Field House.

The event is open to the public and tickets may be purchased at the college business office during the week of the concert.

The principal event slated for Nov. 6 is a pep rally and dance on the parking lot outside of the college's student union building.

First event on the agenda for the main day of Homecoming, Nov. 8, will be the annual parade which will form at Capaha Park and move down Broadway to Lorimier St. It will start at 9:30 a.m.

An alumni luncheon and general business meeting will get under way at 11:30 a.m. in Memorial Hall. Guests of honor will be members of the Student Army Training Corps of 1918-19, the Class of 1919, Class of 1944, and Class of 1959.

This fall marks the first time that the college has invited the graduating class of 10 years ago back for a Homecoming reunion. If successful, the event will be continued each year.

The Homecoming football game between Southeast Missouri State and Northeast Missouri State of Kirksville will begin at 1:30 p.m. at Houck Stadium. After the game there will be an open house for alumni at the Holiday Inn in Cape Girardeau.

The day will close with the annual dance at the Arena Building, beginning at 8 p.m. The music of "Mitch Rider and His Show" will be featured.

STARTED TOO GOOD

DENVER (AP) — Paul Powell, an Arizona State outfielder signed by the Minnesota Twins and assigned to Denver, smashed the first pitch served to him in professional baseball for a single. But Powell couldn't maintain that hitting pace and was shunted down to the Twin farm at Charlotte in the Southern League.

Moratorium Leaders Have New Tool---Power

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Moratorium epilogue: The young men and women who set up Oct. 15 have now created a powerful organizational weapon.

Now that they have been "successful," the temptation will be to use this weapon again and again for one reason or another.

The issue is not Vietnam, race, poverty or injustice. The issue now is power.

Success breeds temptation: power, once created, is inevitably used.

But they run the danger their image will be destroyed by violent members of the Students for a Democratic Society and other amateur revolutionaries. That is, if the protests of mid-November get out of control, they could destroy the Moratorium of Oct. 15.

But the strength of these ex-McCarthyite youngsters is not shallow. They have the names of thousands of people to call on. They have lists of donors. They know which of their lieutenants can produce and which cannot.

They have learned the techniques of political psychology —the subtle differences in words that arouse people to action or don't (their use of Moratorium rather than strike).

They have ready groups they can throw on the streets.

They have strong vocal allies spotted among college presidents and faculty, in Congress, among some scientists and in the literary world.

These youthful organizers were surprisingly successful in some presidential primaries in the fall of 1968, though encumbered by a fourth-rate candidate in Sen. Eugene McCarthy.

They drew surprising advance public support in the Oct. 15 Moratorium, gathering many prestigious names en route. (Despite the numbers in opposition, note how the campaign was managed so that by and large the Moratorium's opponents kept strangely silent.)

The Moratorium youngsters have given the appearance of achieving the removal of Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey as director of Selective Service, of reducing the draft calls, and even perhaps of forcing a review of U.S. policies in Vietnam as a possible prelude to increasing the withdrawal of U.S. troops.

It can be argued that these shifts would have been made with no Moratorium. But timing inevitably has given the Moratorium men and many observers the feel of victory. In these matters, the feel is what is important.

Here we have something quite different from the amateurism of the Students for a Democratic Society and the Black Panthers. As the Viet Cong have shown, strength comes from organization and psywar, not primarily from military prowess.

By contrast, the SDS has shown no firm organizational base. SDS techniques have been crude and sometimes self-defeating. They have within their groups the divisiveness which could lead to enervating splits.

In the ex-McCarthy Moratorium planners we have something much more serious—people who pay attention to the nuts and bolts of politics.

Its gates shall never be shut by day--and there shall be no night there. (Revelation 21:25, RSV)

Living Ghost of Salazar Hangs over Portugal Voting

By Editorial Research Reports

LONDON — After 40 years in the driver's seat, the living ghost of dictator Antonio de Oliveira Salazar continues to haunt Portugal. Eerie is the only way to describe it. While the population is being readied for the first election in some four decades which could influence Portugal's political evolution, the 80- year- old Salazar still believes he's in charge.

Premier Salazar entered a prolonged coma following a brain hemorrhage in September 1968. President Americo Thomaz appointed a 62- year - old lawyer, Marcello Caetano, as the new premier. When Salazar recovered, no one dared tell him he was no longer in charge. And to preserve the old man's dreams, Salazar continues to live in the premier's official residence while Caetano goes to his own home every night.

This make- believe, almost Shakespearean atmosphere extends over the elections for the National Assembly Sunday. During the Salazar reign no member of the opposition ever managed to win a seat in the legislature. Few of the registered 1.8 million voters (out of a population of 9.5 million) are reported to believe that this election will be a first step towards much needed reforms.

Reforms are in order. Portugal has the unenviable record of being the European country with the lowest per capita income (about $430), the lowest percentage of university students, the highest percentage of illiteracy and the highest rate of infant mortality. According to the Union of Portuguese Democrats, an exile group, it also has the highest percentage of political prisoners.

Caetano has been accused of practicing a form of "Salazarism without Salazar." When he first came to office, he launched modest campaign of liberalization and freed Dr. Mario Soares, a socialist, who had been kept in administative exile. But Caetano owes his premiership to the Portuguese oligarchy, who stand ready to oust him if he threatens to disturb the status quo of Salazar's "corporate state."

This explains the extraordinary restrictions on the election campaign. Street meetings and demonstrations are prohibited. Posters must carry the official stamp of approval. And the London Times reports that all candidates must carefully abide by 10 rules governing political behavior. Moreover, Caetano's party opened the campaign by declaring 12 leftist opposition candidates ineligible.

The army's power restricts the paths open to Caetano. Portugal has 150,000 soldiers in Angola, Mazambique and Guinea-- and the military consumes nearly half of Portugal's annual budget. The head of the armed forces, General Venancio Deslandes, warned that the army "cannot consent to partisan and demagogic passions disturbing the tranquility of the Portuguese people."

The colonial issue has become the focal point of the elections. Caetano has said that Portugal will not waver in her determination to "spare our Africa the calamities of a phony independence." Richard Mowrer, correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor, reported from Lisbon that Caetano considered the election a test of whether "the Portuguese people advocate abandonment of the overseas provinces." No one believes that the election will take Portugal out of Africa. But even a handful of opposition candidates in the National Assembly could shake up Portugal's immobilism.

LONDON — Musicians sing of "April in Paris," "April in Portugal." Robert Browning, sunning himself somewhere in the south of France, longed "to be in England, now that April's there." He forgot how cold it can be. London is a snappy 45 degrees, even with sun, and the only warmth comes from great splashes of daffodils on the slopes of Hyde Park.

Exactly at 10:30 p.m. Thursday night Pan Am rolled us out of Kennedy Airport and exactly at 4:50 a.m. Friday we were landing at Heathrow in London, only the time there was ten minutes to eleven of a shiny morning.

Passengers at the later- than - planned departure had been taken to the "Golden Door" restaurant at Kennedy for dinner, PAA's compliments, But, when we boarded, the hostesses were prepared to serve their regular generous meal, an offer very few accepted. We bedded down contentedly.

Before long I note that tomorrow is a faint pink streak ahead, below us the gray ripples of ocean. Barren land appears, then the little geometric squares of English countryside, each one neatly stitched around with dark green hedgerows. We lower in directly over Windsor Castle. Surely, when the royal family is in residence, they must shake their fists along with the commoners over whose homes these noisy jets descend.

Brown's Hotel, Dover Street in Mayfair, is our London destination. Old, warmly comfortable, slightly shabby and about as far from the new glitter of Hilton as you can get, Brown's is as venerable as the British empire and considerably more stable. It's a country inn a block from Piccadilly. It's an entrance hall lobby, panelled lounges with soft chairs and couches, morning coffee and four o'clock tea served there in comfort, dining room waiters in tails, lunch and dinner, chintz at the windows, excellent food, an elevator which holds two guests (three are embarrassedly crowded). It's a bathtub big enough to drown in, shoes put out at night, a valet concerned about the spot on a vest and Gordon, the young man at the porter's desk, concerned about a guest's pleasure. Brown's is a worthy British tradition.

Arrive Friday in London and you have the weekend to get acquainted with it. Light traffic is an aid on Saturday and Sunday. We taxied to Trafalgar Square Saturday morning then took off on foot, first into St. Martin's - in- the Fields Church at the top of the square... so old it was once actually in the fields outside the "City" itself... done by a protege of Christopher Wren ... Gibbs, by name. Warning at the door: if you kneel to pray, hold onto your purse... many have been stolen back of the bowed head! Next, into the Square dominated by Admiral Nelson, England's No. One naval hero, with the famous Landseer lions guarding the base. Trafalgar is a protest point and a few were already on soap boxes, early as it was. The delightfully courteous bobbies were around with tiny walkie- talkies clipped to their chests. Back of us stretches the National Gallery. Down to the south of us we see Whitehall with its Houses of Parliament, the great tower of Big Ben and, just beyond, the spires of Westminster Abbey. Big Ben, incidentally, is the bell and does not connote the clock itself. So a bobby told us.

We scurry across traffic and under Admiralty Arch. To the left is the complex of Britain's naval administration buildings, to the right the impressive facade of Carlton House terrace, once royalty's homes, now government offices or whatnot. We are walking down the Mall and cross over to walk along St. James Park. Children, dogs and grown- ups are reveling in the sun, cold as it is. Yellow tulips are out. We walk the three- quarters of a mile down the park to its lagoon where the fountain sprays and the willows weep. Now we're just in front of Buckingham Palace. We hurry across the circle's traffic into Victoria Square, remembering on a former trip that we saw the little royal children waving from their nursery windows on some ceremonial occasion. At this point the most beautiful sight within view is a vacant taxi and we promptly hail it for a ide through Hyde Park and a grimace at the incongruous, gingerbready Albert Memorial on the greensward. Vicky really overdid it.

Theater is tops in London. Saturday afternoon we went to the Savoy (birthplace in 1881 at Gilbert and Sullivan's efforts) to see "The Secretary Bird," clever, very funny and not the vulgarity we've stomached on Broadway later. "Hair," the musical we disliked so much in New York, is top seller here. Kenneth More stars in "The Secretary Bird" and William Douglas Home is the author.

Theater is cheaper here than in New York. Saturday matinees are mostly five o'clock, evenings start at eight. On week nights the time is seven- thirty, an hour earlier than in New York. A pot of tea (coffee at night), ice cream, a soft drink, all may be bought and served at the seat in intermission with great politeness by the usherettes. I can just imagine this in New York! After every performance the audience remains standing in place while "God Save the Queen" is played. I think if anyone attempted to move out he would be mobbed.

Savoy Theater is at the entrance to the famous and elegant Savoy Hotel on the Thames embankment. We walked to the river, gazed out at Waterloo Bridge and beyond where old London Bridge had been, then repaired into the hotel for a Scotch and water on rocks (which is served everywhere here in wine glasses).

The mini minis were passing by. "There's one," said my husband, "right up to her crouch," a mispronunciation I find infinitely more descriptive than "crotch."

Science Club Invites Others To Meeting

EAST PRAIRIE — The Science Club of East Prairie high school has extended an invitation to the science clubs of Hayti and Portageville high schools to meet with them in order that they may see how a larger club operates.

This question continues to baffle scientists, who have not found the answer. Another project discussed was to feed a pumpkin milk and observe any changes in growth, size and taste.

Indians Ask Settlement for Lost Land

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Early in the 1800s, before the white man moved westward through the Plans, Osage Indians farmed and hunted over a four- state area including parts of present-day Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri and Arkansas.

The Osages, who then numbered between 4,000 and 11,000, were no match for the approaching pioneers tho took their land. Now the Osages are in court seeking what they say is a fair settlement for their homeland.

An evaluation hearing opens Jan. 20 before the Indian Claims Commission in Washington. Unofficially, it is estimated the land may bring the tribe $1 million to $15 million, based on other settlements in recent years. There are about 5,000 members of the tribe today.

Involved is 15.3 million acres extending from east of Fort Smith, Ark., up the Arkansas River through the city of Tulsa to Arkansas City, Kan., North and east in Kansas to Emporia, then east to the Ozark Mountain area southeast of Kansas City, adn back south through Missouri and Arkansas to near Fort Smith.

Beside the cities and farmland, the area today includes lead, zinc and coal mining areas of the four states and oil and gas land in Oklahoma and Kansas.

A claim by the Osages that the land actually belonged to them has been established in past years. The January hearing – second involving the tribe-- is to set compensation for the Osages for their home and hunting grounds.

In an earlier suit that lasted 18 years, the Osages received $6.9 million for another 12 million acres in southern Missouri and northern Arkansas. The land, taken in another treaty, borders the present disputed land on the east.

Besfore 1825, the Osages were a small band of Indians who made their livelihood from hunting and farming. For about seven months of the year they hunted bufffalo and two months were spent hunting deer, bear and other small game. The remaining three months were spent at their villages where they raised vegetables and fruits.

Hunting campus and garden plots along the Arkansas River from a northern point near present Hutchinson, Kan., to the mouth of the Canadian River establish indications of Osage control of the Arkansas River in the area. They actually hunted as far west as the Oklahoma Panhandle but didn't live there sufficiently long to establish claim.

In a treaty of 1808, the government took the 12 million acres in Missouri and Arkansas, shoving the tribe westward. For the land, the Osages received $6.9 million after a suit that lasted 18 years.

That land extends from a line between Kansas City and Fort Smith eastward in the two states as far as Jefferson City, Mo.

In later treaties of 1818 and 1825, the government took the 15.3 million acres now in court. At that time they pushed the Osages into an area 50-by-30 miles in size in southeastern Kansas that eventually was sold for $1.25 an acre.

If and when a judgment is awarded, the congress of the tribe will decide how it is to be spent. It could go in a per capita settlement but there is support for using it in a tribal fund for long- range benefits.

Tax Exemption Hike Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee rejected today by a tie 8-8 vote a proposal to increase the personal income tax exemption, Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., reported.

It then turned to consideration of other forms of relief for individual income taxpayers.

Gore told reporters that the key vote came on his proposal to raise the personal exemption from the present $600 to $900.

This was a compromise from his original suggestion, which was for a boost to $1,000.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., the committee chairman, has predicted his panel will vote over-all individual income tax relief approximating the total of $9.2 billion in the House version of the tax legislation.

Hickel Presses For Stepped-up Pollution Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel said Wednesday he is pressing Kansas, Missouri and Illinois to step up efforts to control water pollution.

Hickel made the statement in announcing an order to the state of Iowa to provide secondary treatment of sewage entering the Mississippi and Missouri rivers. He set Dec. 31, 1973 as the deadline for Iowa's compliance.

It is the first time the Interior Department has moved to take the question out of state hands and set federal standards.

Carl L. Klein, assistant secretary for water quality, said, "Before taking the step of publishing standards for Iowa, we exhausted all our other remedies under the law."

Hickel said setting standards for Iowa was part of a plant to clean up the Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio rivers.

"We are moving across the Mississippi," Hickel said, "to ask Illinois to update its secondary treatment target date for Rock Island, Moline, and East Moline, East St. Louis and Chester.

Nixon Offers Consumer Bill of Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon proposed today reorganization of the Federal Trade Commission and expansion of its powers as part of a program to benefit consumers.

Another proposal would establish a division of consumer protection in the Justice Department to support consumer interests in court and before government agencies.

In a special message to Congress, the President spelled out a "Buyer's Bill of Rights" which he said "will help provide greater personal freedom for individuals as well as better business for everyone engaged in trade."

The President's recommendations included revitalizing and expanding the Office of Consumer Affairs headed by Virginia Knauer, his special assistant in that field.

Other suggestions included:

—A law that would permit private citizens to seek combined damage suits against firms convicted of violating federal law concerning fraudulent and deceptive practices.

—Government review of product testing and release of the results of government studies of consumer products.

Hanoi Rejects U.S. Private Talk Appeal

PARIS (AP)-The United States called today for a restricted session of the Parris peace talks for next week "to break out of this sterile situation and promote serious negotiations." But the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong deldgations immediately turned it down.

Hanoi's ambassador called the proposal a "maneuver aimed at camouflaging the truth, to deceive public opinion on the United States refusal to and the war of aggression and withdraw all its troops from South Vietnam."

Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, in a brief statement to the 40th session of the peace conference, proposed that the principal spolesman of each delegation, accompanied by no more than three advisers, meet next Tuesday in a "new approach" to the deadlocked talks.

He suggested that there would be "no public record of what is said" at such restricted sessions "but we could agree on exactly what would be said to the press after each session."

However, the North Vietnamese source reported the Viet Cong's provisional revolutionary government of South Vietnam immediately turned down the proposal.

Mrs. Mguyen Thi Binh, the Viet Cong's foreign minister, said the Lodge move was aimed at "legalizing" the Saigon regime, avoiding a reply to Viet Cong demands for an end "to the U. S. aggression," and to "cover crimes committed by Americans" in South Vietnam.

She called for the United States to have private talks with the Viet Cong to settle the Vietnam war, a proposal previously rejected by the United States.

Lodge told the meeting: "We need a new approach to break out of this sterile situation and promote serious negotiations."

North Vietnamese Ambassador Xuan Thuy said that "in order to go straight to practical works" he was asking Lodge to answer two questions:

-When does the United States intend to completely withdraw its troops?

-When will the U. S. delegate start direct talks with the Viet Cong?

The United States has already rejected the North Vietnamese proposal to cut out the Saigon government from private talks, and has insisted upon a mutual withdrawal of all non-South Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam.

Lebanese Airport Raided Despite Peace Hope Rise

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arab guerrillas attacked Lebanon's new military airport at Klayat early today, supported by rockets, mortars and artillery fire from nearby Syria, the Lebanese government anounced.

Fighting also raged around the mountain town of Rashaya, where government forces were said to have beaten back another guerrilla attack on their outer defenses.

A connunique said a strong guerrilla force tried to occupy the village of Aiha, two miles from Rashaya, and the surrounding hills. Newsmen on the scene have reported the guerrillas already occupy Aiha, but the Lebanese army has not admitted this.

The new fighting came amid indications from Cairo that prospects for a peace agreement were improving. An Egyptian spokesman said Egypt had approved Lebanon's proposals for peace with the guerrillas, had agreed to mediate, and had invited guerrilla chief Yassir Arafat to Cairo for peace talks.

At Klayat, in north Lebanon about three miles from the Syrian border, the guerrillas were driven off after a 30-minute gun fight and suffered heavy losses, the Lebanese connumique said. It reported one building hit by a rocket, the runway slightly damaged and one soldier wounded.

Klayat was used by Lebanon's new Mirage jet fighters until they were moved to a less vulnerable base after the conflict with the guerrillas developed. The road to has been cut by Arabs in a refugee camp north of Tripoli, and the army has made no attempt to reopen it.

In the southern port of Sidon, another guerrilla force attacked an army checkpoint with grenades and machine guns and wounded one soldier, the communique said.

Beirut was quiet following another night of terrorist dynanite blasts.

Hassan Sabry el Kholy, a special representative of President Gamal Abdel Nasser, said the Lebanese government had agreed in principle to give Palestinian guerrillas "freedom of action within the country provided this does not contradict with Lebanon's security and sovereignty." The statement was distributed Wednesday night by Egypt's official Middle East News Agency.

El Kholy's statement said Egyptian representatives reached agreement with a Lebanese delegation headed by Army Chief of Staff Emile Bustany on the basis of proposals submitted by Gen. Bustany.

The Egyptian statement gave no indication of what these proposals were. But there has been speculation the Beirut government would agree to let the guerrillas alone if they confined themselves to the arid, sparsely populated area in southeast Lebanon which they have been using as a base for raids on Israel.

The Lebanese hope that with such an arrangement, Israeli retaliatory air and artillery attacks would be confined to this guerrilla area and that the rest of the country could go about business as usual.

It was not known whether Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization, had agreed to join the talks. Arafat was in Damascus.

There was no official comment from the Lebanese on the Egyptian announcement, but Ambassador Halim Abou Ezzidin said the talks Wednesday "achieved great progress and were conducted in a friendly, understanding and brotherly atmosphere."

Al Fatah, the main guerrilla group in the PLO, announced in Amman that it had accepted a Lebanese proposal for a 24-hour halt in hostilities in Lebanon, but Beirut Radio denied Wednesday night that the government had made such a proposal.

The government indicated, however, that it considered a cease - fire in effect, saying: "We have stated repeatedly that we only fire in self-defense and when they fire against us."

Court Outlaws Clause Enabling Schools to Delay Desegregation

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court has stripped southern school officials of their favorite legal crutch and ordered an end to delay in the desegregation of public schools.

The unanimous decision, given Wednesday night in a Mississippi case, said the "all deliberate speed" doctrine no longer may serve as a cover for the continued operation of segregated schools.

"The obligation of every school district is to terminate dual school systems at once and to operate now and hereafter only unitary schools," declared the decision, first under chief Justice Warren E. Burger.

The ruling was a stunning setback to the Nixon administration, which had maintained education officials needed more time to "validate" desegragation plans for schools in Mississippi.

Its import extends far beyond the state, reaching wherever racially separate schools remain as a vestige of segregation laws the court began declaring unconstitutional in 1954.

Beyond that, the decision could save as a platform for legal attacks in the North. Though most northern school segragation is a result of neighborhood housing patters. The ruling's effect in these situations was not immediately clear.

The court acted with urgent dispatch. It had conducted its hearing only last Thursday and issued its ruling during a recess, the first such move in nearly five years.

The opinion was unsigned, though some of the phrases bore the unmistakeable imprint of Justice Hugo L. Black, who in an interim ruling last month recommended a final uprooting of the "all deliberate speed" doctrine.

The decision requires the U. S. Court of Appeals in New Orleans to order Mississippi school districts to "begin immediately to operate as unitary school systems within which no person is to be effectively excluded from any school because of race or color."

The appeals court is to use as a vehicle desegregation plans that would have taken effect Sept. 1 had not the administration counseled delay until Dec. 1.

"Modifications" may be made, the Supreme Court said, so long as they "insure a totally unitary school system for all eligible pupils without regard to race or color."

The school officials are free to lodge whatever objections they may have, the high court said, but these are to be considered by federal judges in Mississippi after - and not before - the plans are put into effect.

The decision contained a stinging rebuke to the court in New Orleans for accepting the administration's advice last August and postponing further desegregation.

"The court of appeals," the high court said, "should have denied all motions for additional time because continued operation of segregated schools under a standard of allowing 'all deliberate speed' for desegregation is no longer constitutionally permissible."

The decision cited 1964 and 1968 rulings that called for immediate desegregation of Virginia schools.

The concept of "all deliberate speed" was set forth by the Supreme Court in 1955. Recognizing that school officials faced massive administrative difficulties in abandoning racially separate schools, the court said they should act, nonetheless, with "all deliberate speed."

Following the ruling, the Justice Department maintained a cautious stance, saying the government's future course depended on what the New Orleans appeals court did to implement the ruling.

Sen. James O, Eastland, D-Miss., said "the decision spells disaster for public education in Mississippi and many parts of the South."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said the court "has allowed ideological passion to overcome reason in this tragic ruling."

John C. Satterfield of Yazoo City, the former American Bar Association president who argued the case of Mississippi, said if Health, Education and Welfare plans, as submitted, are put into effect immediately that could destroy many of the school systems.

Lower Vote Age Drive Underway

James Green has been appointed 10th congressional district chairman for a drive to lower the voting age from 21 to 18. Ralph Pfremmer, Columbia president of the Missouri Young Democrats, Inc., announced the appointment Wednesday.

The statewide effort was launched in an attempt to the place the lower voting age proposal on the ballot in November of 1970.

Pfremmer said 5,000 petitions have been printed and distributed to points in the state where Young Democrats will seek signatures to force a statewide election.

Members of the Sikeston Community Teachers Association refused Wednesday to endorse a motion approving the lower voting age. About 75 per cent of those present voted against the measure.

In a telephone survey made this morning 20 persons living in Sikeston, 12 endorsed lowering the age.

Mexicans Enter U.S. Illegally

Two Mexican wetbacks were apprehended yesterday by police at 3:30 p.m. in connection with an illegal entry into the United States. They are being held for immigration authorities.

Jesus Zamora, 19, and Jaime Hernandez Mendez, 32, told police through a Spanish teacher interpreter that they entered the United States about six days ago by swimming the Rio Grande river near Laredo Tex., Mexican man promised to take them to Chicago and get them a job.

They reached the Sikeston area Monday where their car, a 1963 Ford station wagon, caught fire east of the Holiday Inn on highway 60. The driver ran off and left them.

They told Police Chief Arthur Bruce that "we came to U. S. to get rich. More money in this country."

It is believed by police that there were four other wetbacks with the two who caught a bus to Chicago. The unidentified Mexican driver is believed to have caught a ride to Cairo.

American Nobel Victor For Physics

STOCKHOLM (AP) - The 1969 Nobel Prize in physics was awarded today to an American, while the chemistry prize went jointly to a Briton and a Norwegian.

The Royal Swedish Academy of Science announced the physics prize goes to Prof. Murray Gell-Mann, 40, of the California Institute of Technology for his "contributions and discoveries concerning the classification of elementary particles and their interactions."

The chemistry prize was awarded to Prof. Derk H. R. Barton, 51, of the Imperial College of Science and Technology in London and Prof. Odd Hassel, 72, of the University of Oslo "for their work to develop and apply the concept of confirmation in chemistry."

The prizes this year carry a record cash award of $72,800.

The awards today give the United States two of the three Nobel prizes for science. The prize in medicine was awarded earlier this month to three Americans for basic virus research. Last year the United States made a clean sweep of the three scientific prizes.

Gell - Mann, born in New York in 1929, has been the leading theorist in elementary particle research for the last 15 years, the Royal Swedish Academy of Science said.

The 1968 physics award also went to an American - Prof. Luis Alvarez - for elementary particle research.

Barton and Hassel will share equally the $72,800 in prize money.

Hassel has conducted fundamental studies of a hydrocarbon called cyclohexane and related compounds.

Barton has been a visiting professor at Harvard University and at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Picket Lines Being Lifted

NEW MADRID - Picket lines which have prevented an estimated 1,100 workers from reporting to work on the Noranda Aluminum Inc. reduction plant and the city of New Madrid power plant project and docking facilities, east of Marston were being removed this morning according to Kaiser Engineering company spokesman.

The work stopage began Wednesday morning when workmen declined to cross picket lines erected by a Boilermakers local in what was thought to be a jurisdictional dispute.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
A CRIME SURCHARGE

A restaurant chain in Washington, D. C. is charging customers a five - cents - per - check surcharge in an effort to "try to get back our losses and to try to impress on the neighborhood that something should be done to stop robberies." The policy is in effect in only one of the chain's eight D. C. area locations. This one cafe was hit by armed bandits twice in just one month.

The move by the chain is just one of many instances in which businesses are being forced by criminals to take measures to protect themselves and their employees from the rash of holdups in many parts of Washington. A chain of dairy stores has become a favorite target for stickups; it has closed at least two stores because of robberies. One of its outlets was held up twelve times and another four times.

The local anti-poverty agency is protesting and picketing the restaurant, and the City Council is trying to come up with an alternative for the dairy chain that would permit the stores to reopen. We wonder if they will eventually conceive means of supplying protection to the stores. It doesn't appear to have occurred to the Council that the best way to stop the closing of stores is to provide adequate police protection.

Perhaps the Council will figure that if they add a surcharge of five - cents - per - check to all restaurant bills they could use the proceeds to hire guards for the restaurants. Of course this could not be done without congressional approval. Therefore there would have to be debate on the problem on Capitol Hill. This, judging by the rate of speed at which some of the pending anti-crime legislation is being shuffled around in various committees, should be accomplished by the year 2000. Perhaps the criminals would agree to a moratorium while the bill is pending. They could be placed on the relief rolls while they wait.

Then the stores could reopen with a temporary emergency tax that would be maintained for several decades until a new generation of holdup artists begin the cycle once more. Eventually, of course, someone may even come up with a unique idea - like tough law enforcement and strict mandatory penalties for use of a deadly weapon in committing a crime. But we won't hold our breath.

LAYING IT ON THE LINE FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS

Man bit dog the other day. Or more accurately, a teacher lectured students on how they should conduct themselves academically -- which is something of a switch.

"The task of students is to learn and to be instructed, not to decide what courses will be taught and who will teach them, and not to invest the university's money," says philosopher Ernest van den Hag of New York University, addressing a freshman convocation at DePauw University in Indiana.

Other blunt advice offered by van den Haag:

"Students are not in a position to know what they should be taught; if they do know what they should be taught, then they have what they came for and they should leave the university."

"The proper task of a university is teaching you to reflect, to analyze and see what actions and alternatives are available and should be taken. The place is not committed to action, but to prepare you to make future commitments."

"The way to learn about poverty is not to be indignant but to study economics. If you are interested in preventing war, it doesn't mean a thing to 'make love, nor war,' but it does mean something to learn how to prevent war by studying in political science and history."

Perhaps the bluntest statement of all is van den Haag's contention that the reason higher education is irrelevant to so many college students today is because "so many students themselves are irrelevant to college."

Americans are in the midst of an "educational escalation," he says. They erroneously believe that you can do anything better if you have more and more academic preparation. Hence the new waves of college students, half of whom shouldn't be in college.

Van den Haag says he favors a law that not only outlaws discrimination on the basis of sex, race and religion, but also on the amount of one's education.

"Discrimination on the basis of educational degree should be prohibited unless it can be shown it is relevant to the work required to be done."

Interestingly enough, the professor was not jeered but was, in fact, enthusiastically applauded by his student listeners.

THE SWEET SCENT OF $$$

In the days before the telephone rang off the tradition of letter-writing, a prudent young lady kept her stationery well-sacheted to perpetuate the romantic intent of her correspondent. A young man finding a dainty envelope in the day's mail would hole it to his nostrils and breathe the familiar attar designed to conjure up his lovely's feminity. There may be a few sweet young things who continue to use that ploy. But the National Geographic Society reports that the magic spell of perfume now is being enlisted by big business to prompt dollar signs in the till instead of sweet nothings in the heart.

Aromatic advertisements on impregnated paper plug a product. Fragrances are instilled in floor waxes, fabrics and lighter fluids to make the consumer happier while using them. And once a customer is sold on his purchase, the seller may soften the billing blow by sending statements out in scented envelopes.

One odor may be used to mask another less pleasant. Fertilizers, for instance, can be rendered completely odorless. But for the sake of farmers conditioned by tradition, scientists add a whiff of "barnyard" to make them feel more at home with the chemical. There is a spray which gives a new, expensive bouquet to used cars and a perfume to make Rover's aroma less dog-like.

As a result of the growing demand for industrial perfume, modern alchemy must produce synthetics to replace the geniune, but costly real thing. Thus, these days, one can't trust his sense of smell to tell him the truth any more. That blue envelope reeking of violet may turn out to be a summons instead of a billet doux. It's getting so we even question that old proboscis expert,. Jimmy Durante, who has asserted for years, "The nose knows."

ELECTIONS BACKED BALAGUER

In municipal elections held throughout the Dominican Republic, in May, the Dominican people demonstrated their confidence in the party of President Joaquin Balaguer, underscoring the wisdom of United States policy in that country.

When the United States helped the Dominican people overthrow the leftist regime of Juan Bosch in 1965, the Communists accused us of "imperialism," of thwarting the will of the people. Yet it is now obvious that Balaguer, who came into power at that time, has the full support of his countrymen.

During the municipal elections, Balaguer was careful to make no campaign speeches or endorsements, not wanting to subject the people to pressure of any kind from the national government. No government in the hands of Communists or Socialists would have followed a similar policy.

The elections themselves were remarkable for their honesty and the absence of any widespread violence. Over one million voters, a very heavy turnout, cast their ballots. They did this in spite of appeals of Bosch and other leftists that the people boycott the election.

Through the democratic progress, the Dominican people gave President Balaguer and his Reformista Party an overwhelming vote of confidence. The Reformistas and pro-Balaguer independents won an estimated 90 percent of the mayoralties and city council seats involved in the election. It is clear that Bosch's influence is extremely weak.

The recent election shows that the Dominicans approve the results of U. S. action in their country. Despite the propaganda cries of the Communists, our policy in the Dominican Republic directly benefitted the people.

NEW YORK (AP) — One of life's little ordeals today is trying to act like a perfect gentleman.

Gallantry was a great thing when knighthood was in flower, but it is more of a strain than most male flesh can bear in these seedy times.

The decay of male courtesy is caused by two factors: (1) There isn't room or time for old-fashioned courtesy in a crowded civilization, and (2) the changing nature of the chief object of gallantry—woman herself.

Suppose, for example, he decides to take off his hat and make a sweeping bow as a lady enters a packed office elevator. All he manages to do is to scatter dandruff over 12 people and win glares of hatred from every other man in the elevator. The lady, if she notices him at all, thinks of him as some kind of a nut.

Suppose, remembering his daily good deed as a Boy Scout, he makes it a policy to help across the street every little old lady he meets.

If a guy touches the arm of a little old lady with the intention of assisting her through the traffic, she is likely to belt him in the face with a 30-pound handbag and yell:

"Help! Police! I'm being mugged!"

That points up the second problem of male gallantry—the changing attitude toward it by women.

Women theoretically still like for men to be chivalrous and knightly. But when a man does treat her with a flourish of good manners, she either is made uneasy or misunderstands his motives.

Suppose a husband decides he will quit acting like a bum toward his wife and from now on he'll get up to his feet every time she enters or leaves the living room.

What happens? Well, of course for the first few days he has her completely mystified. She wonders what he is up to. Finally, a gleam of comprehension enters her eyes.

"You sure had me puzzled, Buster," she says. "But I finally figured it out—you're taking some new kind of yoga exercise. Shall we do it together? I need to lose some weight, too."

It never even occurs to her that the poor dolt she married is only trying to be a gentleman.

If a guy helps a lady struggle into a heavy coat, she is sure he must be some kind of a sex maniac with a feish for fabrics.

So what profiteth it a man to be a perfect gentleman anymore, since he so seldom meets a perfect lady to be a perfect gentleman to? If he doesn't get the credit, why take the trouble?

It's far easier for a man to forget the antique graces of yesterday and to treat women as if they were men which, according to some statistics, 65 per cent of them secretly would rather be anyway.

H.L. Hunt Says

REFORM, NOT DESTRUCTION

The proposed constitutional amendment to allow for direct election of the President, recently approved by the House of Representatives, would destroy the electoral college system, not reform it in a constructive way. Adoption of this amendment would move Republic USA a long way from a union of states. It would mean abandoning the federal structure in one of its most important manifestations, the election of a President.

A final decision is yet to be made and may not come for many months, perhaps even several years. First, the Senate will have to take up the proposed amendment. If the Senate acts there is every likelihood that a conference committee of the two houses of Congress will be necessary. Some features of the House version probably will never be accepted by the Senate.

Even after final action by Congress, the amendment would have to be submitted to the 50 state legislatures and three-fourths of them ratify the amendment accepting a loss of Presidential voting power, or we would have only the present electoral system.

So there is still time to reform, not destroy, the electoral college. The best way to do this is offered by the district plan. A presidential candidate would win one electoral vote for each congressional district he carried, plus two votes for each state he carried. This plan would apply to the presidency the same basic plan used to elect members of Congress. The federal system established by the Founders of Freedom would be preserved. Bloc voting and big city machines would become of less importance in the election of a President. The advantages of the district plan deserve careful consideration by the Senate. HLH

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--Life magazine has accused Speacker John McCormack, third in line of succession and second in power to the President, of conscious participation in the political fixes that were arranged by his suspended aide, Martin Sweig, for five percenter Nathan Voloshen.

My own investigation has confirmed that the craggy, congenial McCormack, a product of South Boston's "Last Hurrah" politics, would cheerfully fix anything from a traffic ticket to a government contract for a friend or constituent. That's how the game is played in the scrubby precincts that have kept McCormack in Congress for 41 years.

But I am convinced that the old man has never taken a penny for his political favors. He is an old-fashioned patriot and puritan, whose conduct has been governed by a strong Catholic conscience. Indeed, he has been overheard in the Speaker's chair mumbling prayers to the Virgin Mary.

Life's crack investigative team was alerted to the Sweig-Voloshen operations by a former Time-Life employee who became associated with Voloshen. While the Life sleuths carefully checked out the specific fixes reported by their informant, I sent legman David Detweiler into McCormack's office last August with specific instructions to watch Sweig.

INSIDE SWEIG'S OFFICE

Posing as a student, Detweiler became a fixture in the office and, over the weeks, obtained an insight into its operations. Sweig took calls from all over the country, handling each one with a confidential, almost furtive air. During a typical 30-minute period, he talked to a young reservist who wanted a transfer, a corporation president seeking inside information about his company's case before a federal agency, a top Democrat checking up on an attorney supposedly close to the Speaker.

Not only Sweig but the Speaker himself always gave top priority to helping the people who called or wrote for favors. Once McCormack chewed out a new assistant who had turned down a request to fix a traffic ticket. The new man drafted a letter explaining why it is immoral to fix traffic tickets and signed the Speaker's name to it. When McCormack learned about the letter he blew his stack.

For several weeks, however, I tried to find someone who had paid off the Speaker for a favor. I sought out non-Boston businessmen, in particular,who had received help from McCormack. Invariably, they had offered him the customary campaign contribution. But he had turned them all down, explaining he had no opposition and, therefore, no campaign expenses.

MCCORMACK AND TRUJILLO

One Washington, D. C., businessman told me he had pressed McCormack to take the money and distribute it to other deserving Democrats. Two weeks later the businessman got half of his money back and a letter listing how the other half had been distributed. Every Democrat on the list also wrote the businessman, thanking him for the donation.

The most serious charge against the Speaker was raised by Gen. Arturo Espaillat, a former crony of the late Dominican Dictator Rafael Trujillo. In his book, "The Last Caesar," Espaillat wrote that "a very prominent U. S. Congressman" had written to Trujillo on plain white paper from Boston and had collected ''birdseed'' (Espaillat's euphemism for money) from the dictator. The golden "birdseed" allegedly was delivered to McCormack ''through his Washington administrative assistant."

I was unable to reach Espaillat, who is in hiding from his political foes. But sources close to him identified the prominent Congressman as McCormack. I made a thorough check in Washington, Boston and the Dominican Republic. I could find absolutely no evidence that the Speaker ever received money from Trujillo. I am convinced that, if any "birdseed" was sprinkled around McCormack's office, the old man never knew about it.

AGNEW ECHOES NIXON

Vice President Spiro Agnew, whose attacks upon the doves have drawn a withering return fire, simply has repeated in public what he has heard his boss say in private. For in the backrooms of the White House, President Nixon has been talking like a hawk.

He has made caustic cracks abyut what he calls "the cut-and-run" boys. He has also reiterated privately his public statement ahat he isn't going to let the anti-war clamor influence his decisions on Vietnam.

"What counts is not the weight of the mail," he has told his advisers, "but the weight of the evidence."

In these strategy sessions he has accused the sponsors of the pull-out resolutions not only of undercutting the Paris negotiations but of prolonging the war.

"The sponsors of these resolutions," he has grumped, "should also tell our negotiators in Paris to come home. Any chance for negotiations is destroyed if the enemy believes the pull-out resolutions."

Secretary of State Bill Rogers has suggested a showdown on the proposal of setting an arbitrary date for a final American withdrawal from Vietnam. He wanted to know whether the votes could be mustered to defeat a pull-out resolution.

The President felt the resolution could be easily defeated in the House but might run into trouble in the Senate. He toyed with the idea of circulating a "United Front Letter" in Congress. He thought as many as 300 signatures could be obtained to a letter endorsing his handling of the Vietnam negotiations.

He wished the American people would understand, he told his advisors, that "we have only one President--only one negotiator--at a time."

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

LABOR WARS AGAIN:
GE Walkout Is First Post (Vietnam) - War Strike

New York: -- This walkout at General Electric -- makers of almost everything from lamps to moon landings -- is the first postwar strike. Meaning, of course, the Vietnam war.

There is no doubt that the economic scientists (and one must assume they do exist) in the executive suites of labor, management and government, believe it's all over -- but the shooting and shouting -- and that this nation is heading into a recession.

Labor's analysts say so in all their round table skull sessions. Business leaders grimly watch the development of price resistance. And President Nixon's closest advisers, in cofidential conversations, say that the "inflation psychology" has been pricked.

So labor has woven a powerful Coordinated Bargaining Committee -- which exists in some 70 other industries -- for a phalanx attack on the corporation it has painted as a fire-breathing dragon, GE.

Marching with this labor legion along with the 20 - year - old International Union of Electrical Workers (IUE) is the Alliance For Labor Action -- namely the United Auto Workers and the Teamsters. Also the United Electrical Workers still led by the left-wingers who were ousted from the old CIO on evidence submitted by a labor lawyer (circa 1949), Arthur J. Goldberg.

The issues, therefore, are simple. The stakes are enormous.

The coalition of 13 national unions wants to lock its 147,000 GE employes into a 30-month contract which, depending on the computer you use, can cost half a billion dollars in the final year. Right now the legion demands (over the length of the contract) 90 cents an hour across the board, 50 cents for skilled workers, some 30 per cent of the force at GE installations in 133 cities, a cost - of - living clause which appears to include a retroactive 12½ per cent, and special shifts in a myriad of benefits and adjustments.

The company has countered with a basic $8-a-week offer across the board plus ad additionaly pay increase up to 45 cents and upwardly revised benefits -- for the first year.

Then, says GE to the labor coalition, if you don't like our next offer you can strike at the end of the first year. And if you don't like our offer the following year, strike again. But why now? Why lock us in, says the company in effect. Who knows what will happen? Keep your people working at what is the best offer we have ever made -- and which is competitive with other wages and industrial contracts.

To strike now, says GE, "is the wrong strike at the wrong time for the wrong reason."

Today it's all very peaceful -- and not like the days of former IUE President James Carey who told the company's chief negotiator, Philip Moore, now a vice president, that he (Carey) would pull Moore's arm out of its shoulder socket and then start stripping off his fingers from the nails up if GE didn't yield. The new union president, 51-year-old Paul J. Jennings, a militant and a member of the Lindsay Liberal Party, speaks more siftly -- except when he and his legal counsel talk about President Nixon and Labor Secretary Shultz.

Reason is that the labor coalition is aware that Messrs. Nixon and Shultz are not alarmed by this national stoppage in the electrical supply industry.

Secretary Shultz's attitude today can be wrapped up as follows:

As the Late labor historian and economist Sumner Slitchter said, the trouble with the American economy at times is that there are not enough strikes. Strikes are one of the ways that the economy readjusts and rearranges itself. Prof. Shultz appears to think so -- also that such stoppages put backbone into industry especially when the moment has come when its back is up against the price wall and consumer resistance is felt. Thus industry simply can't be forced into giving labor, in any field, whatever it demands whenever contracts expire. The public is resisting now. Therefore this puts pressure oprices. Thus you have tension between labor's demands and resistance of the consumer. The tension hits the bargaining table. When this tension gets taught enough there is a stand off, a deadlock, a strike, and finally the accommodation between the price of labor and the prices to the public.

Secretary Shultz, like all of us, knew the GE strike was coming and that it will probably last a long time. But he has no plans to do anything but keep himself and President Nixon informed.

This has angered the coalition's chiefs. And one of the two men who make its policy said on the first day of the strike: "Who does Shultz think he is? He's supposed to be Secretary of Labor. His charter says he's supposed to be assisting the working man. From what I hear, he should be Secretary of Commerce."

So the basic issue is who gets what and what happens to prices and demands when thy shooting ends and we go back to what once was called normalcy.

Furthermore, all the powerful unions are waiting in the wings. They know that they once had to try to smash U. S. Steel to get at the rest of industry. Then came General Motors' turn (as it will again in '70). And now the General Electric Co. is out front taking the assault because it is taking President Nixon's word that he's going to crack inflation, and taking Prof. Shultz's word, that the government will stay neutral while economics adjusts itself, and taking everybody's word that there will be a recession.

The war over there appears to be over. The labor - management wars have begun. It's 1946 all over again.

But this time, Harry Truman, John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson are not part of the Joint Chiefs of Labor's staff.

These Problems With Mothers-in-law...

Dear Ann Landers: Anyone who reads your column could guess you have a daughter and not a son. And it's too bad. If you had a son who was married to a selfish, spoiled girl --- then maybe you could give your readers some decent advice.

I'm sick and tired of letters in your column that makes the mother-in-law look like some kind of a terrible monster. Whenever you print a letter knocking a mother-in-law, I receive two copies in the mail the very next day. One I'm sure is from my daughter-in-law and the other one has got to be from her miserable mother.

I can't tell you how much it hurts a mother's heart to raise a boy and then hand him over to a lazy, good-for-nothing who uses plastic tablecloths and buys ready made potato salad. You should live to be a hundred, Ann Landers, and never know from these things. --- Miami

Dear Miami: Thanks for your letter. I hope you enjoy the next one.

Dear Ann landers: I hope MY mother-in-law doesn't think I wrote that terrible letter from the pregnant gal who wants to take care of her own baby when she comes home from the hospital.

When my first two babies were born, my mother-in-law was like an angel from heaven. Thanks to her I got two glorious weeks of rest. It was pure joy. My husband had wonderful meals, my older kids were bathed, fed and even entertained by grandma. I couldn't have had a better vacation on the French Riviera. When she left I cried.

It burns me up when I read those mean anti-mother-in-law letters in your column. And do you notice it is always the boy's mother who gets put down? I wish you'd print my letter, Ann. There are some pretty wonderful mothers-in-law around. Mine lives in El Paso. -- Sign Me Blessed.

Dear Blessed: I've got one too. Mine lives in Detroit. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: It would seem to me that the absence of ash trays in a home would indicate that the hostess would prefer that her guests not smoke. What should she do when they don't take the hint?

(1) Refuse to get jar lids when guests request ash trays after having been told you do not own any?

(2) Post up "No Smoking" signs in the living room?

(3) When inviting guests tell them in advance that if they can't live without a cigarette for a few hours to stay home?

(4) Simply give up the idea of entertaining large numbers of friends? Please answer in paper. I'm sure I'm not the only one with the problem. --- Ruth B. A.

Dear Ruth: People who have good taste do not ask for jar lids when they see no ash trays. They assume that the hostess does not want her guests to smoke and they abstain.

A hostess who posts No Smoking signs in her living room and tells people to stay home if they can't live without a cigarette, will not be bothered with "large numbers of guests." She will have OTHER problems.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send for her booklet "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Big Red Begins Home Stand Sunday

CAPE GIRARDEAU - One would expect Southeast Missouri State College head coach Tom Thrower to be prouder than a brand new father of his team's 32-24 come - from - behind victory Saturday over previously - unbeaten University of Missouri - Rolla.

Thrower, to be sure, was quite happy about the outcome of the football game, but he appeared Monday to be more concerned about the overall health of the Indians.

"What we really need is an open date," he said, explaining that several members of the squad got banged up pretty well by the rugged Miner defense.

In fact, one player, Tim Luckett of Bruceville, Ind., a defensive mainstay, sustained a knee injury and may be lost for the season. Thrower said the big 250-pound junior tackle had not seen a doctor yet, but commented, "We feel almost certain that he's out for the year."

Defensive line coach Jim Lohr added with a sigh, "I sure hate to lose Luckett."

Another player injured in Saturday's game was sophomore Bill Brown, a 190-pound defensive end. Thrower said it is quite possible that Brown will not be healed in time to play Saturday against Southwest Missouri State College of Springfield.

The Indians tangle with the hapless Bears in Springfield at 1:30 p.m. Southwest Missouri State, under new head coach Don "Red" Cross, is winless in six outings.

Against Rolla, the Indians found themselves trailing 17-0 midway through the second period. About that time, however, Thrower's charges got off a sustained scoring drive which made the score 17-7 at halftime.

Then, on the first series of downs after the second half kickoff, the Miners fumbled on their own 25 and Southeast Missouri State recovered, taking the ball in for a score several plays later.

Thrower indicated the fumble recovery was a key play in the victory. "After we scored, we were only three points down," he said. "This enabled us to keep the momentum we had gained about the middle of the second quarter and go on to win the game."

The offensive backfield star of the contest was senior halfback Bruce Hoffman of Park Forest, Ill. "Hoffman had the best game of his life," praised Thrower. "He did all right running (23 carries for 94 yards and two touchdowns) and his blocking was something else. He as really laying those ends out."

Other Indians to draw the praise of the coaching staff were junior Ron Helms of St. Louis, senior Steve Johnson of Granite City, Ill., senior Ken Joggerst of Ste. Genevieve, and sophomore Gene Figge of Ste. Genevieve.

Southeast Missouri State is now tied for the MIAA lead with Northeast Missouri State College of Kirksville, which knocked off Central Missouri State College of Warrensburg last Saturday. Both teams have 2-0 conference marks. Southeast Missouri State's overall slate is 5-1.

Seaver Top N.L. Hurler

NEW YORK (AP) - Pitching for the New York Mets has always been an experience, but never much of an honor until Tom Seaver came along.

Two years ago, Seaver won himself Rookie of the Year honors in the National League and now he has been selected the winner of the Cy Young Award as the league's best pitcher in 1969.

But Seaver represents more than just an honor or an award for the Mets; he represents the miraculous reversal for he was born out of a Mets' past that includes such master losers as Roger Craig, Craig Anderson, Jack Fisher, Jay Hook, Al Jackson, Galen Cisco and Tracy Stallard.

Only eight seasons ago when the Mets were created they lost a record 120 games and missed by a hair of becoming the first team with three 20-game losers.

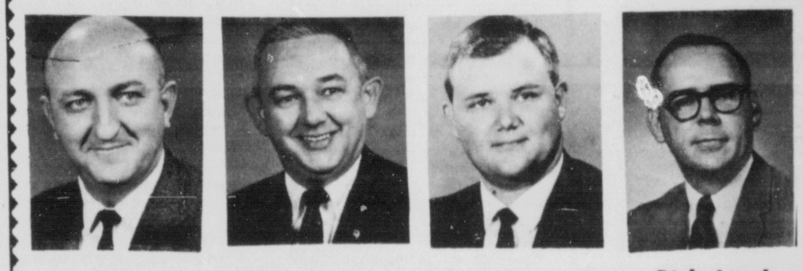

The first year, pitching for baseball's worst team ever, Craig lost 24 games, Jackson 20 and Hook 19. Anderson, who didn't pitch much during the final month, took 17 defeats.

Craig went on to lose 22 and next year, 18 of them in a row, and Stallard lost 20 and Cisco 19 in 1964.

Fisher was big loser the next three years with 24, 14 and 18.

And the hitting and fielding were just as bad, making it easy for a pitcher to lose 20.

Indians Chiefs Check Injuries; Look Ahead

ST. LOUIS -- The "month of Sundays" has arrived.

There are five of 'em during November, and the Cardinals are home for four -- dividing visits by New Orleans, New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh with a trip to Detroit.

New Orleans opens the month this week at Busch Memorial Satdium in a 1:05 p.m. (CST) game.

The Big Red rebounded with a last - minute drive to gain a 21-21 tie at Cleveland last week as Charley Johnson threw for 306 yards and John Gilliam gained 192 yards on only four receptions, three for touchdowns.

Gilliam, who scored on plays of 84, 75 and 15 yards, now has had two super - yardage games this season. The fleet wide receiver from South Carolina State rolled up 197 yards on 10 catches against Pittsburgh earlier in the season.

The tie left the Cardinals with a 2-3-1 record, still two games behind the Browns, who now are 4-1-1. It also continued the Cardinal dominance over Blanton Collier and the Browns at Cleveland. Since Collier became head coach of the Browns in 1963, the Cardinals show a 4-1-2 slate, easily the best record of any regular visitor to Municipal Stadium.

New Orleans, which battled Philadelphia before bowing, 13-10, last week, is winless in six starts this season, and has an 0-3 career record against the Cardinals. The Big Red won here, 31-20 in 1967 and 31-17 last year, and squeezed out a 21-20 triumph in New Orleans last season.

Jamie Rivers was a hero in both wins over the Saints last year. He blocked a field goal attempt on the final play of the first game to save the victory, then smelled out a fake field goal and dumped Dave Whitsell for a loss in the second game, keeping momentum on the side of the Big Red. The other hero in the first game was Chuck Latourette, who returned a punt for the first score and set an NFL record for punt returns.

The Southern Illinois University Maching Salukis will provide halftime entertainment against New Orleans, and the Golden Eagles of Southeast Missouri State will perform against New York on November 9, a game which starts at 3:05 p.m.

BIG RED NOTES: Charley Johnson's next touchdown pass will be the 100th of his professional career ... His first one was against Washington on October 14, 1962 ... Johnson's 306 yards and the Cardinals' total of 445 was the biggest since Johnson threw for 310 and the Big Red rolled up 489 in a 49-13 rout of the Browns ... John Roland's 56-yard day gives him 2213 for his career, sixth among all Cardinal running backs ... Gilliam's 192 yards is the first - best one - game performance, and his earlier day of 197 is fourth ... Sonny Randle's 256 against New York in 1962 leads the team ... Linebacker Dave Meggyesy and place kicker Jim Bakken will celebrate birthdays over the weekend, with Meggyesy reaching 28 on Saturday and Bakken becoming 20 on Sunday ...

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

This year school nurses have conducted a teamwork project in vision and hearing testing of all elementary youngsters. This screening process includes: tests to identify children with visual difficulties and/or hearing losses. When defects are discovered,the parents are notified in order that they may refer the child to their doctor for the necessary treatment. It is hoped that this will be done and that the defect can be corrected before they interfere with the child's progress in school. Mrs. Rachelle Jacob, Supervisor of the school nurses, has informed us that many mothers have assisted the nurses in the various schools and have been of invaluable help in accomplishing the screening.

It is our desire, as well as that of Mrs. Jacob and all the school nurses, to express our thanks to all of these volunteers. Their willingness to assist is most appreciated.

School will be dismissed one hour early next Wednesday, November 5, in order that teachers may leave for St. Louis to attend the state teachers meeting on Thursday and Friday. Normal dismissal time would result in most of them getting into St. Louis rather late, hence the early dismissal. Parents are advised to make whatever arrangements that are necessary because of the change in dismissal time.

Our Board of Education maintains one of the broadest Manpower Development Training Act programs in the State of Missouri. Programs recently funded for the fiscal year 1970, in Multi- Occupation includes: basic education; automotive services; agri-business; food services, heating and refrigeration; machine operator; health services; welding; clerk general office and building trades and maintenance.

This program provides job training for previously unemployed or underemployed individuals with insufficient skills to get and hold a job. A very large majority of those who have previously completed the various training programs have found jobs and are now employed. In fact, 86% of past graduates are job holders. Thus people who were on some sort of support program or dole, usually supported by the taxpayer, are now themselves taxpayers and, more importantly, are making their own way and supporting their families.

Bill Sikes is in charge of the Manpower Program here.

Due to the heavy emphasis on science and technology during the current decade it has been difficult to keep the total educational program in proper balance. By that we mean the national interest in and the popularity of scientific and technical areas have caused Congress and state legislatures to be more concerned with scientific and technical education than perhaps they are in other areas. Consequently, there must be a studied effort on the part of boards of education, administration and faculty to keep all subject matter areas in reasonable balance.

While it is important that students learn about science and technology, as certainly they will live in a scientific and technically oriented world, it is very necessary that they know how to communicate. They should read widely, be able to deal effectively with numbers and know something about the history of mankind and how man relates to his total environment. They need to know how to make a living but at the same time it is equally important that they recognize their responsibilities to their fellow man and to the society in which they exist; to appreciate all mankind and their environment, by living full and satisfying lives through knowing about and participating in the cultural activities such as music, the various other fine arts, in fact a wide variety of leisure time activities, that can make life more worthwhile.

Consequently, our Board of Education thinks it is important, to maintain the current balance of courses and activities that will give every youngster the opportunity for a full and well-rounded education. We certainly concur.

POLLY'S POINTERS

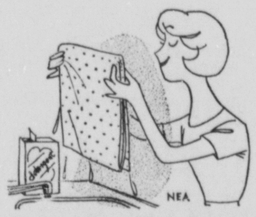

One Does, One Doesn't Iron Nylon Curtains

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Frieda can get the wrinkles out of her nylon curtains or garments by spraying lightly with spray starch and then pressing with a warm iron.—MRS. M. L.

DEAR GIRLS—Surely Frieda has not had as much trouble getting the wrinkles out of her nylon curtains as I had getting some in a nylon panel so I could test this starch treatment. By tying it in knots, washing and leaving it to dry so-tied, I finally acquired some and the cure was great. —POLLY

DEAR POLLY and Frieda—I never have to use an iron on my nylon curtains and I never have any wrinkles by washing them as follows: I fold two panels together and keep folding them until they will fit in the sink or tub. Straighten out any folds or wrinkles as you fold. I then soak them in a mild, warm detergent for 10 minutes and use my flat hand as a plunger to push them up and down. If necessary, the soapy washing can be repeated. When the dirt is all out, they are laid, still folded on the drain. The curtains are rinsed in clear water, still folded. Do not wring out but lay on the drain board and then carry to the line. unfold and throw two panels over the line together and let them drip dry. This works great for me and people think I have new curtains.—JENNIE

DEAR GIRLS—When curtains are too long to hang with clothespins fastened to the top hem and they must be thrown over the line, I find it better to put a cardboard roll, like those from a dry cleaner's coat hanger, under the panel so there is no danger of a line or stain through the middle.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I have tried to make those note cards that use bathroom tissues and waxed paper and are sealed together by ironing but have not had success. I hope someone can help me by sending the instructions.—JANET

Big Red Begins Home Stand Sunday

CAPE GIRARDEAU - One would expect Southeast Missouri State College head coach Tom Thrower to be prouder than a brand new father of his team's 32-24 come - from - behind victory Saturday over previously - unbeaten University of Missouri - Rolla.

Thrower, to be sure, was quite happy about the outcome of the football game, but he appeared Monday to be more concerned about the overall health of the Indians.

"What we really need is an open date," he said, explaining that several members of the squad got banged up pretty well by the rugged Miner defense.

In fact, one player, Tim Luckett of Bruceville, Ind., a defensive mainstay, sustained a knee injury and may be lost for the season. Thrower said the big 250-pound junior tackle had not seen a doctor yet, but commented, "We feel almost certain that he's out for the year."

Defensive line coach Jim Lohr added with a sigh, "I sure hate to lose Luckett."

Another player injured in Saturday's game was sophomore Bill Brown, a 190-pound defensive end. Thrower said it is quite possible that Brown will not be healed in time to play Saturday against Southwest Missouri State College of Springfield.

The Indians tangle with the hapless Bears in Springfield at 1:30 p.m. Southwest Missouri State, under new head coach Don "Red" Cross, is winless in six outings.

Against Rolla, the Indians found themselves trailing 17-0 midway through the second period. About that time, however, Thrower's charges got off a sustained scoring drive which made the score 17-7 at halftime.

Then, on the first series of downs after the second half kickoff, the Miners fumbled on their own 25 and Southeast Missouri State recovered, taking the ball in for a score several plays later.

Thrower indicated the fumble recovery was a key play in the victory. "After we scored, we were only three points down," he said. "This enabled us to keep the momentum we had gained about the middle of the second quarter and go on to win the game."

The offensive backfield star of the contest was senior halfback Bruce Hoffman of Park Forest, Ill. "Hoffman had the best game of his life," praised Thrower. "He did all right running (23 carries for 94 yards and two touchdowns) and his blocking was something else. He as really laying those ends out."

Other Indians to draw the praise of the coaching staff were junior Ron Helms of St. Louis, senior Steve Johnson of Granite City, Ill., senior Ken Joggerst of Ste. Genevieve, and sophomore Gene Figge of Ste. Genevieve.

Southeast Missouri State is now tied for the MIAA lead with Northeast Missouri State College of Kirksville, which knocked off Central Missouri State College of Warrensburg last Saturday. Both teams have 2-0 conference marks. Southeast Missouri State's overall slate is 5-1.

Parents Night At East Prairie

EAST PRAIRIE - "Parents Night" will be observed tonight at the football game with East Prairie slated against the unbeaten Malden eleven at 7:30 p.m.

Senior band members will be honored at half time.

Seaver Top N.L. Hurler

NEW YORK (AP) - Pitching for the New York Mets has always been an experience, but never much of an honor until Tom Seaver came along.

Two years ago, Seaver won himself Rookie of the Year honors in the National League and now he has been selected the winner of the Cy Young Award as the league's best pitcher in 1969.

But Seaver represents more than just an honor or an award for the Mets; he represents the miraculous reversal for he was born out of a Mets' past that includes such master losers as Roger Craig, Craig Anderson, Jack Fisher, Jay Hook, Al Jackson, Galen Cisco and Tracy Stallard.

Only eight seasons ago when the Mets were created they lost a record 120 games and missed by a hair of becoming the first team with three 20-game losers.

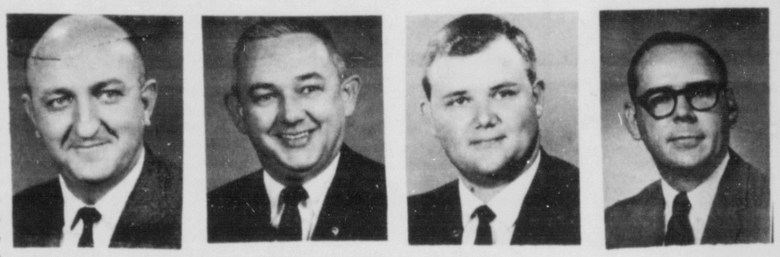

The first year, pitching for baseball's worst team ever, Craig lost 24 games, Jackson 20 and Hock 19. Anderson, who didn't pitch much during the final month, took 17 defeats.

Craig went on to lose 22 and next year, 18 of them in a row, and Stallard lost 20 and Cisco 19 in 1964.

Fisher was big loser the next three years with 24, 14 and 18.

And the hitting and fielding were just as bad, making it easy for a pitcher to lose 20.

Indians Chiefs Check Injuries; Look Ahead

ST. LOUIS -- The "month of Sundays" has arrived.

There are five of 'em during November, and the Cardinals are home for four -- dividing visits by New Orleans, New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh with a trip to Detroit.

New Orleans opens the month this week at Busch Memorial Satdium in a 1:05 p.m. (CST) game.

The Big Red rebounded with a last - minute drive to gain a 21-21 tie at Cleveland last week as Charley Johnson threw for 306 yards and John Gilliam gained 192 yards on only four receptions, three for touchdowns.

Gilliam, who scored on plays of 84, 75 and 15 yards, now has had two super - yardage games this season. The fleet wide receiver from South Carolina State rolled up 197 yards on 10 catches against Pittsburgh earlier in the season.

The tie left the Cardinals with a 2-3-1 record, still two games behind the Browns, who now are 4-1-1. It also continued the Cardinal dominance over Blanton Collier and the Browns at Cleveland. Since Collier became head coach of the Browns in 1963, the Cardinals show a 4-1-2 slate, easily the best record of any regular visitor to Municipal Stadium.

New Orleans, which battled Philadelphia before bowing, 13-10, last week, is winless in six starts this season, and has an 0-3 career record against the Cardinals. The Big Red won here, 31-20 in 1967 and 31-17 last year, and squeezed out a 21-20 triumph in New Orleans last season.

Jamie Rivers was a hero in both wins over the Saints last year. He blocked a field goal attempt on the final play of the first game to save the victory, then smelled out a fake field goal and dumped Dave Whitsell for a loss in the second game, keeping momentum on the side of the Big Red. The other hero in the first game was Chuck Latourette, who returned a punt for the first score and set an NFL record for punt returns.

The Southern Illinois University Maching Salukis will provide halftime entertainment against New Orleans, and the Golden Eagles of Southeast Missouri State will perform against New York on November 9, a game which starts at 3:05 p.m.

BIG RED NOTES: Charley Johnson's next touchdown pass will be the 100th of his professional career ... His first one was against Washington on October 14, 1962 ... Johnson's 306 yards and the Cardinals' total of 445 was the biggest since Johnson threw for 310 and the Big Red rolled up 489 in a 49-13 rout of the Browns ... John Roland's 56-yard day gives him 2213 for his career, sixth among all Cardinal running backs ... Gilliam's 192 yards is the first - best one - game performance, and his earlier day of 197 is fourth ... Sonny Randle's 256 against New York in 1962 leads the team ... Linebacker Dave Meggyesy and place kicker Jim Bakken will celebrate birthdays over the weekend, with Meggyesy reaching 28 on Saturday and Bakken becoming 20 on Sunday ...

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

This year school nurses have conducted a teamwork project in vision and hearing testing of all elementary youngsters. This screening process includes: tests to identify children with visual difficulties and/or hearing losses. When defects are discovered,the parents are notified in order that they may refer the child to their doctor for the necessary treatment. It is hoped that this will be done and that the defect can be corrected before they interfere with the child's progress in school. Mrs. Rachelle Jacob, Supervisor of the school nurses, has informed us that many mothers have assisted the nurses in the various schools and have been of invaluable help in accomplishing the screening.

It is our desire, as well as that of Mrs. Jacob and all the school nurses, to express our thanks to all of these volunteers. Their willingness to assist is most appreciated.

School will be dismissed one hour early next Wednesday, November 5, in order that teachers may leave for St. Louis to attend the state teachers meeting on Thursday and Friday. Normal dismissal time would result in most of them getting into St. Louis rather late, hence the early dismissal. Parents are advised to make whatever arrangements that are necessary because of the change in dismissal time.

Our Board of Education maintains one of the broadest Manpower Development Training Act programs in the State of Missouri. Programs recently funded for the fiscal year 1970, in Multi- Occupation includes: basic education; automotive services; agri-business; food services, heating and refrigeration; machine operator; health services; welding; clerk general office and building trades and maintenance.

This program provides job training for previously unemployed or underemployed individuals with insufficient skills to get and hold a job. A very large majority of those who have previously completed the various training programs have found jobs and are now employed. In fact, 86% of past graduates are job holders. Thus people who were on some sort of support program or dole, usually supported by the taxpayer, are now themselves taxpayers and, more importantly, are making their own way and supporting their families.

Bill Sikes is in charge of the Manpower Program here.

Due to the heavy emphasis on science and technology during the current decade it has been difficult to keep the total educational program in proper balance. By that we mean the national interest in and the popularity of scientific and technical areas have caused Congress and state legislatures to be more concerned with scientific and technical education than perhaps they are in other areas. Consequently, there must be a studied effort on the part of boards of education, administration and faculty to keep all subject matter areas in reasonable balance.

While it is important that students learn about science and technology, as certainly they will live in a scientific and technically oriented world, it is very necessary that they know how to communicate. They should read widely, be able to deal effectively with numbers and know something about the history of mankind and how man relates to his total environment. They need to know how to make a living but at the same time it is equally important that they recognize their responsibilities to their fellow man and to the society in which they exist; to appreciate all mankind and their environment, by living full and satisfying lives through knowing about and participating in the cultural activities such as music, the various other fine arts, in fact a wide variety of leisure time activities, that can make life more worthwhile.

Consequently, our Board of Education thinks it is important, to maintain the current balance of courses and activities that will give every youngster the opportunity for a full and well-rounded education. We certainly concur.

POLLY'S POINTERS

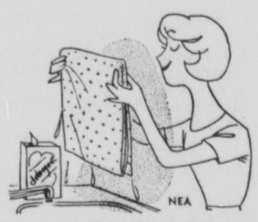

One Does, One Doesn't Iron Nylon Curtains

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Frieda can get the wrinkles out of her nylon curtains or garments by spraying lightly with spray starch and then pressing with a warm iron.—MRS. M. L.

DEAR GIRLS—Surely Frieda has not had as much trouble getting the wrinkles out of her nylon curtains as I had getting some in a nylon panel so I could test this starch treatment. By tying it in knots, washing and leaving it to dry so-tied, I finally acquired some and the cure was great. —POLLY

DEAR POLLY and Frieda—I never have to use an iron on my nylon curtains and I never have any wrinkles by washing them as follows: I fold two panels together and keep folding them until they will fit in the sink or tub. Straighten out any folds or wrinkles as you fold. I then soak them in a mild, warm detergent for 10 minutes and use my flat hand as a plunger to push them up and down. If necessary, the soapy washing can be repeated. When the dirt is all out, they are laid, still folded on the drain. The curtains are rinsed in clear water, still folded. Do not wring out but lay on the drain board and then carry to the line. unfold and throw two panels over the line together and let them drip dry. This works great for me and people think I have new curtains.—JENNIE

DEAR GIRLS—When curtains are too long to hang with clothespins fastened to the top hem and they must be thrown over the line, I find it better to put a cardboard roll, like those from a dry cleaner's coat hanger, under the panel so there is no danger of a line or stain through the middle.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I have tried to make those note cards that use bathroom tissues and waxed paper and are sealed together by ironing but have not had success. I hope someone can help me by sending the instructions.—JANET

Presidents on Viet Nam

President Richard M. Nixon on Monday Nov. 3 addresses the nation in a radio and television broadcast on "the entire situation in Viet Nam."

To forecast what President Nixon will say next Monday would be futile and unrewarding. One might assume that further troop withdrawals from Viet Nam will be announced. From there on it's guesswork, except for the consideration that a pragmatic politician like the President is not going to bid for national attention without having something new to offer.

The record of presidential reports to the nation on Viet Nam is pretty interesting. The war there was on such a low scale and the role of U.S. advisers so small that Dwight D. Eisenhower made no mention of Viet Nam in his final State of the Union Message of Jan. 12, 1961.

All John F. Kennedy said on Jan. 30, 1961, in his own State of the Union address was: "In Asia, the relentless pressures of the Chinese Communists menace the security of the entire area-- from the borders of India and South Viet Nam to the jungles of Laos."

President Kennedy in his State of the Union Message of 1962 said: "A satisfactory settlement in Laos would also help to achieve and safeguard the peace in Viet Nam -- where the foe is increasing his tactics of terror-- where our own efforts have been stepped up-- and where the local government has initiated new programs and reforms to broaden the base of resistance."

The following year, Kennedy stated.. "We have maintained the frontiers of freedom from Viet Nam to West Berlin." Later that year, after the assassination of President Kennedy, President Johnson told Congress on Nov. 27, 1963: "This nation will keep its commitments from South Viet Nam to West Berlin."

President Johnson was equally general in his State of the Union Message of Jan. 8, 1964, declaring: "Today Americans of all races stand side by side in Berlin and in Viet Nam. They died side by side in Korea." Later on it got rough. In a TV message of Aug. 4, 1964, President Johnson asserted that "repeated acts of violence against the armed forces of the United States must be met not only with alert defense but with positive reply." This was the basis for the significant Tonkin Bay resolution of Congress.

In his State of the Union Message of Jan. 4, 1965, Johnson said: "We are there, first, because a friendly nation has asked us for help against the Communist aggression... Three Presidents have supported that pledge." In his 1966 State of the Union Message, Johnson declared: "Thy enemy is no longer close to victory. Time is no longer on his side. There is no cause to doubt the American commitment." The State of the Union Message in 1967 was more of the same.

Johnson in his State of the Union Message of Jan. 17, 1968, was still optimistic. He spoke of hopes of a "complete cessation of hostilities, a really true cease-fire." But little more than two months later-- March 31, 1968-- he stunned the nation with his nationally televised announcement that he would not seek reelection and that he was ordering a partial halt to the bombing in North Viet Nam.

President Nixon has reported to the nation three times previously on television. The most memorable occasion was last May 14, when he laid out an eight- point program for peace. He said then that for the United States to abandon South Viet Nam "would risk a massacre that would shock and dismay everyone who values human life" and "would threaten our long- term hopes for peace."

Q—What event is referred to as the World Series of professional football?

A—The Super Bowl. To date three games have been played—1967, 1968 and 1969.

All Campus Revue Will Open Thursday

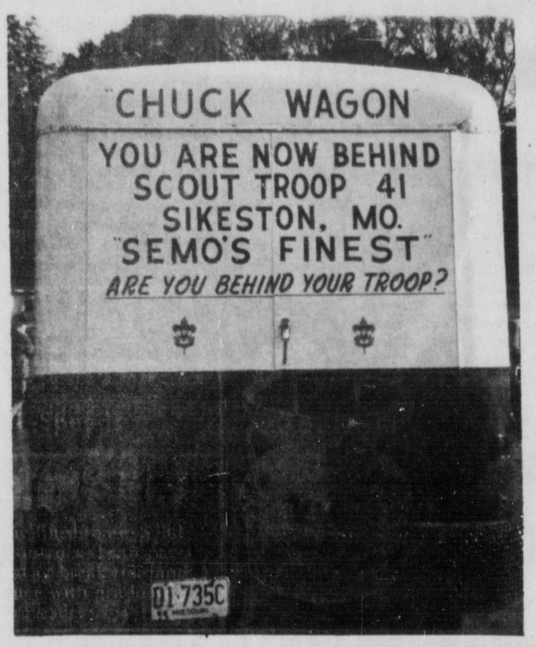

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The annual All- Campus Revue, staged by the Southeast Missouri State College chapter of Phi Mu Alpha, will be held on the campus Thursday through Saturday nights.

Phi Mu Alpha is a national professional music fraternity. Membership is open only to male music majors or men with an unusual degree of interest in music.

The student- produced show will feature 14 acts, plus music by the Phi Mu Alpha fraternity as "college amateurs with professional style."

The talent show which is not a talent show, because the acts are not competitively judged will begin at 8 p.m. each night in the auditorium of Academic Hall.

In recent years, the world has become somewhat easier for the sizable minority of left-handed people. Manufacturers now turn out left-handed golf clubs, egg beaters, fishing reels, desks, and other articles. Some banks furnish left-handed checkbooks, the stubs to the right of the checks.

LOADING is underway for a two-day Burfordville encampment Saturday in a truck furnished by Dick McDougal, committeeman for troop 41. The vehicle will be used for future outings by the troop, and carries a sign on the back of the truck, "You are now behind Scout Troop 41, Sikeston, Semo's finest."

Baptists to Buy Missouri Hotel

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - The Missouri Baptist Convention has agreed to buy the Missouri Hotel, scene of many a political caucus, for its new state headquarters.

Ted Stewart, owner of the hotel, was present when the arrangement was made in Cape Girardeau Tuesday. The price was not announced.

Upper floors of the hotel will be used for offices and the Missouri Baptist Press but the dining room and other businesses on the first floor and mezzanine will continue to be leased.

New Survivors' Benefit Bill Signed

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon signed Wednesday a bill to bring survivors' benefits for the widows of lower grade servicemen more in line with the rise in the cost of living.

The bill revises the present formula under which the payments are boosted according to increases in military pay scales. A widow gets $120 plus 12 per cent of the monthly base pay of the rank held by her husband but no less than $133 a month.

Nixon Invites Viet Policy Suggestions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has encouraged key administration officials, and experts to send him suggestions about his state of the Vietnam war policy speech.

Sources say the result has been literally dozens of memos outlying recommendations and proposals for the Nov. 3 TV-radio appearance. The memos range from peace-making to war-making to truce-making to the shape of the post-Vietnam world in Southeast Asia.

But officials warn against expectations of any world shaking pronouncements.

While saying it is possible some of the ideas may be included in the address, officials are worried the public may be expecting too much from the well-advertised speech.

Speculation on what the President may or may not do, according to the official sources, has exceeded by far Nixon's latitude for action.

For example, it is highly unlikely Nixon would dump his support for the Saigon government as some antiwar elements have suggested or that he will declare a unilateral cease-fire as others have called for.

Nixon is expected to continue his support of the present Saigon regime and resist efforts for any coalition peace government such as the Viet Cong and North Vietnam have demanded. But the President could suggest a broadened base for the present government.

The idea of a unilateral cease-fire has been frowned upon by Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird. And when Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott called for a cease-fire last week, the Pennsylvania senator received a call from the White House suggesting he clarify his stand to specify that the halt in fighting must have mutual agreement.

Scott also was persuaded to re-emphasize that the call for a cease-fire was his own idea and not something he was advancing for the administration.

The area where Nixon has maximum flexibility is in the withdrawal of U.S. forces from Vietnam. It has been widely speculated he will announce his schedule that could result in the withdrawal of up to 300,000 men by the end of 1970.

But this in turn depends upon a continued lull on the battlefield, the speed with which South Vietnam's troops can take over the combat responsibility and progress in the Paris peace talks.

Earth Crack Tips House Toward Sea

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP) — A huge crack in the earth at a clifftop residential viewsite opened wider Wednesday, tumbling an expensive home toward the Pacific Ocean.

"The house is 30 feet down the cliff and still visibly moving," said a police officer. "It went that far in just 15 minutes."

The fissure's new expansion ripped out a water main at the edge of the block-long crack, two to three feet wide in places. Utility workers shut off water and electricity.

Residents had been evacuated and officers kept spectators behind safety lines. The fissure runs along scenic Paseo del Mar Drive at the top of a 200-foot cliff in this Los Angeles suburb.

City authorities estimate six other oceanfront lots and homes were slipping toward the sea at an undetermined rate. Officials placed the seaward slippage at three-sixteenths of an inch per hour on Tuesday, but thought it had speeded up today.

Another home of the seaward side of the opening was rated in precarious position. Three guest homes at other residential sites were given up for lost.

Just a hairline crack at first, it caused little concern until it opened into a gaping 300-footlong fissure at dusk Sunday.

The area has a history of land slippage. Pacific waves eat at the base of the cliff and heavy winter rains have loosened blocks of earth along the top of the cliff in the past.

George Smith, whose home developed a huge hole in a wall when earth gave way under the foundation, says waves have eroded the cliff in the 16 years he has lived there and "neither the city nor the county could see any reason for building a retaining wall to stop the wearing." The Smith home was valued at $60,000 before the land opened up.

Speedup Sought To Stop Spread Of Hog Cholera

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department advisory group has asked the government to step up action to stop the spread of hog cholera through marketing channels.

The National Hog Cholera Eradication Advisory Committee asked that the Agricultural Research Service work with the states to tighten requirements for sanitary conditions in markets and increase control over shipments to stamp out the disease in trade channels.

Among the proposals were uniform requirements for hog holding pens which could be cleaned and disinfected effectively, adequate facilities for handling and inspecting pigs at all markets, and adoption of state and federal regulations requiring identification of all feeder pigs as to their farm of origin.

More than half of the 1,021 confirmed outbreaks of hog cholera reported during the first eight months of 1969 involved shipments of pigs in market channels, the committee said.

No one knows how long the El Molo have lived near Lake Rudolf in Kenya. European explorers discovered the tiny settlement only 80 years ago, when Count Samuel Telecki and Ludwig von Hohnel first sighted the lake.

U.S. Dissent Nudges Thieu To Speed Up Viet Reforms

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Strangely enough, the nationwide demonstrations that marked the Oct. 15 war Moratorium effort may prove, in the long run, to be very helpful to President Nixon's aims in Vietnam.

For Nixon's strategy in winning this war (or in preventing a Communist take-over by force) rests precariously on his ability to convince the South Vietnamese they haven't got much time, that they must act rapidly in land reform, in eliminating petty party rivalries, in crushing corruption, in broadening the government and in reforming the army. Otherwise the country will not have the strength to survive as the United States withdraws its combat troops.

It is urgent that the officer corps no longer be largely limited to men of the favored families and favored classes if the army, navy and air force are going to have the leadership required to hold off the trained and disciplined North Vietnamese attacks and co-ordinated guerrilla forays. Inefficient, bumbling officers will have to be sacked in numbers—now.

Economic and political doors must be opened to the sons and daughters of poor farmers. More governing and financial power must be turned over—and quickly—to local villages which for centuries were self-governing until the days of the French. This must be done if the country is to have the political and economic leadership—and the local loyalty —needed for survival under the difficult conditions ahead.

The police nationwide must be upgraded, paid the wages they need to live without graft. Corruption must be weeded out ruthlessly among the police, the politicians and some military officers with warlord mentalities.

Petty personal squabbling among political, military, religious and merchant leaders must give way to co-operation for the good of the country.

These problems are no secret. The Thieu government knows the importance of these steps as well as does Nixon. The Thieu administration, in fact, is known to be working on each of these essential steps. But movement is painfully slow and sometimes four steps forward are followed by sliding three paces backward. Too many South Vietnamese have been thinking the hard decisions can be postponed until "tomorrow." The clout to push things through is missing.

But the Thieu government and, even more importantly, wide numbers of Vietnamese political, military and religious leaders have been closely, and somewhat nervously, watching the signs of growing discontent in the United States.

For weeks they have buttonholed Americans (any they could find) to ask just how powerful this opposition is and its probable effect on the President. They get reports from college campuses. They clip newspaper accounts of petitions signed by college presidents and professors. They study congressional debates.

The question now is: Will the Oct. 15 Moratorium and what follows spur the speed-up of the reforms outlined above rapidly enough to meet Nixon's pullout schedule?

46,442 Enrolled in Missouri University

COLUMBIA — Enrollment at the four- campus University of Missouri reached a record 46,442 students at the end of the first four weeks of classes, the University announced today. This is an increase of 3,308 students from a year ago.

Enrollments by campus are: Columbia campus: 21,082, an increase of 969 from a year ago, Kansas City campus: 9,674, an increase of 671 from a year ago, Rolla campus, 6,088; a gain of 310 from a year ago, St. Louis campus: 9,598, an increase of 1,358 from a year ago.

University President John C. Weaver reported that it was necessary to shut off enrollment at the St. Louis campus, where the largest increase occurred, because of a lack of sufficient facilities to care for more students. He said several hundred persons who wanted to register at the St. Louis Campus were unable to do so.

A breakdown by classes of the 46,442 students enrolled at the Umiversity this fall shows the following: freshman, 11,190; sophomore, 7,027; junior, 5,899; senior, 4,262; primary professional, 6,512; advanced professional, 1,106; graduate, 8,868; and unclassified, 1,578.

President Weaver said the number of graduate students enrolled this fall is up 675 from a year ago.

The enrollment figures show a ratio of almost two male students to every female at the University. The number of males enrolled is 29,909 and the female enrollment is 16,533.

First time college students total 8,053 at the University, according to the enrollment data.

Students enrolled in some categories of extension division credit courses are not included in the enrollment figures.

ELMONT, N.Y. (AP) — A 5-year-old stallion named Eneas II turned his head sideways in the stretch, bared his teeth and tried to bite Cue Card, the winner, in a race at Belmont Park.

Had Eneas II nipped Cue Card then finished ahead of him the stewards undoubtedly would have changed the result.

ARMED FORCES

WITH U.S. COMBAT AIR FORCES, Vietnam — Transferring an abandoned building from Phan Rang AB, Vietnam. to the Ngoc Ninh Orphanage in Phan Rang City proved to be a rewarding experience for Air Force Sgt. Jackie L. Cooper, formerly of Bernie, Mo.

Sergeant Cooper and 15 other volunteers from the 315th special operations wing at Phan Rang reassmebled the building at the orphanage where it now houses 40 formerly homeless Vietnamese children.

The concensus among the air force volunteers is that participating in this effort benefitting the homeless children was a gratifying experience, so much so that they again volunteered and now are busy in off- duty hours helping to build a school in another Vietnamese village.

Sergeant Cooper, whose wife, JoAnn, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Moore of Bloomfield, Mo., is an administrative specialist. He previously served at Offutt AFB, Neb.

The sergeant, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Cooper, is a 1962 graduate of Bernie high school and studied at Arkansas State College.

Cotton Harvest Well Ahead of Year Ago Pace

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Wet fields continue to hamper harvesting of Missouri's corn and soybean crops, while the cotton harvest is running well ahead of a year ago.

The Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Monday moderate to heavy rain last week, mostly in the central and western portions of the state, left soil moisture at a surplus in many areas.

Harvest of the corn crop is 39 per cent completed statewide, ranging from 90 per cent complete in the bootheel region to only 25 per cent in the northern third of the state.

Soybean harvest has been delayed the most, and is only 54 per cent completed, compared with 69 per cent at this time a year ago.

The cotton harvest is 71 per cent finished, which is one week ahead of last year when only 58 per cent had been harvested at this time. Half of the grain sorghum is harvested and 75 per cent of the fall grain is seeded.

No British monarch has used the power of veto since 1707.

Anemia Declines in Head Start Program

PORTAGEVILLE — The Head Start program in the six-county Delta area has lowered anemia among 668 children enrolled last year.

This accomplishment is described in publication released this week by the Delta Head Start office in cooperatiowith the University of Missouri in Columbia.

Called A Step Ahead with the Head Start Nutritional-Medical- Dental Programs, the 24- page brochure describes each of the facets of the program, tells about the people behind the program, and what it has done for children of the Delta area

M. Mike Cooper of Hayti is director of Delta Head Start. Mrs. Dorothy Wagner is dietician- nutritional director; Mrs. Jeanne Littell, nurse coordinator; Dr. Alan S. Gubin of Caruthersville, medical director; Dr. William Dillon of Sikeston, dental director. B. W. Harrison, director of the University of Missouri's Delta Center at Portageville, is coordinator of the program for UMC.

Of the children enrolled in head Start in 1967-68, 72 per cent were found to be anemic, the brochure reports. A year late, those available from the original group were retested and an improvement of 29 per cent was recorded.

In 1968-69 only 17 per cent of the 668 children enrolled in the fall were found to be anemic. According to Dr. Gubin, many of the children enrolled the second year were brothers or sisters of the first group.

Dr. Gubin believes that the influence of nutrition education and training on the parents of the first group of children and on the familys' diets is a major factor in the reduction of anemia in the second group.

Use of Commercial Fertilizer Takes Dip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Use of commercial fertilizer dropped slightly during the year ended last June 30 after rising four and seven per cent during the two previous years, says the Agriculture Department.

Total use in the United States and Puerto Rico was 38.7 million tons, the Crop Reporting Board said Tuesday. Applications were less last year in all regions except the south-central and Rocky Mountain areas.

Illinois led in fertilizer use with 3.2 million tons, followed by California, the previous year's top user, the board said.

Welborn Presides Over Parley

BLOOMFIELD — More than 1,500 Missourians, attended the 69th annual conference of the Missouri Association Social Welfare in Kansas City this week.

Joe Welborn, Bloomfield retiring president, presided during the business sessions, and was presented a plaque by Mayor Ilus Davis declaring the week as Social Welfare Week in Kansas City.

Welborn pointed out in his opening remarks that the association could not point to towering edifices as an indication of their efforts, but the room filled institutes, the long hours devoted to studies, the deep concern coupled with the determination on the part of so many to aleviate the socio-economic ills facing the state, can best be described in the words of the theme of the conference, "People in Action."

U.S. Aloofness in Caribbean Hard to Comprehend

By Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON— In his scheduled address to the Inter-American Press Association, President Nixon will make what the White House calls a "major new pronouncement on Latin American policy." The President's statement is expected to set in motion a series of changes in U.S. relations with Mexico, Central and South America. But there is little prospect of a similar policy overhaul in the troubled islands of the Caribbean.

For three- quarters of a century, "the Caribbean" has meant to Washington policymakers mainly the Latin island- states of the Greater Antilles: Cuba, Haiti and the Dominican Republic on the island of Hispaniola, and Puerto Rico. This country has largely ignored the hundreds of other smaller islands stretching in 2,500- mile arc from Florida to South America. There is little evidence to suggest that President Nixon will depart from the custom.

Governor Nelson Rockefeller, on the last of his four fact- finding trips to Latin America, made brief stops in five Caribbean countries-- Barbados, Guyana, Jamaica (all former British colonies), Haiti and the Dominican Republic. A month earlier, he had stopped at Trinidad and Tobago, another one- time British colony.

Absent from the itinerary was Cuba, with which the United States has no diplomatic relations, but which hangs like a sword of Damocles over the entire Caribbean region. Missing, too, were the numerous British, French and Dutch islands which are beginning to emerge from centuries of stultifying European colonialism to seek an identity of their own and a place in the Caribbean sun.

The Caribbean is a volatile region, in some ways more akin to Africa with its politics of disintegration, than to the American mainland. The colonial overlords are everywhere on the retreat; the islands are no longer of Europe and not yet of the Western Hemisphere. As the colonial power wanes, a power vacuum grows and the area is beset by forces seemingly beyond its control: virulent nationalism, black power, the maifa, mob violence.

The bewildering patchwork of islands is fragmented into miniscule political units by insularism, nationalism and the habits of four centuries of colonial exploitation. The status of each island ranges from outright independence to outright colony, with a stunning array of intermediate arrangements. All attempts to create a coherent whole from the jumbled pieces have failed. The last such venture, the British West Indies Federation, crumbled into pieces in 1962 after four brief, rocky years.

Against this background of division and weakness, the United States has kept a "hands-off" attitude toward the West Indies, an attitude nurtured by decades of U.S. - Anglo cooperation. A major study undertaken last year by the State Department to overhaul U.S. policy in the area has been locked up in a classified file.

American aloofness is hard to understand, especially in view of the stake in U.S. business in the region. Huge U.S. firms dominated the mining of bauxite in Jamaica and Guyana, the production of petroleum in Trinidad, and the development of tourism everywhere. In terms of private investment, Canadians run a distant second to Americans. But Canada's development assistance to the area is far above that of the United States.

The domination of Caribbean economies by outside interests has spurred the rise of a new spirit of nationalism, akin to nationalist movements throughout the developing world. The aim is control of foreign enterprise, but in the Caribbean, the movement is linked to still another vital force: black power. It is a Caribbean truism that "the blacks control the government and the whites the wealth." Black nationalism thus constitutes a potential threat not only to U.S. businesses, but to the small white creole class as well.

Most Caribbean leaders believe that regional cooperation is the only solution in the long run, and they are trying-- once again-- to achieve it. Some eighteen months ago, the former and present British colonies of the Eastern Caribbean, together with Jamaica and Guyana, formed the Caribbean Free Trade Association, a first step toward the achievement of a Caribbean Common Market.

The early record of CARIFTA, as it is called, is impressive. Trade among the islands is up substantially, and a variety of new products is flowing in inter- island commerce. In December, a Caribbean Development Bank is scheduled to open, with $30 million in local capital, and $10 million each from Great Britain and Canada.

The Caribbean islands thus have taken the bit in their own mouths. They are actively seeking new hemispheric alliances and are promoting the concept of the Caribbean as an integral part of the New World partnership. The region's leaders now believe that the future of the islands lies in association -- among themselves, and with their neighbors in the Western Hemisphere. The choice is clearly one between cooperation and disaster.

Mingo Tour Route Open

PUXICO— Jack Toll, manager of Mingo National Wildlife Refuge, announced the opening of a 25- mile tour route every Sunday afternoon during October and November. Individuals may start the tour between noon and 4 P.M. but must be off the refuge by dark.

The self- guided tour route begins at refuge headquarters one and one -half miles northeast of Puxico. It takes about two hours to drive the route.

This year's route is different from last so people will be able to see a new part of the refuge.

Toll suggests that people bring binoculars and a camera and that more wildlife will probably be seen by driving the tour in late afternoon.

Sociologist Proposes Giving Youths Right To Earn Adult Status

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — A sociologist has proposed that a young person should have the right to earn adult status as early as age 18, by donating 1,200 hours of public service.

Prof. Dale Hardman said the public service could range "from public landscaping to playing checkers with institutionalized persons to spraying mosquitoes to serving in the military to creating public art."

NEWSPAPERS

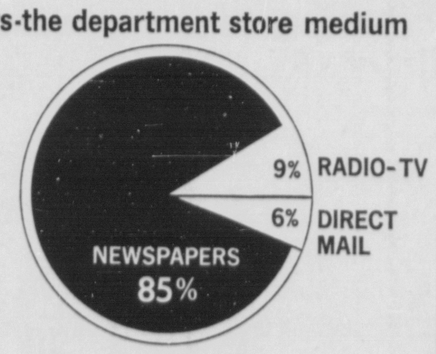

THE NO. 1 RETAIL ADVERTISING MEDIUM

As shown on First Chart, department stores throughout the country invest 85% of their ad dollars in newspapers, 6% in direct mail and only 9% in all broadcast media combined. (NRMA does not break down the 9% into individual figures for radio and TV.)

On Second Chart shows the figures for grocery stores. Newspapers get over two thirds of the ad investments from chains and independents. 20% goes into direct mail. The broadcast media get only 12% of all grocery store ad dollars.

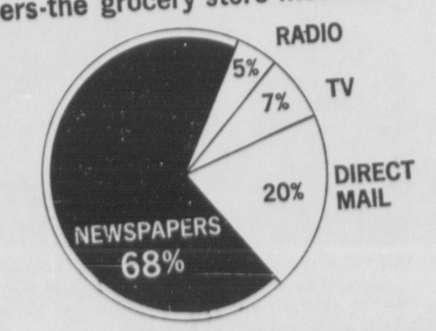

RETAILERS, WHO ARE CLOSE TO THE CASH REGISTER AND THEREFORE IN A POSITION TO KNOW WHAT ADVERTISING SELLS CONSISTENTLY INVEST MORE OF THEIR ADVERTISING MONEY IN NEWSPAPER SPACE THAN IN ALL OTHER MEDIA COMBINED.

Inactivation of the 9th Infantry Division

"You Have Done What You Were Asked To Do"

General W. C. Westmoreland

PASSING THROUGH, June 1967—Maj. Gen. George G. O'Connor, right, the new commanding general of the 9th Infantry Division, conducts former division commander, Maj. Gen. Eckhardt through a line of dipped guidons representing 9th Division units. Behind them is Sgt. Maj. Thomas M. McKinley, then the division's senior noncom. After General Eckhardt led his division to Vietnam in December 1966, the 9th became the first U.S. infantry division to challenge the enemy in the Mekong Delta.

PONDERING A POINT — Maj. Gen. (now Lt. Gen.) Julian J. Ewell pauses during a June 1968 inspection tour of a captured enemy supply point north of Tan An, Republic of Vietnam. At right is Col. Henry E. Emerson, 1st Brigade commander. General Ewell commanded the 9th from February 1968 to April 1969. Following the fierce 1968 Tet offensive, the 9th Infantry Division received the Vietnamese Valor Award, Army Level.

"WE WILL TRY HARDER"—Maj. Gen. Harris W. Hollis, 9th Infantry Division commander, renders a salute during ceremonies for presentation of the Vietnamese Gallantry Cross with Palm to the 9th Division. In his farewell speech before the first redeployment, General Hollis cited the division for "completing another epic achievement in behalf of our country and for free men everywhere . . ."

Another Chapter Ends . . .

Steeped in tradition dating back long before their actions at Remagen Bridge during World War II, the 9th Infantry Division, known as the "Old Reliables," is coming home from the Republic of Vietnam.

Acting Secretary of the Army Thaddeus R. Beal announced on August 8 that elements of the 9th Infantry Division, to include the division's headquarters and its 1st Brigade, scheduled for deployment from the Republic of Vietnam to Hawaii, will be inactivated immediately. The division's 3d Brigade is to be redesignated a separate brigade in Vietnam. Elements of the 9th Infantry Division base and the 1st Brigade of the division comprise about 6,000 personnel.

On July 7, 1969, elements of the division's 2d Brigade departed Vietnam as the first part of President Richard Nixon's Vietnamization program. The 2d Brigade, comprising about 3,500 personnel, has returned to the continental United States (CONUS) for previously announced inactivation.

Vietnam Service

The 9th Infantry Division was reactivated on Feb. 1, 1966 at Fort Riley, Kan., for intensive training in preparation for service in Vietnam. Maj. Gen. George S. Eckhardt was named commander of the reactivated division.

On Dec. 19, 1966, General Eckhardt led the division ashore at Vung Tau. One month later, the 3d Brigade of the 9th became the first American infantry unit to establish a permanent base in the Mekong Delta at Dong Tam.

During the division's first year in Vietnam, it established itself as a tough fighting force in actions at Bau Bang, Rach Kien and Ap Bac. By mid-1967, the Mobile Riverine Force had been established to transport infantrymen more easily throughout the river-laced Delta.

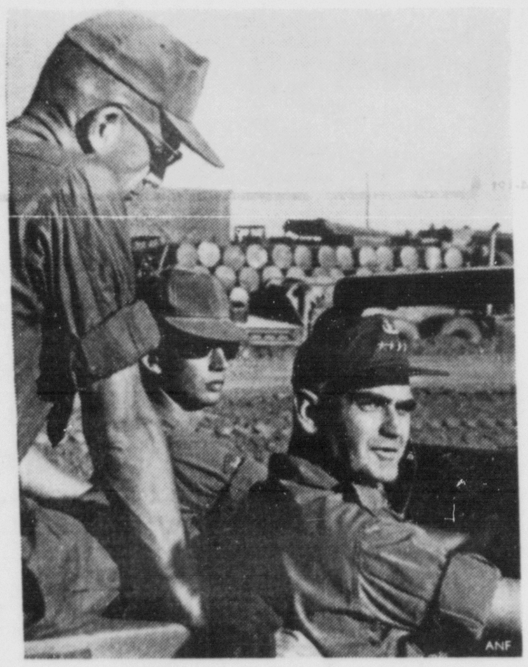

Major Unit Awards

When the enemy launched his 1968 Tet attacks, the "Old Reliables" reacted with swift precision to gain decisive victories. In July 1968, the 9th Infantry Division received the Vietnamese Valor Award, Army Level.

Two Presidential Unit Citations also have been awarded to elements of the 9th for action in Vietnam. President Lyndon B. Johnson awarded the citation to the Medical Platoon, Headquarters Troop, 3d Squadron, 5th Cavalry of the 9th Infantry Division on Dec. 3, 1968 for extraordinary heroism at Ap Bau Bang, Republic of Vietnam on the night of March 19-20, 1967.

President Richard Nixon awarded the citation to the 2d Brigade of the 9th Infantry Division on June 12, 1969 for displaying extraordinary heroism in action against an armed hostile force during and immediately after the 1968 Tet offensive.

General officers who commanded the 9th Infantry Division in Vietnam in addition to General Eckhardt, were Maj. Gen. George G. O'Connor from June 1, 1967 to Feb. 24, 1968; Maj. Gen. (now Lt. Gen.) Julian J. Ewell, Feb. 25, 1968 to April 1, 1969; and its present commanding general, Maj. Gen. Harris W. Hollis, who assumed command on April 2, 1969. (ANF)

FREQUENT VISITOR — General W. C. Westmoreland, in 1967, tours the Mekong Delta base camp of the 9th Infantry Division near Long Thanh. At left is Col. James W. Phillips, then commander of the 9th Infantry Division Artillery. Upon the return of elements of the division from the Republic of Vietnam, General Westmoreland praised the soldiers of the 9th—his old outfit — by saying, ". . . you men can stand tall, and be proud; you can look any man in the eye knowing that you served your country when you were called . . ."

TREATING THE PEOPLE — A 9th Infantry Division medic, Sp4 Mark Ellerbee, applies a soothing ointment to a woman's hand at Rach Kien, Republic of Vietnam. Other Vietnamese women with children wait in line for medical attention. Medical personnel of the 9th treated local civilians as a part of their normal duties.

PARADE—Boy Scouts of the Republic of Vietnam march in a parade honoring soldiers of the 9th Infantry Division.

"Above and Beyond the Call"

FIVE SERVICEMEN from the 9th Infantry Division received the Medal of Honor for gallantry and intrepidity in combat while serving in the Republic of Vietnam. All ranks cited are those which were in effect at the time the award was presented.

Sgt. Sammy Lee Davis	Martinsville, Ind.	Battery C, 2d Battalion, 4th Artillery
Sgt. Leonard Bert Keller	Rockford, Ill.	Company A, 3d Battalion, 60th Infantry
Sp4 Thomas J. Kinsman	Onalaska, Wash.	Company B, 3d Battalion, 60th Infantry
Sp5 Clarence E. Sasser	Rosharon, Tex.	Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 3d Battalion, 60th Infantry
Sp4 Raymond R. Wright	Mineville, N.Y.	Company A, 3d Battalion, 60th Infantry

— Good Luck and Godspeed —

CHOPPER SPRINT — Troops of the 9th Infantry Division scramble toward waiting helicopters for swift air movement to another area of operation. While in the Republic of Vietnam, the 9th was awarded the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry in addition to many other citations. Five soldiers of the 9th received the Medal of Honor.

COMBAT PHONE BOOTH—By turn, soldiers of the 9th Infantry Division take a quick "time out" from perimeter guard duty to call home from their fire support base deep in the Mekong Delta. The 3/4-ton vehicle is the Military Radio Affiliate System (MARS), Mobile Rig One. It cruised the division's area of operation giving men at isolated camps the opportunity to talk to friends and relatives in the U.S.

DELTA DEVILS — Soldiers of the 9th Infantry Division move out toward armored troop carriers during riverine operations in the Mekong Delta, Republic of Vietnam. The 9th used boats to move their men and firepower into areas isolated by a web of rivers, canals and tangled marshes.

One thing about a used VW.

It looks as homely as a new one.

So when you get last year's model it's almost like getting this year's.

Especially since these cars have passed the VW 16-point safety and performance test. And have our 100% guarantee that we'll repair or replace all major mechanical parts* for 30 days or 1000 miles, whichever comes first.

What you're getting is a car that not only looks almost new. It runs that way, too.

A BUSY SEASON

DENVER (AP) — Harley Key, sports writer for The Rocky Mountain News, has good reason to remember the spring and summer of 1969. In the space of four days he attended graduation ceremonies for two daughters and a son. A week later one of the daughters was married. And two months earlier another daughter presented Key with his first grandchild.

If You Were the Judge

Rash No Excuse For Jail Release

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Horace ran afoul of the law and was sentenced to a jail term of not less than six months and not more than five years. While he found the sentence a bit disconcerting, the real rub came when he developed a very uncomfortable rash.

Examining his cell, Horace concluded that his itch was due to his niche; that the rash was caused by a psychological aversion to his being in jail. And, to support this conclusion, Horace pointed to the fact that prison doctors had been unable to cure his ailment for a continuous period of 16 months. Consequently, he filed an application for his immediate parole.

"In view of the fact that the doctors haven't been able to relieve my skin condition,' he argued, "and since I've already served my minimum sentence, I should be released before I tickle to death."

"Sorry," was the answer, "but parole is based upon a prisoner's conduct and not his physical condition. Because you may itch, that's no reason to let you start from scratch."

Determined to obtain his release, Horace took the matter to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order the release of the itchy jailbird?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! He held that a prisoner is not entitled to be paroled just because he has served his minimum sentence; nor is he entitled to be released because of a physical ailment for which he is receiving treatment.

"If sickness of a prisoner could compel his discharge," noted the judge, "which it does not, we could anticipate a veritable rash of petitions."

Alumni to Return at Cape State

CAPE GIRARDEAU— A bushel basket full of activities awaits Southeast Missouri State College alumni who return to the campus for the college's traditional Homecoming Nov. 8.

Highlights of the day will include a parade in the morning, a luncheon, a football game in the afternoon, and an open house following the game.

The college's five social sororities and six social fraternities have scheduled separate teas, coffees, receptions, and open houses for their alumni. Other student groups on the campus are also planning special programs. Some of these will take place during morning hours, while others are scheduled for after the football game.

The homecoming observance will get under way on Nov. 6 and continue on Nov. 7, but most of the activities on these dates are designed for students.

However, members of the college's Alumni Council will convene for a dinner and business meeting at 6 p.m. Nov. 7 at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Mark F. Scully. Dr. Scully is president of the college.

Other activities scheduled for Nov. 7 include the coronation of the Homecoming queen and a concert by a pop group known as "Little Anthony and the Imperials." The concert and coronation will get under way at 8 p.m. in Houck Field House.

The event is open to the public and tickets may be purchased at the college business office during the week of the concert.

The principal event slated for Nov. 6 is a pep rally and dance on the parking lot outside of the college's student union building.

First event on the agenda for the main day of Homecoming, Nov. 8, will be the annual parade which will form at Capaha Park and move down Broadway to Lorimier St. It will start at 9:30 a.m.

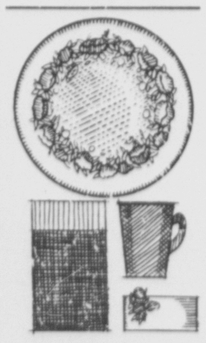

An alumni luncheon and general business meeting will get under way at 11:30 a.m. in Memorial Hall. Guests of honor will be members of the Student Army Training Corps of 1918-19, the Class of 1919, Class of 1944, and Class of 1959.

This fall marks the first time that the college has invited the graduating class of 10 years ago back for a Homecoming reunion. If successful, the event will be continued each year.

The Homecoming football game between Southeast Missouri State and Northeast Missouri State of Kirksville will begin at 1:30 p.m. at Houck Stadium. After the game there will be an open house for alumni at the Holiday Inn in Cape Girardeau.

The day will close with the annual dance at the Arena Building, beginning at 8 p.m. The music of "Mitch Rider and His Show" will be featured.

STARTED TOO GOOD

DENVER (AP) — Paul Powell, an Arizona State outfielder signed by the Minnesota Twins and assigned to Denver, smashed the first pitch served to him in professional baseball for a single. But Powell couldn't maintain that hitting pace and was shunted down to the Twin farm at Charlotte in the Southern League.

Moratorium Leaders Have New Tool---Power

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Moratorium epilogue: The young men and women who set up Oct. 15 have now created a powerful organizational weapon.

Now that they have been "successful," the temptation will be to use this weapon again and again for one reason or another.

The issue is not Vietnam, race, poverty or injustice. The issue now is power.

Success breeds temptation: power, once created, is inevitably used.

But they run the danger their image will be destroyed by violent members of the Students for a Democratic Society and other amateur revolutionaries. That is, if the protests of mid-November get out of control, they could destroy the Moratorium of Oct. 15.

But the strength of these ex-McCarthyite youngsters is not shallow. They have the names of thousands of people to call on. They have lists of donors. They know which of their lieutenants can produce and which cannot.

They have learned the techniques of political psychology —the subtle differences in words that arouse people to action or don't (their use of Moratorium rather than strike).

They have ready groups they can throw on the streets.

They have strong vocal allies spotted among college presidents and faculty, in Congress, among some scientists and in the literary world.

These youthful organizers were surprisingly successful in some presidential primaries in the fall of 1968, though encumbered by a fourth-rate candidate in Sen. Eugene McCarthy.

They drew surprising advance public support in the Oct. 15 Moratorium, gathering many prestigious names en route. (Despite the numbers in opposition, note how the campaign was managed so that by and large the Moratorium's opponents kept strangely silent.)

The Moratorium youngsters have given the appearance of achieving the removal of Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey as director of Selective Service, of reducing the draft calls, and even perhaps of forcing a review of U.S. policies in Vietnam as a possible prelude to increasing the withdrawal of U.S. troops.

It can be argued that these shifts would have been made with no Moratorium. But timing inevitably has given the Moratorium men and many observers the feel of victory. In these matters, the feel is what is important.

Here we have something quite different from the amateurism of the Students for a Democratic Society and the Black Panthers. As the Viet Cong have shown, strength comes from organization and psywar, not primarily from military prowess.

By contrast, the SDS has shown no firm organizational base. SDS techniques have been crude and sometimes self-defeating. They have within their groups the divisiveness which could lead to enervating splits.

In the ex-McCarthy Moratorium planners we have something much more serious—people who pay attention to the nuts and bolts of politics.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

Its gates shall never be shut by day--and there shall be no night there. (Revelation 21:25, RSV)

PRAYER: Almighty God, we thank Thee for the gift of freedom. Direct us so to use it that our lives will be increasingly open to Thine indwelling love. Grant that the use we make of our freedom will enable us to enter through the gates into Thine eternal city. Amen.

Living Ghost of Salazar Hangs over Portugal Voting

By Editorial Research Reports

LONDON — After 40 years in the driver's seat, the living ghost of dictator Antonio de Oliveira Salazar continues to haunt Portugal. Eerie is the only way to describe it. While the population is being readied for the first election in some four decades which could influence Portugal's political evolution, the 80- year- old Salazar still believes he's in charge.

Premier Salazar entered a prolonged coma following a brain hemorrhage in September 1968. President Americo Thomaz appointed a 62- year - old lawyer, Marcello Caetano, as the new premier. When Salazar recovered, no one dared tell him he was no longer in charge. And to preserve the old man's dreams, Salazar continues to live in the premier's official residence while Caetano goes to his own home every night.

This make- believe, almost Shakespearean atmosphere extends over the elections for the National Assembly Sunday. During the Salazar reign no member of the opposition ever managed to win a seat in the legislature. Few of the registered 1.8 million voters (out of a population of 9.5 million) are reported to believe that this election will be a first step towards much needed reforms.

Reforms are in order. Portugal has the unenviable record of being the European country with the lowest per capita income (about $430), the lowest percentage of university students, the highest percentage of illiteracy and the highest rate of infant mortality. According to the Union of Portuguese Democrats, an exile group, it also has the highest percentage of political prisoners.

Caetano has been accused of practicing a form of "Salazarism without Salazar." When he first came to office, he launched modest campaign of liberalization and freed Dr. Mario Soares, a socialist, who had been kept in administative exile. But Caetano owes his premiership to the Portuguese oligarchy, who stand ready to oust him if he threatens to disturb the status quo of Salazar's "corporate state."

This explains the extraordinary restrictions on the election campaign. Street meetings and demonstrations are prohibited. Posters must carry the official stamp of approval. And the London Times reports that all candidates must carefully abide by 10 rules governing political behavior. Moreover, Caetano's party opened the campaign by declaring 12 leftist opposition candidates ineligible.

The army's power restricts the paths open to Caetano. Portugal has 150,000 soldiers in Angola, Mazambique and Guinea-- and the military consumes nearly half of Portugal's annual budget. The head of the armed forces, General Venancio Deslandes, warned that the army "cannot consent to partisan and demagogic passions disturbing the tranquility of the Portuguese people."

The colonial issue has become the focal point of the elections. Caetano has said that Portugal will not waver in her determination to "spare our Africa the calamities of a phony independence." Richard Mowrer, correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor, reported from Lisbon that Caetano considered the election a test of whether "the Portuguese people advocate abandonment of the overseas provinces." No one believes that the election will take Portugal out of Africa. But even a handful of opposition candidates in the National Assembly could shake up Portugal's immobilism.

LONDON — Musicians sing of "April in Paris," "April in Portugal." Robert Browning, sunning himself somewhere in the south of France, longed "to be in England, now that April's there." He forgot how cold it can be. London is a snappy 45 degrees, even with sun, and the only warmth comes from great splashes of daffodils on the slopes of Hyde Park.

Exactly at 10:30 p.m. Thursday night Pan Am rolled us out of Kennedy Airport and exactly at 4:50 a.m. Friday we were landing at Heathrow in London, only the time there was ten minutes to eleven of a shiny morning.

Passengers at the later- than - planned departure had been taken to the "Golden Door" restaurant at Kennedy for dinner, PAA's compliments, But, when we boarded, the hostesses were prepared to serve their regular generous meal, an offer very few accepted. We bedded down contentedly.

Before long I note that tomorrow is a faint pink streak ahead, below us the gray ripples of ocean. Barren land appears, then the little geometric squares of English countryside, each one neatly stitched around with dark green hedgerows. We lower in directly over Windsor Castle. Surely, when the royal family is in residence, they must shake their fists along with the commoners over whose homes these noisy jets descend.

Brown's Hotel, Dover Street in Mayfair, is our London destination. Old, warmly comfortable, slightly shabby and about as far from the new glitter of Hilton as you can get, Brown's is as venerable as the British empire and considerably more stable. It's a country inn a block from Piccadilly. It's an entrance hall lobby, panelled lounges with soft chairs and couches, morning coffee and four o'clock tea served there in comfort, dining room waiters in tails, lunch and dinner, chintz at the windows, excellent food, an elevator which holds two guests (three are embarrassedly crowded). It's a bathtub big enough to drown in, shoes put out at night, a valet concerned about the spot on a vest and Gordon, the young man at the porter's desk, concerned about a guest's pleasure. Brown's is a worthy British tradition.

Arrive Friday in London and you have the weekend to get acquainted with it. Light traffic is an aid on Saturday and Sunday. We taxied to Trafalgar Square Saturday morning then took off on foot, first into St. Martin's - in- the Fields Church at the top of the square... so old it was once actually in the fields outside the "City" itself... done by a protege of Christopher Wren ... Gibbs, by name. Warning at the door: if you kneel to pray, hold onto your purse... many have been stolen back of the bowed head! Next, into the Square dominated by Admiral Nelson, England's No. One naval hero, with the famous Landseer lions guarding the base. Trafalgar is a protest point and a few were already on soap boxes, early as it was. The delightfully courteous bobbies were around with tiny walkie- talkies clipped to their chests. Back of us stretches the National Gallery. Down to the south of us we see Whitehall with its Houses of Parliament, the great tower of Big Ben and, just beyond, the spires of Westminster Abbey. Big Ben, incidentally, is the bell and does not connote the clock itself. So a bobby told us.

We scurry across traffic and under Admiralty Arch. To the left is the complex of Britain's naval administration buildings, to the right the impressive facade of Carlton House terrace, once royalty's homes, now government offices or whatnot. We are walking down the Mall and cross over to walk along St. James Park. Children, dogs and grown- ups are reveling in the sun, cold as it is. Yellow tulips are out. We walk the three- quarters of a mile down the park to its lagoon where the fountain sprays and the willows weep. Now we're just in front of Buckingham Palace. We hurry across the circle's traffic into Victoria Square, remembering on a former trip that we saw the little royal children waving from their nursery windows on some ceremonial occasion. At this point the most beautiful sight within view is a vacant taxi and we promptly hail it for a ide through Hyde Park and a grimace at the incongruous, gingerbready Albert Memorial on the greensward. Vicky really overdid it.

Theater is tops in London. Saturday afternoon we went to the Savoy (birthplace in 1881 at Gilbert and Sullivan's efforts) to see "The Secretary Bird," clever, very funny and not the vulgarity we've stomached on Broadway later. "Hair," the musical we disliked so much in New York, is top seller here. Kenneth More stars in "The Secretary Bird" and William Douglas Home is the author.

Theater is cheaper here than in New York. Saturday matinees are mostly five o'clock, evenings start at eight. On week nights the time is seven- thirty, an hour earlier than in New York. A pot of tea (coffee at night), ice cream, a soft drink, all may be bought and served at the seat in intermission with great politeness by the usherettes. I can just imagine this in New York! After every performance the audience remains standing in place while "God Save the Queen" is played. I think if anyone attempted to move out he would be mobbed.

Savoy Theater is at the entrance to the famous and elegant Savoy Hotel on the Thames embankment. We walked to the river, gazed out at Waterloo Bridge and beyond where old London Bridge had been, then repaired into the hotel for a Scotch and water on rocks (which is served everywhere here in wine glasses).

The mini minis were passing by. "There's one," said my husband, "right up to her crouch," a mispronunciation I find infinitely more descriptive than "crotch."

Science Club Invites Others To Meeting

EAST PRAIRIE — The Science Club of East Prairie high school has extended an invitation to the science clubs of Hayti and Portageville high schools to meet with them in order that they may see how a larger club operates.

The membership of their clubs are smaller than East Prairie and they wish to get ideas to make theirs grow. Projects will be displayed.

At Tuesday night's meeting of the club, President Chuck Davis announced the final date for projects would be Nov. 24. Davis led discussion on the topic, "How Sap Rises in a Tree." This question continues to baffle scientists, who have not found the answer. Another project discussed was to feed a pumpkin milk and observe any changes in growth, size and taste.
